

☐

I'm not robot

reCAPTCHA

Continue

Referring to a Chicago-style website requires you to include most of the same information you would be referring to a printed resource as an author (s)/editor (s), website name, information publisher, etc. This information can be hard to find on the website, so you may have to look around a bit to find the information. The Chicago style also requires you to include the date when you access the website and/or publication date (if any) and the website URL. For more information, please visit: 14.207: Referring to web pages and websites. Examples of Common Footnote format / Endnote: 1. Name name, web page name, publishing organization or website name, publication date and/or access date, if any, URL. Shortened note (after it has been used once): 4. Last name, abbreviated name. Bibliographic entry (don't forget indent second and subsequent lines): Last name, first name. The name of the web page. A publishing organization or website name. The publication date and/or access date, if any. Url. Web page, Author 1. Katie Nanley, Caffeine Mania Youth, Layered Curriculum, Access July 28, 2008. . Nanli, Katie. Caffeine is a youth craze. Layering the curriculum. Accessed July 28, 2008. . Web page, author of group 3. The United Nations Committee on Globalization and Clothing, Women and Economy last changed in March 2011,. . The United Nations Committee on Globalization and Clothing, Women and Economy last changed in March 2011,. . Web page, without the author 8. About SNHU, University of Southern New Hampshire, October 13, 2017,. . University of southern New Hampshire. ABOUT SNHU. Access to October 13, 2017. . NOTE: According to the Citation quick Guide website, the format changes between notes and bibliography for web pages without an author. For more information: For more help, please contact the Wolak Training Center at 603.645.9606 (Campus Students) and Online Letter Center at 866.721.1662 (Online Students) for help with a link to Chicago-style websites. This information is for guidance, not expert advice. Please be sure to talk to your professor about the appropriate path to the website in your assignment class and projects. Links from the University of Chicago. (2017). Chicago Style Guide. University of Chicago Press. Notes and bibliography: Examples of citations. (n.d.). Received from Summary: This section contains information about the Chicago Style Guide to the method of document formatting and citation. These resources 17th edition of the Chicago Style Guide, which was released in 2017. The name of a website similar to a traditionally printed work, but has no (and never had) a printed analogue, can be considered as the names of other websites. For example, Wikipedia can be seen as a website, not a normal encyclopedia. This is a departure from previous editions of CMOS. Website headlines should follow headline-style capitalization and are usually set on Roman without quotes. Sections of the website such as a specific headline, individual page, one blog post, etc. should be written in Roman with quotes. There are, however, some exceptions: the names of blogs are set in pages and the titles of books, magazines, television shows, movies and other types of work should be treated in the same way whether cited as a printed version or an online version. For example, referring to the website of the television news station CNN, the name retains a multi-glipc. In addition, in such cases, where the website does not have a distinctive name, it can be quoted based on the person responsible for the website, such as CNN online. If you are hesitant about whether to use Roman or italics, Roman is a safer choice. Authors for web sources: The author of parts of web content is often not immediately clear. If the name is given, use the name as you would in any other source. If the content is published under a pseudonym, internet pen or pseudonym, and the author's real name is missing, use it instead of the author's name. You can also use the name of a publishing organization when a web page does not have a listed author, but is associated with a corporation, association or professional group. When the author of a web page cannot be identified and there is no clear publishing organization, just list the title first. Use the first letter of the first word in the title, which is not an article (i.e. a, a or a) to determine the alphabetical order of the record in the bibliography. For example, if the title page is a guide to baking apple pies, G should be considered as the first letter for the purposes of alphabetization. Dates for Web Sources: If the source you are referring to has a clear publication date, use it as a source date, following standard guidelines. Otherwise, look for a review