Valuing United Airlines' shares is incredibly difficult, and any measure must be considered part of an overview of United Airlines' overall performance. However, analysts generally use some key measures to assess the value of a security. United Airlines' P/E ratio, the current share price united airlines divided by its (EPS) over a 12-month period gives a price/earnings follow-up ratio of about 10x. In other words, United Airlines shares are trading at about 10 times recent earnings. This is relatively small compared to, say, the 12-month P/E ratio for the NASDAQ 100 at the end of 2019 (27.29). The low P/E ratio could mean that investors are pessimistic about the outlook for equities or simply that they are undervalued. United Airlines' PEG United Airlines price/earnings/growth ratio can be calculated by dividing its P/E ratio by growth - to 1.0584. A low ratio can be interpreted to mean that stocks offer better value, while a higher ratio can be interpreted to mean that stocks offer worse value. The PEG ratio offers a broader view than the P/E ratio, as it provides an overview of United Airlines' future profitability. Taking growth into account, it could also help you if you compare the share prices of several high-growth companies. United Airlines' EBITDA (earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization) was $860 million. EBITDA is a measure of United Airlines' overall financial performance and is widely used to measure its profitability. Revenue TTM USD USD$22.8 trillion Gross profit TTM USD$14.8 trillion Return on assets TTM -6.2% Return on equity TTM -49.51% Profit margin -19.85% Book value 19.2%85% Book value $100 24,066 Market capitalization USD$10.6 billion TTM: trailing 12 months Shorting United Airlines shares There are currently 19.4 million United Airlines shares held short by investors - that's known as United Airlines's short interest. This figure is down 4% compared to 20.2 million last month. There are several ways to assess this level of interest in United Airlines' short-circuit of shares. United Airlines' short interest ratio (SIR) (short interest rate) (SIR) is the amount of United Airlines shares currently short-circuited divided by the average amount of united airlines traded daily (recently approximately 28.1 million). Sir of United Airlines currently stands at 0.69. In other words, for every 100,000 United Airlines shares traded daily on the market, approximately 690 shares are currently overdrawn. However, United Airlines' short-term interest may also be valued in relation to the total number of United Airlines shares, or, relative to the total number of United Airlines tradable shares (shares that are not held by insiders or large long-term shareholders, known as the fleet). In this case, United Airlines' short interest could be expressed as 0.07% of the outstanding shares (for every 100,000 existing United Airlines shares, approximately 70 shares are currently short-held) or 0.0768% of the tradable shares (for every 100,000 United Airlines marketable shares, approximately 77 shares are currently uncovered). Such a low SIR usually indicates a outlook for the share price, with fewer people currently willing to bet against United Airlines. Learn more about how you can short-circuit United Airlines shares. United Airlines' environmental, social and governance criteria are a set of three factors used to measure the sustainability and social impact of companies such as United Airlines. When it comes to ESG scores, lower is better, and lower scores are generally associated with lower risk for risky investors. United Airlines Total ESG's total ESG risk score is at risk: 34.87 socially conscious investors use ESG scores to examine how an investment aligns with their world view, and United Airlines' overall score of 34.87 (at 10/01/2020) is quite low - landing in the 67th percentile of companies rated in the same sector. ESG scores are increasingly used to estimate the level of day-to-day risk of a company such as United Airlines in the areas of environment (carbon footprint, resource use, etc.), social (health and safety, human rights, etc.) and governance (anti-corruption, tax transparency, etc.). United Airlines Environmental Score Environmental Score: 17.91/100 United Airlines's environmental score of 17.91 puts it squarely in the 7th percentile of companies rated in the same sector. This may suggest that United Airlines is a leader in its sector in terms of environmental impact, and exposed to a lower level of risk. United Airlines Social Score Social Score: 20.13/100 United Airlines social score of 20.13 puts it squarely in the 7th percentile of companies rated in the same sector. United Airlines Governance Score Governance Score: 10.83/100 United Airlines's governance score puts it squarely in the 7th percentile of companies rated in the same sector. This may suggest that United Airlines is a leader in its sector in responsible management and strategy, and exposed to a lower level of risk. The controversial Score of United Airlines Score Controversy: 2/5 ESG scores also assess any controversial impact that a company has been involved in. United Airlines scored 2 of 5 for the controversy - the second highest score possible, reflecting that United Airlines has, for the most part, managed to keep its nose clean. United Airlines Holdings, Inc. was last listed for ESG on: 2020-10-01. Total score ESG 34.87 Total ESG percentile 67 Environmental Score Percentile Environmental Score 7 Social Score 20.13 Social percentile score 7 Governance score 10.83 Governance score percentile 7 Controversy Level 2 We do not expect United Airlines to pay a dividend in the next 12 months. Have United Airlines shares already been divided? United Airlines Airlines were divided on a 4:1 basis on 21 May 1996. So if you had owned 1 share the day before the split, the next day you would have owned 4 shares. This would not have directly changed the overall value of your United Airlines shares - just the amount. However, indirectly, the further 75% decline in the share price could have had an impact on the market's appetite for United Airlines shares, which could have had an impact on United Airlines' share price. United Airlines Share Price Volatility Over the past 12 months, the value of United Airlines shares has increased from $17.8 to $95.16. A popular way to assess the volatility of a stock is its beta. Ual. Volatility in the United States (beta: 1.5)Volatility Avg. (beta: 1.00) Low/High Beta is a measure of a stock's volatility relative to the market. The market (NASDAQ average) beta is 1, while United Airlines is 1.4997. This suggests that United Airlines shares are more volatile than the average of this exchange and represent, relatively speaking, a higher risk (but potentially also market-beating returns).
