Dog clothes are quick and easy to make, and if you know how to make dog clothes, you'll have more money for clothes that aren't so easy to make: yours. I recently went shopping for my own Pomeranian pooch mix and I came across some very expensive coats and shirts for dogs. In Moochie, a local dog boutique, even hankies sell for upwards of $10.00. These items of clothing strike me as little more than modified patterns for baby dolls. Turns out I was right. Check out these sources to create your own dresses for your little furry friend. Honestly, you should have something better to spend your money on. Dander, dirt, and hogging space are all good reasons why you can give your buddy your own bed. This DIY tutorial shows you how to create a soft, comfortable bed for pets at all. You and your pet will both be able to catch some of them without sacrificing the precious bed space. The materials are almost the same as for a small bed for pets with the following exceptions. This large pet bed will require 5 yards fabric.5 - 20 ounce bags of toppings. A thick enough interface for two floors of base parts. (If your interaction isn't wide enough, butt edges and zigzag joint.) Use the inside base of the Pet Bed (Pillow) pattern piece Add 3 on both sides of the folded paper just as you did to make the original pillow base. This creates a large baseAdd 2 floor on each folded side to create a large base floor cushion, just like you did other pieces using paper folded into quarters. Cutting Variations to create a large pet Bed Cut 3 floor baseCut 6 - 15 stripes for parties. Use three sections for each side section Use 90 piping pieces on the top side. The assembly is almost the same as a small pet bed with the following exceptions: Instead of fighting a large stuffed pillow attached to the side cushion, join the two parts of the floor with an interface to the side pillow, in the same way you would join the pillow base on the small pet bed. I had an easier machine to sew after manual basting, using a button and carpet thread, about an inch from the edge. This kept the stuffing out of the sewing area. Assemble the pillow, as shown on the small pet bed, rather than attach it to the sides, finish the seam or attach a seam with double tape shifting times or with a sturdy seam finish. Tap the pillow into the bed. It also allows you to remove the pillow for washing. Washing, basic guide to pattern making pdf