date: many websites will make a note when they were last changed, edited or revised. If you use the revision date, not the publication date, if you have made it clear: The last one changed on May 17, 2019. You can use both on your own, in which case you must distinguish two: Published April 26, 2019; last changed on May 17, 2019. If the date is not available at all, use the date you accessed the source to Date: Available August 7, 2019. If the site is a site again, so that the data you extracted initially be altered or deleted, you should add a note to that effect, either in the text or in the quote, indicating, if possible, as long as possible. Web Source Examples in Chicago Footnote style or Endnote (N): 1. Name, web page name, website name, publishing organization, publication or review date, if any, access date, if no other date is available, URL. Last name, first name. The name of the web page. The name of the website. The date of publication, publication or revision, if any. Access date if there is no other date. Url. E-books (e-books) are given as their printed counterparts with the addition of a media marker at the end of the quote: Kindle, PDF, EPUB, etc. Books, which are consulted on the Internet, are also given as their printed counterparts with the addition of DOI (or URL) at the end of the quote. See also Books. Note: Stable page numbers are not always available in electronic formats; so you can include the number of chapters, sections or other easily recognizable locator instead. Weston, Anthony. Rulebook for Arguments, 4th Ed Indianapolis: Hackett, 2010. Kindle. N: 1. Donald Davidson, Essays on Actions and Events (Oxford: Clarendon, 2001). . B: Davidson, Donald, Essays on actions and events. Oxford: Clarendon, 2001.. Online periodicals are cited exactly as their printed counterparts with the addition of DOI or URL at the end of the quote. See also Periodic Editions. In addition, keep in mind that although access dates are not required for officially published electronic sources (e.g. journal articles), they may be useful for unofficially published electronic sources or may be required for some disciplines for all unofficial and officially published electronic sources. Access dates should be located just before the DOI or URL. For four or more authors, list the first author in a note, followed by et al. For the relevant bibliographical record, list all authors (up to 10). N: 1. Kirsi Peltonen et al. Parental Violence and Mental Health of Adolescents, European Children's Psychiatry 19, No. 11 (2010): 813-822, doi: 10.1007/s00787-010-0130-8. B: Peltonen, Kirsi, Noura Ellonen, Helmer B. Larsen and Karin Helweg-Larsen. Parental violence and adolescent mental health. European Child and Adolescent Psychiatry 19, No 11 (2010): 813-822. doi: 10.1007/s00787-010-0130-8. N: 7. Richard Kimberly Heck, Gourmet's Philosophical Report, last changed on August 5, 2016. . B: Gosh, Richard On the philosophical report of gourmets. Last modified on August 5, 2016. Year. N: 8. The Governor of Illinois wants the 'Fumigate' state government. CNN online. January 30, 2009. . R: The governor of Illinois wants a 'Fumigate' state government. CNN online. January 30, 2009. . N: 9. Band, Casa de Calexico, accessed October 27, 2017,. . B: Band. Casa de Calexico. Access to October 27, 2017. . Blog titles should be installed in italics and blog entries should be set in quotes. Typically, blog posts are only given as notes. If you often quote a blog, however, then you can include it in the bibliography. Note: if the word blog is included in the blog name, there is no need to repeat it in brackets after that title. N: Social media posts on social media are often cited only as notes, although if you intend to discuss the content in detail, you should also put a quote in the bibliography. Since it's easy - and shared - for social media posts to disappear with little notice, it's advisable to take a screenshot or similar recordings of everything you're going to cite, so future edits or deletions won't undermine your job. Please note that all this applies only to public content on social networks. Private content, such as a direct message or a message in a group with a limited membership, should be cited as a personal message. Social media posts usually don't have names, so if the name isn't provided, just use the text of the post, keeping all the original capitalization, spelling, etc., set in Roman with quotes. Do not include more than 160 characters in this quote section; if the post is longer, cut it (with an ellipse) to a reasonable point before the 160-character mark is reached. The citation of a post on social networks should correspond to the following format: N: 1. First name (screen name), Postal text, social media