Task-2 technology thrives not by day, but by day, and as we continue to update the latest news and current affairs, new opportunities are being explored. Therefore, according to enough people, the traditional way of reading newspapers will disappear. I don't totally agree with it because a regular newspaper is the easiest and cheapest way to get news. To get started, there are several reasons why traditional ways of getting news are still popular. First, reading newspapers has become a hot habit for many people. Everyone from the rich or middle class seen desperately waiting for paper in the morning and enjoying it reading with a cup of tea. It is also a portable, cheapest way to learn about global activity. It can be seen from one place to another in a bag and get at an economical price. It's so convenient and just continuing to flip pages can make you omniscient. Secondly, electricity and other appliances are not required. Also, other attachments like the icing on the cake. For example, times in the Indian subcontinent have several investments, such as women's fashion, career guide, culinary arts and so on. However, there is no doubt that technology has taken a radical approach to reading For example, video video a full and clear look at reading, except that we can download, share and pass it on to our relatives and friends. Needless to say, technophobia will have no place in this ever-developed modern world. In conclusion, the lives of people are strongly influenced by advanced technological versions, but in my view it will not pose a threat to the existence of traditional newspapers and magazines. NOTE: AN IMPRESSIVE INTRODUCTION WITH PROPER REPHRASING IS A MAJOR KEY FACTOR TO GET THE DESIRED SCORE IN IELTS WRITING TASK 2 QUESTION ANSWER. To what extent do you agree or disagree. Children form the backbone of each country. Thus, there are people who tend to believe that young people should be encouraged to start social work, because they will lead to the prosperity of society and the individualistic growth of young people themselves. I also believe that this motivation has more advantages than its drawbacks. To begin with, children's social work can be easily linked to personal development, because, during this drive, they tend to communicate with different people, leading to polished verbal skills. For example, if they start persuading villagers to send their children to school, they need to be so persuasive along with developed verbal skills to deal with different people out there. This improved skills will help them throughout their lives in every arena. In addition, you can learn the true values of life, such as tolerance, patience, team spirit, cooperation. In addition, the young mind serves the country with full enthusiasm, which gives a sense of self-realization and self-fulfillment. This dignity fills them with self-confidence and patriotic feeling. Also going and experiencing numerous cultures and traditions make their horizon so wide that add another feather to their cover. However, it is indeed said, no rose without thrones. Is it possible to ignore the shortcomings of this initiation? Children go to school, participate in indifferent educational activities, are pressured by their peers, parents and teachers, and in a competitive world they should not be expected to serve society without their own benefits. Such pressure can cause resentment in their minds. In conclusion, I believe the notion of a teenager doing unpaid work is really good, but proper supervision and care should be provided to avoid negative consequences. NOTE: ALWAYS SPEND AT LEAST FOUR OR FIVE MINUTES PLANNING YOUR IDEAS BEFORE YOU START WRITING ANSWERS TO IELTS WRITING TASK 2 QUESTIONS. 3. Do children behave better when they are physically punished or rewarded? Children are the future of the nation, and how they should be chased is a debatable issue. Some people believe that they should be exposed punishment, while others say, constant appreciation is required for them. In my opinion, these arguments need proper study of the study of forming an opinion. To begin with, there are many benefits of giving rewards to children, above all, appreciation and verbal praise can have a magical effect on children's behavior, because when they are valued for good behavior they learn about the value of good behavior and try to keep going with it. The more they work with positive comments, the more confident they will be. On the other hand, children who are subjected to artificial physical punishment are treated with a lack of self-confidence. A survey of children's behaviour showed that a child who had been subjected to punitive action was more aggressive and violent than other people. Therefore, beating a child can never be fruitful. On the contrary, there is no denying the fact that learning the proverbial and ferocious mind is a hard nut to crack, because it is true that the core is only logic for fools. Moreover, some children repeat mistakes even after being warned and punished, such stubbornness forces parents and guardians to beat them. Needless to say, excessive pampering can have a negative impact on children. In this present scenario, parents have one or two children, and this pampering distracts them from their path. In conclusion, children have