October 12, 2020 Version 6.31.2 Fix bugs and improve performance. I like the common, when I'm connected to the Wi-Fi app works perfectly but not on my phone data, several times I'm uninstalled and reinstalled but it didn't help. I hope that this issue will be addressed in the next update. The app deserves 5 stars I give it 1 star before. Update: The cellular date was off, turned it on, and now it's running so the 5 star previous cricinfo app was probably the best on the market. has been doing everything possible in terms of recording, statistics, etc. and this app is a complete failure. You can't find anything. Also, the feature in which it redirects to another page is just a waste, because if that's the case, you don't need an app, you can just go to the Google page and search for whatever you want. In the previous one, you were able to look the last 10 innings of this player and this one is no chance. I've been a big fan of this app, used all my life, and now it's just a waste. Very disappointed and now go to cricbuzz. At the moment it is the best on the market, but still it's not as good as the previous version of cricinfo. One star from me. I hope he goes back to the original. With ever-evolving new technology in all applications like video integration, etc. Cricinfo messed up the main use of such sites, which is to quickly check the scores and watch match timings, International First. Several times you end up going on the home series and scroll through all the completed matches to see future matches plus sometimes you need to scroll through all the domestic competitions live on that day. And subprime Indian experts and too many of them. Giving 3 stars just for being such a long user is probably ten years old, moving on to cricbuzz now, which have less but quality experts and keep it simple.
