SM Black Star Promos Release period November 2016 - Present The SM Black Star Promos are a series of promotional cards tied in with the Sun & Moon Series of cards, which started with the release of the Alola Collection the same day as Pokémon Sun and Moon. With the introduction of this series, the XY draft for promotional cards was changed to the SM. Card checklist for all 236 cards in the Sun & Moon Promo expansion suite. Let's take a closer look at the top 5 most valuable SM promo cards! Starting with Rowlet (SM01) from the Alola collection box, all the way to Eevee (SM235) in the Pikachu-GX & Eevee-GX special collection box, we've seen many amazing promo cards in the last three years of entertainment. It is important to remember that this list includes staff of stamped species, other languages relative to English, or reprinting holos such as general cereal mills ones. At the time of writing the most expensive promo card currently available to buy (ungraded) is staff seal charizard promo prerelease (SM158) which now sits at a whopping $179.99 (US dollars)! All prices listed are accurate from today (18/11/2019), for the lowest available purchase price for a copy of that promo on the popular international website TCG TrollAndToad.com. It's also worth bearing in mind that some SM Promos that had limited releases, such as togedemaru's exclusive target store (SM44), will be more expensive in Europe, than it would be in the US.#5 - Mewtwo & Mew-GX-SM191 -$11.494Recently votes one of my favorite GX card art team replacing Pokémon, This beautiful Mewtwo & Mew-GX promo was only available in the September (2019) Tag Team tins, and is currently also one of the most powerful and played GX cards in Pokémon tournaments, due to its ability to copy the attacks of other EX & GX cards. If you're yet to buy the Mewtwo & Mew-GX SM191 you'll likely have to wait until it rotates from the standard format in 2021, before it sees any major price drops.#4 – & Flareon-GX – SM172 & SM171 - $13.99-$12.40These Eeveelution GX promos are a surprise inclusion on the list to me. I half expect to see the Flareon-GX on this list as it recently saw some play at the Latin American International Tournament last weekend, however vaporeon-GX is more of a scratch head to me. Vaporeon-GX has seen some play in the past, but potentially the reason for its price increase (and now out of stock at TrollAndToad), is due to its synergy with the new Vaporeon, Jolteon and Flareon cards of cosmic eclipses that Buff hit. Most likely another reason for pricing these cards now is that these, along with the Jolteon-GX were only available in tone earlier this year, and no other fingerprints made of them (full art, rainbow etc.) like some other Eeveelution GX we've seen recently. #3 – Jirachi – SM161 – $19.95Another Super Playable Tournament Card takes 3rd spot on our list. Despite also having regular Hulaw prints on the team up the set, as well as reprinting non-holo in the fantastic Necrozma Battle Arena box, many players are still keen to pick up this rarer version of the card for their tournament decks. Due to the flexibility of using Jirachi's stellar aspire to the ability to select any trainer card from the top five of his deck, this card sees the game in numerous archetypes and will continue to do so for two seasons until it rotates from the standard format. Employees stamped version of this promo to set you a fine of $41.99 each now!#2 – Solgaleo GX-SM104-$27.99Despite us getting a bunch of other Solgaleo cards and promos early Sun & Moon Set, this SM104 Solgaleo-GX card stands out from the others due to its powerful first attack that allows the above mentioned Mewtwo & Mew-GX to copy with it's Perfection ability, meaning you don't even need to run Cosmog or Cosmoem in your deck. What made it harder to find was that alongside a much weaker Lonaia-GX (SM103) ad was released in its special collection boxes. Retailers had to order both promo boxes together so it effectively made it twice as pale as the same set box (Blastoise-GX, Charizard-GX etc.) that was released to itself. Fortunately for players there is a gold alternative art reprint of the Solgaleo-GX card that was released in the premium Destiny Hidden collection more widely available last month. That this original version doesn't stop up pricing and it's now sitting out of stock in TrollAndToad for $27.99.#1 – Heroes Festival - SM78, SM148, SM231 - $59.99-$62.99Almost doubling in price from the Solgaleo-GX, we have our English-language, rival exclusive cards from the 2017, 2018 and 2019 Pokémon World Championships, the Championships Festival promos. Despite the existence of nearly 1,000 competitors (TCG and video games) per The last three world championships in the United States, these cards retain a high level of value often because players don't want them to sell them as they have worked hard all season to qualify for matches. Most players may sell the entire sealed promo package containing all the different languages of these cards (English, German, Spanish, Portuguese, French, Italian, Korean and Japanese), which many sealed collectors do not like to open. This plus many other factors combined for their high naderi and cost, with english SMOmos and SM148 from 2017 and 2018 respectively now selling for about $60.00 each on TrollAndToad, with one of the newest from Washington Dee. C is even already listed on that website. These uniquely expensive world championship cards are often suffocating blocks for many black star promo collectors from previous years (XY, BW etc.) and will only increase in price as the years go on. It's definitely worth picking them up sooner! Fun fact: At the time of writing the most expensive SM Promo PSA grading card had been sold Hero Seal SM78 Promo (PSA8) which was listed for $10,000 and had the best offer accepted. It wouldn't surprise me as there are only six champion seal promos every year, for it's gone for $5,000 or more! I can't wait to see more of the Sword & Shield promos over the coming months and years, if the SM Promos are anything to go by, we will have another 200+ of them to collect!#GottaCatchEmAll!
