True motorsport fans are certainly familiar with the names of Valentino Rossi, Marc Marquez, Casey Stoner, Daniel Pedrosa and Jorge Lorenzo. They are the heroes of motorcycle racing in action at the MotoGP World Championship. Their actions in stimulating their car on the race track will no doubt be a sacred moment not to miss out to watch. The excitement of racing on the MotoGP track can be felt not only through television. You can also try the adrenaline by simply playing motogp video games, which of course are now available on various gaming platforms. Well, if you want to try the thrill of racing with MotoGP racers, Carisinyal will give you a recommendation for a fun MotoGP racing game to play. So you don't wonder, just check out the review below.

1. MotoGP (2000) - Source: cdromance.com MotoGP was the first racing simulation game to be released for PlayStation 2 in October 2000. The game itself was developed and published by Namco, presenting the thrill of racing through the 500cc engine. As a player, you will compete with legendary racers like Kenny Roberts, Max Biaggi and Mick Doohan. There are various world class tracks that become racecourses, including Suzuka (Japan), Donington Park (England) and Jerez (Spain) circuits. All race tracks are created as best as possible so that players can experience driving a 500cc engine in the MotoGP World Championship. The game has five game modes, namely: Season, VS, Challenges, Arcade, and Court Time.
2. MotoGP: Ultimate Racing Technology 2 (2003) - Source: thekingofgrabs.com: Xbox and Microsoft Windows (PC) Platform: Xbox and Microsoft Windows (PC) This is the second edition of the MotoGP series created by video game development company TH. MotoGP: Ultimate Racing Technology 2 is based on the 2002 Grand Prix motorcycle racing season. Players can race on three selected tracks, such as Suzuka, Fakis, Jerez, or choose a career participating in the full season. This game presents a trick mode where during the race players must collect points by performing actions such as wheelies, burnouts and powerslides. Points can also be earned when a player can overtake another driver and crash into an opponent, so they fall. However, these points will be lost if the player leaves the track, falls or loses the time limit.
