The two leading mobile markets in the U.S., OfferUp and Letgo, are joining forces to create a new power plant. OfferUp acquired Letgo on July 1, 2020. The app is a special mobile market that allows users to buy and sell goods quickly and conveniently. Sellers can list their item in less than a minute, while for smart buyers to find the perfect product takes only a few clicks. The app is available for download and use for free. No fee charged or sell goods, although sellers can increase the visibility of their products and add special features to make their goods more attractive if they want for a small fee. App users don't need to provide personal information in order to buy and sell products because they can connect through their Facebook profile if they want to. The app also encrypts data to make it more secure to use than many other online marketplaces of this type. The app has been designed to be very smooth and easy to use. The special messaging system that the app comes with means that a new product can be listed for sale in just 30 seconds and new sellers and buyers are guided through the necessary processes through a series of tips. People who are looking for a specific type of product simply need to enter the item name in the search bar to get a list of items that match the stated description. Once users have found the product they want to buy, they must send the seller a message to arrange the time and place to meet. The app comes with a camera button that can be used to add an image of the item for sale, as well as categories, description, name, price and status. Once the item has been posted, sellers must wait to get a message from the interested buyer and then arrange the time and place to meet them. People who experience poor interaction with another user can report it to the user through the company's messaging system. Simply open the full user profile and click on the Report button indicating the nature of the complaint. Sellers who wish to remove an item from the Sale tab must open the My Offers tab and click on the post, and then select the Archive from the drop-off menu. If you wish, the ad will be moved to an archive folder and can be received at a later date. Buying a Bump puts a specific item at the very top of the search and view results, so it can be seen easier by potential buyers. It will stay at the top until new items are placed, although sellers can choose to bump their item again at any time. Once the item has been sold, users can rate the buyer by clicking on the item they sold and then clicking on Rate Buyer. The number from one to five can be given with five being the highest rated.
