Get help managing your vacation with our planning and tracking templates. Get templates now in the Arctic Circle, at 66.5 degrees north latitude, Santa manages his own mail with the help of elves. Outside the town of Rovaniemi in Lapland, the central post office of good old men serves as a logistics centre for the more than half a million cards, letters and parcels it receives every Christmas. At the time, he receives more than 30,000 emails a day. As you all know, Santa's house is a little further north of Finland, on a hill called Korvatunturi. However, his special charm also allows him to be in Rovaniemi for most of the year for people to visit. Writing letters to Santa Claus is an essential part of Christmas preparations for many children, especially minors. However, it is not limited to a specific age group. The letter to Santa Claus represents a genre of correspondence, with subgenrs from messages from children who have just learned to write (Father, how to write Santa Claus?) to the more sophisticated content of those who already master the art of writing. Although the letters are confidential, our elf sources show that the content goes beyond the usual list of gifts of thoughts about the life and problems of the modern world, as well as asking for advice. Our elf sources also report that adults also show great interest in communicating with Santa Claus. People of all ages write things that go beyond Christmas and express desires that are not limited to material things. World peace is one example of the desired gift. Change the subject, if you visit Santa Central Post, you will also find that many of the little ones (under the guidance of their parents) sent their pacifiers to Santa Claus as proof that they are past the age of their use. Good old men have something very special that will please people of all nationalities. So far, he has received mail from 198 countries. Maybe because he and his elves make up an incredible team of polyglots. Santa Central Post Office is one of many buildings that are part of Santa Claus Village, a kind of theme park. The Arctic Circle is identified by a line that crosses a location. One of the buildings is Santa's office. To enter, you need to pass through an arched room where the giant pendulum moves back and forth. Identified as Earth's rotary speed controller, this part of the massive mechanism gives you an idea of magic and the mystery around the good old man travels the world, delivering billions of gifts in a very short timeframe. Upstairs, elves take you to the chamber where Santa Claus is located. Yes, alone, like dear old people with a long white beard, which appears in photos all over the world. He greets children and shakes hands with adults in a very warm way, as is customary throughout Finland. Need Magical intuitions guess that anyone who passes through the place does not want to leave without a beautiful souvenir photo. An elf photographer immortalized a big moment with precise clicks. They even have a webcam that sends visits to Santa Claus live so everyone can keep up with everything. Those who visit Santa Claus and his post office return home with a heart full of constant and real Christmas spirit, regardless of the time of year. And that's what matters.
