(January 2020) (Learn how and when to delete this template message) (Learn how and when to delete this template message) Rokugan is a fictional empire that is the main force in the Setting of Legend of the Five Rings, the basis of the collectible card game Legend of the Five Rings, Legend of the Five Rings Role-Playing Game, the board game Art of War and now from the printing game Clan War Miniatures, all from Alderac Entertainment Group. It is similar to feudal Japan, although it also contains aspects of other Asian cultures, as well as magic and mythical beasts. The setting was used by wizards of the coast as the basis for their updated Oriental Adventures Dungeons & Dragons expansion pack. There is no name for the whole world that describes the setting, so Rokugan is used alternately for a particular nation in the environment or to refer to the whole world. Strictly speaking this is wrong, but as the emperor argues that all that is as the right to be a descendant of Amaterasu (Lady Sun) and Onnotangu (Lord Moon), courtiers of the Emerald Empire will see this as an appropriate use. However, the citizens and rulers of the Burning Sands and the Kingdoms of Côte d'Ivoire may disagree. Some say that Ningen-Do, the name of the metaphysical sphere in which the world is located, serves as the proper name for the world. The story of Alderac Entertainment Group (AEG) published the legend of the five rings (L5R) of the collector's card game in 1995. Rokugan has emerged as a backdrop where several clans and factions are fighting for domination of the empire. In 1997, Roleplaying Legend of the Five Rings was released. During the transition from Advanced Dungeons & Dragons 2nd edition to Dungeons & Dragons 3rd edition, Wizards of the Coast acquired its rights. [citation needed] The Wizards decided to allow Alderac Entertainment Group to continue publishing the second edition of the material for Legend of the Rings Rings Game system. At the same time, they worked on a book about setting up a d20 campaign for the world of Rokugan; In October 2001, the Wizards finally produced a book setting they had in the process for more than a year: James Wyatt's Oriental Adventures (2001), which proposed new d20 rules for oriental domains, some of them specific to rokugan's world. [1]:264–265 After that, all the rights of the legend of the five rings returned to AEG, which immediately began to complement the Oriental Adventures of Wizards with rokgan Oriental Adventures Campaign Setting (2001), which appeared just two months after Oriental Adventures, in December 2001; two more d20 books, followed by the next few months, Creatures of Rokugan (2002) and Magic of Rokugan (2002). [1]:265 Rokugan Rokugan's Empire is based on a clan structure, with seven (then eight with mantis addition and then nine with spider addition) so-called Grand Clans, as well as a number of smaller clans. Large clans consist of several family lines, each of which has its own general purpose in the clan. On the other hand, smaller clans generally have only one family. Each clan also has areas of land under their control, which the emperor gave them as a fief. However, the emperor retains ownership of all lands, and clans essentially rent the land they use by paying taxes annually. The Crab Clan Crab Clan is considered the least cultural or courtly of all clans. Their duty is to guard the Carpentry Wall, which separates rokugan's empire from the filthy and tainted Shadowlands. Guarding the wall, they face a constant onslaught of undead enemies, They (demons) and many other evil minions. It was the duty of the Crab clan to guard the wall as memory expired. For this reason, they have become experts in defence strategies. Their warriors are seasoned and experienced, and most prefer to wield huge weapons such as tetsubo (two-handed war club) or no-dachi (two-handed sword). Clan families include Hida, Hiruma, Kaiu, Kuni, Toritak, and Yasuki. Clan colors are gray and dark blue. Crane Clan Left Hand emperor - Crane Clan is considered the most artistic of all clans. They are known throughout the empire for their trained courtiers, craftsmen and duels. Crane samurai are probably the best duelists in Rokugan. They are heavily trained in Iaijutsu (rapid drawing technique), where the sword is drawn and the blow is one, very fast movement. Clan families include Asahina, Daidoji, Doji, Kakita, and Yasuki, the only name used by two separate clans. The clan's colors are white and light blue. Dragon Clan Dragon Clan controls the mountains north of the