Buying a washing machine is a great investment, so to help you find the best purchase for your money, we put twenty of the latest, including front loaders, and high efficiency top loaders through a host of tough tests. First, and most importantly, we tested the performance of the cleaning. You want to know how well the washer will get the hard stains out of your clothes, so we looked at everything from mustard patches of chocolate milk stains to wine stains, using our slick charts (pictured below) and ran all through different cycles. We then assessed how gentle the washers were on square rags, which shows how they will treat your clothes. Yes, you want them torn and rough, so you get less wear out of them. How much did they vibrate? After all, you don't want vour machine to make such a racket that you can't have a conversation in the next room. Did they remove excess water on the rotation cycle? The drier the clothes, the less time they will spend in the dryer. Finally, we had a group of real people tell us how easy it was to use machines. They told us if the layout of the panel was intuitive or difficult to figure out, even after reading and rereading the manual. To find out which pucks got the highest scores in our results. If you are confused about what type of washing machine you should buy, check out our washing machine buying guide. No matter what configuration you choose best for your family, consider these insider tips before you buy: You can save money (without sacrificing performance or features) by buying a white model. If the comforters are in your wash rotation, check the guide online or contact the manufacturer to find out if the king size will fit in the bath. None of the models we tested could hold more than a comforter the size of a gueen. Is someone in your house allergic or are you just a pure freak? You probably want a washer that can remove bacteria. Check to make sure it has a disinfectant or sanitary cycle that NSF certified. If it's not NSF certified, it might just mean that it uses extra hot water to clean, but doesn't kill germs.