gentle kidneys and nurturing them really is a major duty. Thus, a fair judgment about behavior is required for a good upbringing. NOTE: IN IELTS WRITING TASK 2 QUESTION EXAMINER ANSWERS WILL EVALUATE THE CONSISTENCY AND COHESION OF YOUR ANSWER. THEY WILL JUDGE HOW YOUR IDEAS ARE ORGANIZED AND RELATED TO MEANING. Children are the gentle kidneys of society, and they must learn the true values of life. Therefore, some people tend to believe that they should be imbued with a sense of competition, while others believe that they need to master the values of cooperation. I highlight the pros and cons of both before reaching any opinion. To begin with, there are many reasons why children should have will have will have value? First, competition motivates young people to accelerate their efforts to achieve a higher level of education and other activities. They start doing work to compete with others and understand the value of hard work. This dedication and hard work help them to come first everywhere. Secondly, the values instilled in children by self-confidence and self-justification border on. When they engage in activities and compete with others, they are more likely to have a sense of self-achievement and fulfillment. They feel worthy that provide them with a balanced and peaceful mind. They tend to become self-reliant, and this leads to better decisions of speaking ability in them. In addition, the sense of completion is Hours. Undoubtedly, in the modern era, people from childhood to adults, face the completion of the end The school has a dance competition, a race competition, a poetry contest, and when they grow up as adults, they face competition in taking a job, taking college admissions and even facing competition for the exam. Therefore, the value is essential. On the other hand, there is no need to talk about the importance of instilling the value of cooperation. This is the only feeling by which a child can learn teamwork, team spirit, coexistence, tolerance and patience. Moreover, if history is seen, it will become quite obvious that the known icons of society are only those who helped and sacrificed themselves. An egocentric person cannot earn fame in society. Second, the incessant preaching of competition can lead to competition for peers and others. These feelings of rivalry take no time, turning to jealousy and personal grievances. A heart full of jealousy for others can never be good for oneself and for others. In conclusion, I believe that after evaluating both competitive and shared values, both values have their meaning. Thus, the child should be brought up by transferring both equally. NOTE: A WIDE RANGE OF LEXICAL RESOURCES IS ONE OF FOUR PARAMETERS TESTED BY AN EXPERT. SO IN YOUR IELTS WRITING TASK 2 QUESTION THE ANSWER IS TO AVOID REPEATING WORDS. TRY READING IELTS WRITING A TASK 2 EXAMPLE ANSWERS IN PRACTICE. To what extent do you agree or disagree. Art is the externalization of individual skills and reflects the heritage of the country. Nowadays art seems to be losing its value due to less concern on the part of the government, however, I feel that art still requires being given more value than other necessities of any nation. To begin with, there are many reasons why art should be the priority of any country? First of all, it is the best source of income for the state. Museums, art galleries and music concerts are a place where you can get a beautiful income. Fascinating sculptures, beautifully engraved paintings of famous artists decorate the beauty of museums and attract tourists. Undoubtedly, these tourists are the largest source of income. These tourists are crowded in large numbers at these historic sites and monuments that help promote local crafts, resulting in providing income for small industries. Secondly, art is a cultural and historical reflection of each country. It is a real asset of each country, which brings uniqueness and pride to each country, and if the fund is not allocated by the government, it will be difficult to keep it alive. However, some opponents of the arts say that spending public money on the arts hinders the development of the country in good infrastructure, a road system, an efficient transport system and health facilities. In addition, the allocation of money for education and health facilities is certainly certainly literacy and the well-being of the nation, which helps the country grow. In conclusion, I want to say that art is indeed an integral part of every country, so the government must fund art museums and promote the values of artists in order to preserve and preserve glorify the history of the country otherwise artists and art will be lost in oblivion. NOTE: WHEN ANSWERING AN IELTS 2 WRITING TASK, YOU NEVER USE NOTES OR BULLET POINTS. LANGUAGE SHOULD BE FORMAL, WHILE AVOIDING ABBREVIATIONS. Do you agree with this statement and do not agree with it? Technology thrives not by day, but by day, and it certainly affects traditional values. I believe that in this technological world, traditional values will inevitably disappear. To begin with, there are many reasons why these traditional values have no existence in this modern world. First of all, in this fast-paced world, everyone helps with a mobile phone to stay in touch with their family and friends. However, in the