The Four Horsemen Tuba/Euphonium quartet came together to perform fresh, lively interpretations of the quartet's standard repertoire, as well as introduce the audience to exciting original music and new transcriptions. All four of us began our journey in a traditional academic setting. After graduating from the University of Kentucky, we soared our individual paths of life - learning, performing, composing, traveling, learning outside music, adopting pets with a quarter of a life of crises, etc. Four riders emerged in 1982 as a professional entertainment group for Kentucky Horse Park in Lexington, Ky. The band performed during the summer for almost a decade. In the 1990s, the riders moved to the student ensemble; its members consisted of undergraduate and graduate students under the tutelage of Dr. Schip Gray. Through many reincarnations, they performed frequently throughout central Kentucky and in chamber music, commissioning new works for the tuba-euphony quartet, regularly performing throughout the country, and working on expanding the repertoire of tuba and euphonium. This latest edition of the quartet consists of George Palton, J.D. Salas, Aaron Meacham and Jeff Barbie. George Palton is active as a tuba/euphonium performer, arranger and educator, and is currently deputy director of admissions to dePaw University School of Music. J.D. Salas is currently an associate professor at Tuba and Euphonium at Stephen F. Austin State University. Aaron Meacham is a composer interested in brass, sacred and brass music who currently works as a medical physicist in northwest Arkansas. Jeff Barbie recently received a DMA from the University of Missouri-Kansas City and works at Indiana University School of Medicine as a evaluation and evaluation specialist. Through our unique combination of the tuba/euphony quartet genre. They are related to their respective basic tools either with d if the same player doubles the tool, or I if an additional player is required. Whenever this happens, we will separate the first four numbers with commas for clarity. Thus, a double cane quartet of 2 oboes, an English horn and a bassoon will look like this: 0.2'1.1,1-0 Note 21 part means 2 oboe plus English horn Names without bracket numbers supposed to use standard instrument protection. Euphonium Tuba Thus, Copeland Fanfare is shown above for 3 pipes, 4 horns, 3 trombones, no Euphonium, 1 Tuba and Tympani. There is no separate number for Bass Trombone, but in general it can be assumed that if there are several parts of the trombone, the lowest part can/should be performed on Bass Trombone. The headlines listed in our catalog without bracket numbers are supposed to use Standard Devices. Next is the Standard Instrumentation: Brass Duet - Pipe and Trombone, or 111.00 Spirit quartet - 2 Pipes, Horn and trombone, or 111.00 Spirit quartet - 2 Pipes, Horn and Trombone, or 211.00 Brass quintet - 2 Pipes, Horn, Trombone and Tuba, or 211.01 Brass Sexte and More - No Standard Tools People often ask us about PJBE or Philip Jones instrument. This special instrument is adopted and perfected by the Philip Jones brass ensemble. It consists of forces 414.01, and often includes percussion and/or Tympani. In addition, there are often doubles in the pipe section - Piccolo and Flugelhorn is the most common. Although it's has become common, it is still not standard as many brass dectets use very different forces, more often with more horns than PJBE. After many titles in our String Ensemble catalog, you'll see a set of four numbers enclosed in brackets, as in this example: Description of AtwellVance's Dance Price (0220) Item: $32599 $8.95 These numbers tell you how much each instrument is in the ensemble. The first number means Violin, the second for Viola, the third for the usual 2110. Headlines without bracket numbers are supposed to use Standard Tooling. Next is considered standard Instrument: String Duet - Viola - String Trio - String Trio - Violin, Viola, Cello - String quartet - 2 Violins, Viola, Cello - String quintet Viola, Cello - String Trio - String Trio - Violin, Viola, Cello - String quartet - 2 