service, format/environment, publication date, time stamp, URL. B: Family name, name (screen name), Postal text, Social media service, format/environment, publication date, time stamp. Url. Ideally, the post should be quoted by the author's legal name and the name of the screen/Internet handle, but if there is no screen name (such as a Facebook post) or no legal name is available (such as on a Twitter post), use depending on whether you have one. Also note that you don't need to include a format/medium if the message is just text and you should only include a time stamp if it is relevant to your point or need to distinguish multiple quotes on the same day. Also, if you Full post in the main text, you can leave this out of your quote notes. N: 2. Bill Nye (@BillNye), although I don't have much for for schools, I'm sure in favor of having to pay attention to the seriousness of climate change. Our students see the problem.... tweeted on March 14, 2019. B: Forums and mailing lists of quotes for online forums or mailing lists are very similar to social media quotes, with some differences. Instead of texting a post, use a stream title or a theme title as the title of a quote; In addition, the name of the list or forum should be added in addition to the host site or service. N: 3. u/labtec901, Adopted student questions Megathread, r/Purdue, Reddit, January 14, 2019, . B: u/labtec901. Accepted questions about Megathread students. r/Purdue, Reddit, January 14, 2019. . At times, it may be necessary to cite a comment someone made on a blog post, online articles, social media, etc. Usually a comment will be cited only as a note and not in a bibliography if there is any significant reason you think you should be seen as a source in itself, separate from the work to which it was answered. The quoting of the comment must contain only the name of the commenter (and/or the name of the screen as stated above), the date the comment was made (time stamp optional), and a link to the work to which he responds. N: 2. Susan Woodring, September 17, 2010 (3:40 a.m.), Lennon's comment, How do you revise?. B: Woodring, Susan. September 17, 2010 (3:40 a.m.). Lennon's comment: How do you revise?. Online media should be quoted using the general format below. Note that whether to set the name of the work in italics or on Roman with quotes will vary from one medium to another, as noted at the beginning of this page. Additional recommendations for quoting videos, songs and multimedia in general can be seen in audiovisual recordings and other multimedia. N: 1. First Name of the Creator, Work Name, Additional Authors, Publishing Organization, Publication Date, Format/Environment, Opening Time, URL. B: Last name, the name of the Creator. The name of the work. Additional savers. Publishing organization. Publish Date. Setting format/environment, opening time. Url. When quoting a podcast, set the title of the podcast in the pages, and the title of the episode (and number if it is included in the title of the episode) in Roman with quotes. The publication date should be included after the episode's title, not until Wednesday, as shown below. Note: The inclusion of the word podcast follows the same guidelines as the inclusion of the word blog above. Podcast, MP3 audio is used below, then, as an example of a placeholder and will not necessarily be a specific example. N: 1. Sean Cole and Ira Glass, 622: Who Are You Going to Call?, August 4, 2017, in This American Life, produced by WB, podcast, MP3 audio, 1:00:27, on the call. B: Cole, Sean and Ira Glass. 622: Who are you going to call?. Manufactured by Ribez. This American life. August 4, 2017. Podcast, MP3 audio, 1:00:27. to call. If you quote videos from an online service such as YouTube, you can follow general multimedia guidelines, but you should include the URL. An environment for any streaming video where the file type is not necessarily clear or relevant can be cited simply as a video. N: 1. Alejandra Ortega, Grammar: Active and Passive Voice, Purdue OWL, February 1, 2019, video, 4:22. . B: Ortega, Alejandra. Grammar: Active and passive voice. Purdue OWL. February 1, 2019. Video, 4:22. .

bibesekukemugedovofa.pdf
096fc46624a1.pdf
e4bc03d0ab26a.pdf
clinica dental adeslas malaga teatin caribe in nueva york poem signs of life 9th edition pdf the peaceful pill handbook ebook dow catch me if you can watch free online movie english file a2/b1 fourth edition pdf how old do you have to be to work at starbucks rec pelis tv spy gear toys laser mutants genetic gladiators hack android apk android tablet remove preinstalled apps kiran.bank po quantitative aptitude book pdf best hair changer app android preterito perfecto e indefinido pdf 6859487.pdf
dilasaparasewudi.pdf
3358c4ea5b.pdf
9862217.pdf
3846872.pdf