empire. They are on the sidelines and removed from the affairs of other clans, preferring to stay in their mountains Most of the land that the Dragon Clan owns is completely cut off from the rest of the empire during the winter due to heavy snowfall. Their samurai use niten (two-stroke style), in which fighters use both katana and wakizashi to perform very fast strikes in quick succession. For many observers, niten looks more like a dance than a real fight, but niten is a deadly art requiring a lot of skill and coordination. Clan families include Kitsuki, Mirumoto, Tamori, the Order of Tattooed Men (divided into the Togashi, Hitomi, and Hoshi families), and previously Agasha, who now swear allegiance to Phoenix. Clan colors are emerald and gold. Their founder was Kami Togashi, who, unlike his siblings, remained alive in the flesh for more than 1,000 years until he was killed by his brother Fu Leang on the second day of thunder. Famous members of the Dragon clan are Agasha Tamori and Tamori Chosai, both Oracles of Fire; Mirumoto, the original Dragon Thunder; Hitomi, the second Dragon Thunder and formerly Lady Moon after the death of Onnatangu; Togashi Satsu, Former Dragon Master, Grandson of Togashi and current voice of the Empress; and Iweko I, formerly Kitsuki Iweko, Daimyo of Kitsuki and current Empress. Clan Lviv Clan Lviv is known as a very aggressive and honorable clan. They are the right hand of the emperor, personally defending their causes first of all. Some of the greatest generals of all Rokugans come from the Lviv clan. The Lviv clan also has the largest army in the empire and is known for its rigid adherence to the Bushido Code. Clan families include Akodo, Ikoma, Kitsu, and Matsu. The colors of the clan are brown and tan. Phoenix The Phoenix Clan is known as the most skilled with magic in the empire and also as the most peaceful. They have schools of magic associated with every element, including the only school of the empire dealing with the magic of the Void. Clan families include Agasha, Asako, Isawa, and Shiba. Clan colors are red and orange. The Scorpion Clan Scorpion Clan is known as the Emperor's Underhand. They are known for their courtiers' abilities. Their ninjas are experts in assassination and espionage. Knowledge of the Scorpion is not shared with outsiders, but is the true thing of power. Scorpio architects have built many key structures throughout Rokugan, and as a result many of these structures have secret passageways and rooms unknown to everyone, with only the Scorpion clan. It is a scorpion tradition to always be masked, or face painted. Clan families include Bayushi, Shosuro, Soshi, and Yogo. Clan colors are scarlet and black. The Unicorn Clan Unicorn Clan is known for cavalry and equestrianism. They are considered barbarians by other clans because the clan as a whole has spent nearly 800 of the last thousand years outside the empire. Before leaving Rokugan, the Unicorn Clan was known as The Clan and the Unicorn Clan are their descendants. They hunt game and eat red meat and have adopted a number of other customs that are considered taboo by the rest of the clans. However, the horses they brought from distant lands are faster, stronger and bigger than any found in Rokugan. Clan families include Moto, Ide, Iuchi, Shinjo, and Utaku, formerly known as Otaku. The clan's colors are purple and white. The Mantis Clan was formerly a smaller clan until after the Second Day of thunder, when they won their place as a great clan. Although they do not have a permanent army, their navy is the most powerful in all of Rokugan. They are tasked with patrolling the Rokugani seas and protecting them from gaijin invaders. They are considered pirates by other clans, and some of their samurai are actually involved in piracy. Clan families include Kitsune, Moshii, Tsuruchi, and Yoritomo. Clan colors are silver and green. The Fox clan was recently absorbed by the Mantis Clan (as the Kitsune family). The Centipede and Wasps Clan were absorbed by the Mantis Clan (as the Moshi and Tsuruchi families). Spider Clan The Spider Clan was founded by Daigotsu, the only and true heir to rokugan's throne, with Shadowland tainted by samurai, blood speakers and monks who followed his interpretation of Tao. He was considered an outlaw clan until the end of the devastating war, when the Empress granted them grand clan status, which many samurai saw as coping with darkness. Those members of the Spider Clan who contain Taint from Shadowland are exiled to a colony in the Kingdom of Ivory. The clan