old days people used to send emails and stand in long lines on S.T.D and I.S.D just for the maturity of a single call. This progress in communication has proven that traditional skills stand for nothing. Second, technology has changed the fashion world. People used to work knitting, sewing and designing by hand, but now machines have made every task easier and more comfortable. To substantiate their point, many of the fashion design students have been seen depicting photos of models themselves to test color compatibility, but now, this work is done in seconds on multifaceted advanced software. Also, hardly anyone has seen buying a jug for cool water because of the invention of refrigerators. In conclusion, the evolution of modern technology is a continuous process, so labour-intensive traditional methods will not be able to sustain the pace of these latest trends. hence, it is useless and wasting time to save them. NOTE: THE EXAMINER EVALUATE THE GRAMMATICAL ACCURACY AND THE TYPES OF SENTENCE STRUCTURE THAT YOU USE IN EXPLAINING. THIS IS ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT TIPS FOR WRITING TASKS 2 THAT EVERY STUDENT SHOULD KNOW ABOUT. To what extent do you agree or disagree? Art is the externalization of an artist's skills. Thus, there are people who are in favor to give complete freedom to artists; however, others were free to oppose that view. In my opinion, freedom is necessary more, but there must be proper surveillance of their work to avoid any unpleasant situation. To begin with, there are many reasons why some people are advocating for giving complete freedom to artists. First of all, if they are free from any kind of suppression that helps them all social issues of society without fear. They expose cancer spots and ask society to A what. Any type of conclusion will not allow them to express their thoughts. Secondly, these creative artists are the nerve of every nation because of their extraordinary skills; If they work freely, they undoubtedly have the potential to make a masterpiece that brings recognition to every country on the world map. However, I believe that full autonomy can have a negative impact on the person and on society, because many times artists have seen a picture of any unwanted picture, adding any anti-social dialogue to films that lead to communal unrest and hurt the feelings of the people. Such actions cost people's lives. For example, once in a popular movie, some Hindu gods are shown begging. This film not only drew criticism from Hindu society, but also caused riots that ended in the death of some people. Therefore, they should not be given complete freedom. To sum up though, artists should be given full freedom to study their creativity yet the government must ensure that this very act cannot hurt others' feelings. NOTE: IN IELTS WRITING TASK 2 QUESTION THE ANSWER YOU WILL BE LOSE MARKS IF YOU COPY A STATEMENT OR WORDS OUT OF A QUESTION. 8. Some people believe that art is an important subject for children in school, while others think it is a waste of time. Discuss both opinions and give your opinion. There has always been a raging debate over whether art is an important subject for children in schools or whether it can be neglected in the opinions of other important issues. I'm going to explore both aspects in further paragraphs before forming an opinion in the latter. To begin with, on the one hand of the coin, there are many reasons to support other important items in the school curriculum for children: first, modern technologies, such as computer literacy, have become the necessity of an hour. It is one of the most sought-after skills for work in every sector. If they spend most of their time studying art they won't be able to face the throat-slit contests of this script. In addition, knowledge of basic subjects such as mathematics, science is essential in all fields. Secondly, art, despite the high praise, still provide no career growth, because most areas like engineering, marketing, IT professionals and managers are found graduated and post graduated in these important subjects. On the other hand, art is a creative skill that has a remarkable power of imagination. It provides wings of fantasy and expresses feelings without exchanging words. To illustrate, as soon as I came across a picture in which the difference between rich and poor in distress was depicted only through painting. In addition, music is also a work of art and works as a healing in a troubled world. Second, artists bring laurels to the country across the and to ensure that the country's cultural heritage is not extinct. For this they are highly paid and valued. This kind of respect is no less than a thriving career. In conclusion, I would like to say that, in my opinion, the choice of subjects should be left to the students in which they are interested, because it is this interest that helps them to grow in their lives. NOTE: EACH IELTS APPLICANT MUST LEARN ALL FOUR TYPES OF SENTENCE STRUCTURE IT WILL ASSIST YOU IN GIVING IELTS THE WRITING OF THE 2 QUESTION QUESTION ANSWER. 