More insight into the golf orbitAbout Golf OrbitGolf Orbit is a two-dimensional golf game in which players can have fun trying to give the golf ball the perfect shot. The idea is to send the ball as far as possible. The Control System of Golf Orbit is very intuitive: at the beginning of each game, we have a semicircle where we are told the power and inclination with which we will hit the ball. An arrow swings on this wheel. The idea is to try to click on the screen at the precise moment when the arrow crosses the green zone, the one with the optimal stroke. Once the shot is done, the trajectory of the ball is out of our hands, and it will be the environment that will decide what will slow or accelerate the advance of the ball. When the ball stops completely, an indicator appears on a small horizontal map that gives us an idea of the distance or proximity we have traveled at the edge of the field.
