Students can decide simple expressions involving exhibitors such as 33, (1/2)4, (-5)0, or 8-2, or write multiplication expressions using an exhibitor. Sheets can be made in HTML or PDF format (both easy to print). Options include negative and zero exhibitors, as well as the use of fractions, decimal points, or negative numbers as bases. You can also make sheets that have another operation other than exponentiation (add/subtract/multiply/split credentials). These sheets are most useful in the 6th, 7th and 8th grades, when exhibitors are presented and practiced. Note: variables with exhibitors are not included (for example, practiced in the course of algebra). The basic instructions for sheets Each sheet are generated randomly and thus unique. The answer key is generated automatically and placed on the second page of the file. You can create sheets in either HTML or PDF format - both are easy to print.
