To a basic wood chair metal upgrade. The DIY decor project is simple, sleek, and can be finished in the afternoon. A basic upgrade chair with smart stencil and spray paint. A metal and geometric pattern gives this chair a unique finish that is both modern and glam. Combining a natural wood finish and metal pattern creates contemporary contrast, but the technique will also work on a solid-colored chair. Customize the look using various shapes, such as diamonds or octagons, to create your own pattern. See more ways to decorate with geometric patterns. Wood glue vinyl sheet or triple chair newspaper painters tape sandpaper vine fabric spray metal light color varnish tracking or printing your desired shapes on vinyl glue sheet. Use line and pencil to guarantee straight lines. We used a small triangle stencil to make all our shapes the same size. Once you've pulled your design, cut shapes with scissors, keep the back of the glue now. To simplify the project, you can also opt to use pre-cut vinyl wall labels. Protect parts of the chair that will not be painted from excessive spray with newspaper tape and painters. We chose to paint the top corner of the back support in diagonal, but you can choose any part of the seat to decorate. Keep in mind that any design built on the chair will wear faster than elsewhere. If you are working with plywood chairs, clear sand coats from part of the chair you are painting and wiping dust with vine fabric. Similarly, if you're working with a wood-colored chair, you'll want to sand the part that you're painting to help spray metal painted wood. Remove the back from the cut glue shapes and stick them to the chair where you want the wood to show. You can use a ruler to keep the pattern straight and accurate. Spray paint over the design using light, even strokes. Add as many layers as needed to achieve the desired coating. Let dry according to the manufacturer's instructions. Learn how to spray-paint the chair. When the color is dry, remove the vinyl label to show the design. If the chairs get a lot of use, you can add bright lacquer over the top to protect the design. For the designer, it's simply a theme of understanding the scale, color, and picking up the perfect accent chair. Nothing makes a small room look great like the right chair, which can be anything from traditional tufted brown leather chairs to lounge lip-shaped fuchsia. Here are 15 of the best accent chairs to instantly pop your little space. Ikea is known for its giant blue box stores, where customers can miss weeks amid rows of benches and office chairs. But the company's approach to physical retail is changing alongside its evolving digital strategy. In the wake of its 40% drop in profits over the past year, Ikea has announced plans to build smaller stores with footprints that are easier to build in cities. The first smaller location, opening this autumn on Tottenham Court Road in central London, signals another change, too: its restaurant won't serve any dumplings-even future dumplings made of bugs and stuff. The new approach, reported by The Times, is led by Ikea UK retail manager Javier Quinones. It seems to be a European strategy now, but it would be reasonable for the company's other markets around the world. We've seen chains ranging from Target and Sephora to Whole Foods and Taco Bell embrace smaller store concepts to push their brands into increasingly dense and expensive urban environments. Smaller stores cost less to operate, and they are potentially faster to open. Ikea's smaller store concept can be opened within six months, while large-scale Ikea stores take an average of three to four years. Even if these stores can't carry everything the flagship location, they can serve as a showroom-a-more accessible place to gain an Ikea brand physical experience. In addition, having more locations may come with secondary profits: it creates a network of delivery hubs that can compete with lightning-fast shipping times from companies like Amazon. Ikea is investing heavily in its delivery infrastructure and within the next year wants to gain the capacity to allow customers to order each of their 10,000 products online and receive within a day. We can only hope that those options include famous dumplings. IKEA EVEN THOUGH WE ARE MONTHS AWAY FROM THE WATER, SAND AND SWIMSUIT SEASON, IKEA HAS MYSINGSÖ BEACH SEATS ON ITS MIND. The Swedish retailer announced last week that it was carrying out a voluntary call for a folding chair due to the risk of fingertip amputation. Och, what are you looking for? Seats sold for about $25 from February 2013 to December 2016, but they could apparently fall and fall, causing serious danger to your hands. IKEA has received 13 reports of incidents around the world, including 10 injuries, six of which resulted in fingertip amputations, the retailer said in an email to customers. Three of those incidents, with one fingertip amputation, have been reported in the US. If you own one of these wooden chairs with polyester fabric seats and buy it before February 2017, IKEA says you can return it to any store for replacement or full refund - no evidence to make the necessary purchases.