9. The way many people interact with each other has now changed because of technology. How has technology affected the types of relationships people make? Was it a positive or negative development? Give reasons for your response and include any relevant examples from your own knowledge or experience. Write at least 250 words. Technology thrives not by day, but by day in every area, and communication is no exception. However, this huge change in the way of interaction cannot be considered fruitful directly because of its certain shortcomings, which cause a debate about its positive and negative effects. With regard to positive development, one of the main advantages is that technology has facilitated and simplified communication. Nowadays, people are hardly one click away from the near and expensive one because of modern events like Skype, video conferencing, Whatsapp and social networks like Facebook. These achievements have largely made everyone social. Secondly, there is a huge chance that letters and telegrams will be sent in order to call. People used to stand in long lines at S.T.D and I.S.D. stands, but now the mobile phone and advanced gizmos make it easier for everyone to interact. On the other hand, some flaws cannot be ignored, as today's people not only spend a lot of time using computers, but also do not prefer to meet their friends and relatives face to face, which leads to a faded relationship. For example, one of my childhood friends preferred to meet me in person on different occasions, both at the festival and on birthdays, but nowadays, she sends messages to wishing me and send a greeting to me in my mail. Even most family members suffer from asphyxia, the disease sparks from isolation. This is a really troubling issue for a simulated relationship. To sum up, despite the many shortcomings, no one can afford to turn face to face from this ever-fast modern technology that should make our lives easier. NOTE: CANDIDATES CAN READ ARTICLES OF THEIR INTERESTS FROM NEWSPAPERS AND MAGAZINES TO HAVE A FAIR UNDERSTANDING OF GRAMMATICAL RULES AND VOCABULARY. 10. Some experts believe that it is better for children to start learning a foreign language in primary school rather than in secondary school. Do the benefits outweigh Disadvantages? It is true that acquiring a language is a complex process. Therefore, it is desirable to teach a foreign language in primary school than the average one. To me, the merits of this concept were beyond its flaws. For a start, there are numerous benefits of teaching a foreign language to children at an early age. First of all, children have a receptive mind with a good grip force. This age is a stage of learning life. Everything you learn at the age of a child can remember longer in life. In addition, children are less selfish and are not afraid to make a learning error. Because failures are pillars of success while continuous practice they can reach a reasonable level of language. Undoubtedly, language consists of different dialects, grammatical rules, intonations, about annotation, syntax functions and style. By practicing them, the child may have unsurpassed language skills. Second, everyone is in a crazy race to fly the board in this modern scenario and have a foreign language skills to equip them to communicate freely for easy survival. In addition, polished communication skills have become a necessity in the hour of competition. However, it is also the fact that going to school, doing homework, taking part in extracurricular activities is itself a laborious activity for students. If they are exposing regular language teaching sessions that will make them pressured and psychologically ill. This type of burden will hinder their physical, mental and psychological growth. In conclusion, the teaching of a foreign language may exacerbate their existing burden, but preparing the young mind for further survival has become a must through the inoculation of language skills. 11. Most schools offer physical education to their students. Why does it matter? Should physical education be compulsory or optional? Physical education programs are of paramount importance in the school curriculum, so there are a number of opinions that physical education should be mandatory because of its mental and physical health benefits to the student, however, some oppose it. I will discuss both types of opinions before concluding. To begin with, it has undoubtedly been proven that physical activity is an integral part of a healthy lifestyle. Students who are subjected to these types of exercise can increase their stamina and resistance to power. According to medical science, a strong immune system helps prevent certain diseases such as diabetes, obesity and indigestion. This not only improves the endurance of the body, but also make one mentally strong. In addition, a recent study has shown that indulgence in this activity does not allow students to sneak time for electronic gadgets. Also programs are very useful for instilling values of team spirit, spirit, Coexistence. Thus, the range of benefits makes it an inevitable part of the school curriculum... On the other hand, there is a situation and certain circumstances when the physical program must be sacrificed. Students with a particular disability and illness should not be forced to be a part of it. Their violations prevent them from being active and physically enthusiastic. Indeed, there is a requirement to have it optional, but it is also necessary to understand that they must be equipped with any other educational aspects, such as computer counting and soft skills. In conclusion, physical education should not be optional because it provides physical and mental growth for students, but the circumstances surrounding violations must be remembered. Note: - To address each issue in the statement is very advisable for a high score. 