One of the New Zealand Great Walks is the Tongariro Alpine Crossing Guided Walk climbs to the saddle between Mount Ngauruhoe and Mount Tongariro. Along the walk you will pass by craters, mountain springs and brightly colored emerald lakes. Click here to read the full story of this walk: Tongariro National Park, North Island - Distance: 19 km. Time needed: 7 hours : Average wheelchair access: No : Double spin : Unknown - Unknown - Wet Feet: No - Toilets: No - Mobile Coverage: No - Last Update: November 2019 Often described as the best one-day hike in New York, Tongariro Alpine Crossing provides an opportunity to experience some of the most scenic and active volcanic areas of the park. The route completes the Mangatepo Valley to the saddle between Tongariro and Ngauruhoe. It rises to the Red Crater (1886m) and then falls down to the bright Emerald Lakes. Passing the Blue Lake, the route descends around the northern slope of Tongariro, and then descends further zigzag to the Ketetahi hut. From the hut, the track continues down the mountain through the plains of tussock and then into the native forest to the end of the track. It is a full day of self-trek that crosses Tongariro National Park from the extreme eastern border to the heart of the park in the village of Whakapapa, passing between the peaks of Mount Ngauruhoe (Mount Doom) and Mount Ruapehu. Highlights along the way are the historic huts of Waihoonui; Tama lakes formed by old volcanic explosions, and Taranaki falls. At the end of the hike, if time permits, visit the Whakapapa Village Visitor Centre to see the history of the park, or a village tavern for a well-deserved holiday. The hike itself is easy without steep climbs or descents - and with great views. This area of the park is less susceptible to severe weather conditions that can be tested at high altitude at a track intersection - making it safer in marginal weather. This is a two or three day hike that can start and end either in Mangatepopo or Whakapapa village. If you have a car, you better park in Whakapapa and start and finish the track there. If required From Taupo we offer the following: Get a one-way shuttle with us from Taupo to the Mangatepo car park. Walk from the Mangatepo parking lot to the first hut, either Otorre Hut or Waihoonui Hut. The next day hike from your hut to the village of Whakapapa. Either catch the shuttle back to us in the Ketetahi car park and then back to Taupo or stay overnight in the village of Whakapapa. Hike to Mangatepopo Hut the next day. Stay the night at the Mangatepopo Hut and then catch a one-way shuttle back to Taupo with us the next morning tongariro Excursions offers a quality guided walking experience on the tracks in and around Tongariro National Park, New York's very first World Heritage site. With international borders closed we have some special deals working, we know that there are still many people eager to go out and explore. Specializing in small groups and private tours, our knowledgeable, caring guides can also manage large groups so that everyone on each trip feels that they have got an idea of the landscape, its people and its history. We know about your comfort and safety. The tragic eruption that occurred on Wakaani/White Island on Monday, December 9, 2019, did not affect any of the volcanoes of Tongariro National Park. They continue to be monitored by relevant government agencies. There is always some degree of volcanic risk, but we will age the advice found. Tongariro Excursions (formerly known as Walking Places) has been operating as a premium guided walking provider since 2004. Terry Bloomhardt is the owner and chief guide. He works with his carefully selected team to provide exceptional guided tours, including the world-famous Tongariro Alpine crossing in the summer and winter. And winter.