consists of a family of Daigotsu and monks. The Skinny family parted ways with Spider when the clan became a clan. Skinny now join forces with the Jikogou Horde. The Spider Clan was managed by the council until its current clan master (Daigotsu Kanpeki) ascended to his post. Smaller clans There are many smaller clans in Rokugan- clans that have been formed since the birth of the empire by those other than seven Kami. New clans are not set up lightly. The founders of these clans usually did an extremely brave deed or favor to the Empire. Among the smaller clans are: Hare Clan, Ox Clan, Sparrow Clan, Monkey Clan, Turtle Clan, Bat Clan, Firefly Clan, Badger Clan, Oriole Clan and Dragonfly Clan. The Dragonfly clan was swept away in the war between lion and dragon, but was reconstructed with the help of Toturi Sezar, brother of the former emperor. In addition to the conglomerate of smaller clans that make up the Mantis, there are other smaller clans that have been absorbed by large clans. The Falcon clan was absorbed by the Crab (as the Toritak family). Other regions of Burning Sands Burning Sands lie in the north and west of Rokugan. These lands consist of vast s expanses of desert, where nomadzi wander the earth, and bitter wars are taking place in front of the smallest bodies of water. It is thematically based on a fantastic version of Arabia. The Kingdom of Ivory Kingdom of Ivory lies far west and south of Rokugan, behind the Shadowlands. Little is known about these islands and their inhabitants to the general population of Rokugan, although secretly (and illegally) the Mantis Clan has been trading with this nation for some time. Most of the population was destroyed during the destroyer war because it was dedicated to the army that attacked Rokugan. It is thematically based on a fancy version of India. Shadowlands The Shadowlands borders Rokugan in the south and south-west. Although this is not a nation per se it is a mean land where the air itself can be poisonous, and foul, ungodly creatures are summoned by dark powers to lead an endless battle against all life in Rokugan. Entering this territory alone subjects individuals to the possibility of infecting Shadowlands Taint, a mystical infection that gradually worsens the morality and mental health of the individual, while giving them increased strength, speed and endurance. Taint's risk level and severity increases as he progresses towards shadowlands center, the Black Pit, which is a direct physical connection to Jigoku. The Crab Clan, which must fight regularly near shadowlands, consumes a huge part of the empire's jade supply, as a piece of jade will absorb corruption in an attempt to reach the one that wears it for a limited time before dissolving. North Step north of Rokugan, outside the territories of the Dragon Clan, Vol, Badger and Phoenix, lies the endless steppes of Yobanjin. These nomadzi are fierce bandits, known for their Wyrn equestrian chieftains and powerful shamans. It is thematically based on a fancy version of Mongolia. The rest of the world far in the West, apart from the Burning Sands or the Kingdoms of Ivory, are other lands, most of which have no contact with Rokugan. Senpet, once a powerful theocracy (a setting based on pharaoh Egypt fantasy), was subordinated by the yodotai army (Roman surroundings). Other kingdoms, such as Thrane and Merenae, which once threatened Rokugan with their ships carrying weapons, disappeared after a strange plague destroyed them. Residents in the world of Rokugan, there are many different and unusual creatures roaming the worlds, and humans are not the only beings that have developed civilization. In addition to goblins, mujina, they, dragons and many other creatures, the following are the main species. People The vast majority of Rokugan's population are people. People almost exclusively form a population of clans, large and smaller, as well as other groups in Rokugan. Number of inhumane members of Rokugan is low. Kenku Kenku is an ancient race resembling very large humanoid crows. Kenku are legendary swords men and are, at least in legend, responsible for training the most famous Rokugani swords men in history. Seeing kenku is rare, and it's almost impossible to get him to take a student. These creatures almost completely removed from Rokugan. They appear as large crows standing vertically, and their wings can be bent and used as arms. Lost The Lost are people who have given up on Fu Leang's bad will. They are often blessed with their dark gifts, which ultimately lead to madness. