Few things come in as handy as a compass- and rarely can you find one when you need. Compus is a simple compass app to find your bearings on the go. A clean compass in your pocket, though too simplistic. While every iPhone is equipped with a standard Compass app, its accuracy is far from ideal. Compus is an alternative iOS compass app. It uses the phone's magnetometer to determine its real-time orientation relative to the Earth's magnetic field. The app is extremely simplistic, to the point of being pretty bare dice. If there are no talk options or settings to set up, Compus is basic as the compass gets. You can see your current coordinates and cardinal orientation. You can also determine the angle that shapes your current orientation with the true North. The angle is expressed in standard degrees. No other corner units are offered. Compus can be downloaded for free, supported by ads that interrupt the compass every few minutes. Adding insult to injury, many of them don't have a visible exit button. They leave you with no choice but to leave the app or click on the ad. Where can you run this program? Compus should work seamlessly on any iOS 7 (or newer version) device equipped with a magnetometer. It's also compatible with Retina displays on the iPhone 4. Is there a better alternative? Yes. If you need a larger multi-team compass app, you have an Altimeter GPS Pro that also measures height and other variables. For a simple compass to navigate, Commander Compass has a super useful map overlays. Compus is not the worst compass app you can find, but it is more limited than most compass applications on the market. This is hardly an improvement over the built-in iPhone compass app. Although convenient as a last resort, the user experience surrounding the ads is very disappointing. Should you download it? No. Compus lacks any options or special features, while ads that disrupt normal use. The built-in compass is quite equipped. Disney is a streaming app for a wide selection of Disney-produced shows. Full WhatsApp messaging service can use WiFi connections that go far beyond basic calls and texts with amazing group capabilities and secure chats. Facebook-owned WhatsApp has a clean and clear ad-free interface without memory hogging. More than 1 billion people in more than 180 countries use WhatsApp. Call or send a text whenever you want - there will never be a charge for incoming or outgoing calls or messages. WhatsApp connects the world with a WiFi connection for a personal message, like texting, but with a twist. WhatsApp is a safe, free way to send a message. You never have to worry about someone else stumbling over your personal texts, images or videos. The latest versions of WhatsApp have all-to-end encryption, so your messages are just that: your messages. Your calls and texts are always safe. No one, not even WhatsApp, can get into your messages and read, watch or listen to them. A quick start with WhatsAppGetting started with WhatsApp easily. Skip the hassle of hunting down contacts from the service. WhatsApp adds connections from your phone's contact list to the snap. Bypass the email mess or the nuisance of file-me-a-side applications. PDF files, spreadsheets, slideshows, and documents up to 100 megabytes are allowed, so you can move on to the information you want to get people who need it to be not a problem. Tell everyone the good news. Using broadcast lists, send one message once to the contacts you want without pesky mass invites. With WhatsApp, the orest is a thing of the past. Well, almost. WhatsApp removes guesses. you can see that your message has been delivered and if it has been read, with check marks like Skype and Telegram. The WhatsApp groups feature where WhatsApp excels. Think of it as a community community board under your control. Creating groups quickly. Open a contact list, select friends or family, and then slap on the name. Give different groups different names to keep all your important contacts separate. Make groups for colleagues, fantasy football friends, and for anyone planning the next family reunion. Share the next night from locations or alert the group about your promotion work. As a group administrator, you can invite people to join your group in one of three ways. You can touch the person you want to invite, click More and then Group Information. Or you can hold a certain group to the left of the chat button by clicking More and then Group Info. Copy the link or share it. Or memories of 2005 with the scanned code. The only downside to forming a group is this: the link is shared by someone in the group. It's not a dictatorship, so if Uncle Eddie decides to invite a strange cousin of Al to a family reunion planning group, there's nothing you can do about it. WhatsApp can help you prevent a group control team crash. If your team doesn't need the ability to respond to a message every time you publish an update, you can set up a group so only administrators have those credentials. You can make any and every admin, but no one can change your admin status. If you want to reset the admin status shackles, you'll have to leave the group. If you have been invited to a group in Telegram, the service will keep your phone number secret and only display your name and image. Online or last seen timestamps See if your friend is online or find out when your friend last used WhatsApp with the last seen time stamp feature. If your friend is tagged as online, does that mean their WhatsApp is running in the background and connected to the internet. Turn off the blue ticks on WhatsApp to get around the instant response pressure. If your boss or needy friend also uses WhatsApp as soon as they see read the receipts, there is no pretending that you were too busy to respond. Please note, however, if you turn off reading receipts, you will no longer see reading the receipts of others. For all the great free WhatsApp features, there is a downside for video lovers. WhatsApp has a 16 megabyte cap on the video. While you can switch your camera to low resolution for longer videos, other iPhone messaging apps, such as Telegram and Skype, offer significantly larger media files. Telegram is a close competitor of WhatsApp - it even bears a resemblance to the minimalist Application. Telegram and Viber Messenger offer secure connections with one additional step, the ability to set the message for self-destruction and disappear. However, WhatsApp rises above messaging apps such as Viber and Kik because it's easy to start chatting. WhatsApp does not require a profile. You Are You you need to ask for a username or wait for a link to contact someone on your contact list if you have their phone number. Anyone who has your number can find you in the app and send a message. No one can hide behind a fake identity either. WhatsApp cuts through the fakes. Sending a message is quick. It is not possible to edit a message. Other iPhone messaging services, such as Telegram, offer editing on the internet. WhatsApp has yet to jump on board, so if you make a mistake, you're stuck with it. Where can I run this program? WhatsApp works on iOS 8.0 and later. You and your BFF have iPhones, the rest of the gang have phones with other operating systems. How do you chat group? Whatsapp. WhatsApp may have started on Android and iOS, but it makes one better by working on tablets, the internet, desktop computers and other smartphone brands. The cross-platform instant messaging service WhatsApp provides unwavering reliability while freeing up any privacy concerns on the Internet. Transparency of messaging, group control and international capabilities make WhatsApp mandatory free download. Even Grandma can get into it. Should I download it?
