Small details matter. Especially when it comes to daily wear, like Churidar and Salwar Kameez, to break boredom, it is quite necessary to create new dimensions in your overall style including changes in the shape of the neck, sleeve pattern, pants .. Etc. If you're wondering where to start, try age-old piping techniques on neck designs. It may not seem like much when you hear us say this. However, if you look at some real churidar pieces where, as these little details have made dramatic distinctions, you will surely take the chance to get them included in your next salwar costume. Here below we curated 13 stylish ways to design your churidar neck with piping. Take inspiration from here and be sure to try them on your outfit. The basic neck design with Piping Sometimes a simple neck design can do to look so at the point using fine piping work. Generally you can go for a contrasting color (your color dupatta talk) to get this pipeline job done. This addition to the chic tie-back same fabric is going to make your cleavage look uber cool. If your churidar is a party wear, then you can opt for a dawn cloth instead of your dupatta hue. Pipeline work with a close neck If you follow the fashion bloggers and Bollywood style icons, close necks are becoming more popular this season. It can be perfectly incorporated into salwars. Of course, just a round neck that hugs the neck can be good, however, it can be completely elevated by having piping work on contrasting shades like below. Printed Pipelines Work If your salwar has too many prints or parts on the tops, then piping work in simple fabric is enough. However, if you are a salwar simple and have printed the bottom, your tops can be spiced-up by adding pipeline works like below. Before tie-ups thread tie ups not only glam up the back churidar. This can be done along with the front neck with a bit of piping work as well. If you need inspiration, check out the below-neck design. Use contrasting colors to make the piping work visible on the tops of the churidar. High neck and piping Next to the round tight neck, the cheesy high neck remains the most fashionable neck design. It was trending everywhere from sari blouses to lehenga tops. So it's time to try this on churidars, and with posh work as below. Mix and matching fully contrasting prints around your neck, sleeves and for other decorations on the bodice will make your tops stand out! Piping's simple job for daily wear random salwars, all you need is a subtle highlight highlight This can be done with simple piping work around the neck and sleeves. Even if your salwar is void of any interesting patterns or decorations, this soft neck height is going to make your outfit look more attractive. Pipelines and buttons If you are bored of simple piping work and would like to try something creative in this area, then consider piping work with buttons to block it. If you need inspiration to try this, check out the picture below. Bold Highlights We've seen how simple piping work around your neck can dramatically improvise your salwar style. For some fabric and color, this is not enough. Especially when the salwar is in conversation, is in deep tinge, then you need bold moments to make the pipeline work striking. In this case, you need 1-2 inch thick piping to work with some dawn details as below. It's such an eye-catching neck style to dry when you salwar is on blunt shades. Pipping and fabric buttons Are just like how the piping work and thread tie the windows together make an interesting duet, fabric buttons also make the best combination with simple piping work. This type of work can be done either on the front right under the neck or even to the shoulder end close to the weapon. Creative fabrics Although most of the time piping work is done on the fabric extracted from your bottom salwar or dupatta, you can give a break in this default path. Instead of the usual ways, try something completely different, like kalamkari or ikat prints for your piping job. This is well said about cotton salwars and jackets. Next time you get a kalamkari sari blouse stitched, be sure to collect the remaining fabric. It can be reused on your salwars for unique piping work. Highlight with a bold hue If you like to know a very effortless way to keep attention on your face and neck, get a piping job on a bold shade like the one below. Make sure it is well-to-do with the basic color palette of your dress; otherwise it will look very bold. Side tip-ups We've watched as thread tie-ups on the front and back neck along with piping work can make your churidar neck look regal, here's another way to do it on your dress. These are some innovative ways to break the boredom on your salwar neck line. Choosing a stand out neck design in itself is not enough to make your neck beautiful, try simple piping work for creative detail: You will be amazed at how great it can make your salwar look!