12. What are the main reasons and solutions for re-offending? Ans. Each country has its own laws to fight crime and criminals. However, it is now clear that many offenders repeat crimes even after punishment. This has indeed become a matter of concern for several reasons, and I think these kinds of problems need to be addressed immediately. To begin with, these criminals are undoubtedly influenced by causes such as social exclusion, unemployment, psychological deficiencies and lack of education. Unfortunately, they are very often humiliated by society people who bother them mentally and pull them into a constant state of depression. An unbalanced mental state never allows them to get rid of their criminal record. In addition, their past criminal past leaves them in the trouble of unemployment. Without finding a way to meet their two goals, they begin to follow the same path of destruction. Lack of knowledge and skills is another contributing factor. It is true that there is no problem without a solution. The government should get out of a long sleep and initiate rehabilitation programs for them in which they should be provided with vocational training for self-employment. Another sustainable approach is psychological nutrition, in which they can be subjected to regular spiritual and religious lectures. This will help them keep them away from criminal activity. In addition, a person must do something at the grassroots level by remaining sympathetic to them, as Gandhi Ji said: I hate sin, not sinner. Indeed, the aforementioned measures are badly needed to curb the problem, as the stitch-up on time saves nine. Note: - Organize ideas into separate paragraphs. You will lose points if you do not divide the essay into paragraphs. Every year several languages die out. Some people think it doesn't matter because life will be easier if there are fewer languages in the world. To what extent do you agree or disagree with this Language is the best way to communicate. However, it is clear that many languages are disappearing in this modern era. There are people who believe that it will be convenient if there are fewer languages around the world. I also support this view more. Let's start with the fact that to justify my concept, first of all, the fewer languages, the easier communication. There will be no language barrier and exchange of ideas between people, which will eventually help in the development of harmonious relations. In addition, this will not only lead to the prosperity of relations between the masses, but will also make political relations strong, as there will be a better chance of sharing scientific research and inventions. In addition, having fewer languages will be a boon for students and businessmen. Survival in other countries will be convenient. Thus, the disappearance of some languages appears to have a more positive impact on the world. To some extent, however, it is undeniable that linguistic diversity is a testament to the richness of culture and tradition. Fewer languages means fewer language skills. These languages are the identity of a particular community and tribe, since languages are closely linked to the culture of the individual, and the destruction of these languages has a negative impact on a diverse culture. In summary, however, regional languages seemed to need to be retained, but good psychological relationships would be established between people because of the apparent language barriers. Some say that the government should destroy the entire historic building and replace them with modern buildings. Do you agree or disagree? It is an indisputable fact that the monuments and historical monuments of each country are their heritage. Surprisingly, there are people who think it's less valuable and want the government to pull it down. In my opinion, this is the greatest asset of each country and deserves respect from citizens. To begin, in the justification of my notion, each country has its own cultural history that exhibits an old civilization. These historic sites are priceless and irreplaceable. It's the only way to think about the next generation about our ancestors and their victims. In addition, visiting these places will help us learn from the omission of our ancestor and ensure a better course of action. In addition, these places are the best source of income for the Government. Tourists visit different places and their expenses help the government to improve the country's infrastructure. In addition, tourists are interested in buying crafts, which leads to the growth of small-scale industry. This increases the flow of foreign money. First of all the issues are quite obvious that the visit of tourists leads to a good connection between people around the world. In conclusion, I feel that the preservation of websites mean preserving the history of the country. It is of paramount importance because of its range of benefits for existing and future generations.
