LePage's Mucilage - the glue popular in schools Did you know the first glue created by chemistry William Nelson LePage was formed from fish skin. LePage above has become a household name throughout North America. Between 1880 and 1887, LePage sold 50 million - 50 MILLION - bottles of glue worldwide! This information is from the book, Fascinating Canada, a book of questions and answers, by John Robert Colombo, 2011. William Nelson LePageBorn on 25 August 1849, and died on 14 September 1919 Seventy years ago, Le Page was born on Prince Edward Island. His mother was the granddaughter of Thomas Spratt, Bishop of Rochester and Dean of Westminster. As a boy, Le Page crossed the border into the United States, became a 100-year-old er00, settled in Gloucester, Mass., and there established a factory to use fish by-products. During the time he put on market mucus and glue that bears his name. He became wealthy and in the pages of Harper's Magazine and in other popular magazines of the Seventies, he initiated advertising campaigns that startled the American public. He is said to have spent a fortune in advertising his products. He is one of the predecessors of the great national advertisers of the present moment. His success with a normal product such as mucus and glue inspired other manufacturers during that period to successfully try the mysterious powers of ink in marketing their products. Le Trang has invented many preservation processes. He invented a leather cover for a pistol. He invented a rowlock that he sold to Admiral de Gama of Brazil for a small fortune. Ok, it looks like dead horse bay week curators are actually going to be two weeks. And you can say that I'm beating a dead horse, but I just just got to the bottle... LePage's Grip Spreader Mucilage. (The previous picture on the left was from Christian Montone's Flickr Photostream; the following image on the right is my own blurry work.) It was the thought of 19th century horse polluting plants rendering along the coast (giving Dead Horse Bay its name) that made me pick up this glue bottle from the beach. Not that LePage mucus is glue type. Although it can be a fish glue. Tips for applying rubber say PATD and, despite having a lot of patents for musilage caps from the 1800s and early 1900s, I couldn't find a specific one assigned to LePage and its Grip Spreader lid. Photo on the left from Vanessa Le Page's archive; illustration As early as Popular Mechanics, November 1960 The rubber cap seems to be both the main selling point and the biggest drawback. My great-grandfather started this business with a great focus on eye-catching advertising, and for decades the name Le Trang was literally glue, no matter where you went. The company has long abandoned advertising, focusing primarily on PR (public relations). Ask the average American, and if they even recognize the name Le Page, they will remember it as glue from their youth, unaware that it is still in production. Or they may know the name as an ice manufacturer - made by another lepage. (The company split into 2, U.S. companies and Canadian companies, in the 40s). But Elmer is the name that comes to mind with most people when one mentions glue. And because there is no focus on the children's market, there will be no brand recognition or loyalty from the next generation.