Violins, Viola, Cello - String quartet - 2 Violins, Viola, Cello - String quintet Viola, Cello - String quartet - 2 Violins, Viola, Cello - String quartet - 2 Violins, Viola, Cello - String quartet - 2 Violins, Viola, Cello - String Trio - Viola - String quartet - 2 Violins, Viola, Cello - St of the ensemble. The system used above is standard in the orchestra's music field. The first set of numbers (before the dash) represent Woodwinds. A set of numbers after a dash represent brass. Strings are represented by a series of five digits representing the number of each part (first violin, second violin, viola, cello, bass). Other obligatory and solo parts follow the lines: Woodwinds-Brass, Percussion, Strings, Other major supporting tools (piccolo, English horn, bass clarinet, contrabasun, Wagnerian tuba, cornet and euphony) are associated with their respective instruments or with d, if the same player doubles the auxiliary tool, or I, if an additional player is required. Tools shown in brackets are optional and can be omitted. Example 1 - Beethoven: 2,2,2,2-2,0,0, thymp, 44322 Beethoven's example is typical of many classical and early romantic fare. In this case, the winds double (2 flutes, 2 oboes, 2 clarinets and 2 bassoons), and there are two horns and pipes. No low brass. There's Timpani. Strings of standard configuration 44322 (4 first violin, 4 second violin, 3 violas, 2 cellos, 2 basses). Sometimes the lines are simply listed as str, which means 44,322 lines. Example 2 - Jones: (concert band/wind ensemble example) 2'1'ac'bc, 2, SAATB-2'2, 4,3'1,1, tymp, percussion, Bass Guitar Second Example is common to a concert band or wind ensemble piece. This is a fixous work for 2 flutes (plus piccolo), 1 oboe, 3 clarinets plus viola and bass clarinets, 2 bassoons, 5 saxophones (soprano, 2 viola, tenor and bari), 2 trumpets (plus 2 cornet), 3 trombones after bassoon for this band's work. Note also that a separate part of the euphony is attached the trombone with a plus sign. For orchestral music saxophones are at the end (see saxophones below. It is very typical for a group of sets to have multiple copies of parts, especially flute, clarinet, saxophone, trumpet, trombone and percussion. 2d11,1,2-1,1-2.2 (No2), 3.0, perc, tymp, 66432, eb clarinet, SAATB saxophones, trombone solo In the third example we have a rather extreme use of the system. This is an orchestral work for piccolo, 2 flutes (1 of which doubles on piccolo), 1 oboe, 2 clarinets plus additional bass clarinet, 1 bassoon, 2 horns, 2 trumpets (plus extra 2 cornet), 3 trombones, no tuba, percussion, tympanic, 6 first violins, 6 second violins, 4 violas, 3 cellos, 2 double bass, eb clarinet (as an extra chair, not twice) 2 viola, tenor and baritone) and trombone soloist. Note: This system lists Horn in front of the passoon and trombone soloist. Note: This system for both orchestra and group works (in most of the band's scores, the trumpet is preceded by Horn and sometimes the oboe and the bassoon follow the Clarinet). It should also be noted that Euphonium can be doubled either by trombone or Tuba. Typically, the orchestral music (they are rare) will be shown in another instrument place after the strings and in front of the soloist, if any. However, for the band's music, they are usually present and therefore will be listed after bassoon as something similar to SAATB, where S'soprano, A'alto, T'tenor and B'baritone. Letters duplicated (as in A in this example) point to several parts. And finally, Here's another way to visualize the above code sequence: flute (doubles or with optional Piccolo) oboe (double or with additional Euphonium) Timpani String Drums (1st and 2nd Violins, double or with additional Wagner) (double or with additional Euphonium) Timpani String Drums (1st and 2nd Violins, Viola, Cello, Bass) Bass) Mandatory Parts Soloist (s) Page 2 After many titles in our Wind Ensemble catalog, you'll see a set of numbers encased in brackets, as in this example: Description of the Price of Roman-Korsakov querteet in Bb No 1011-1 w/piano-Item: 26746 $28.75 In brackets rooms tell you the exact instrumentation of the ensemble.
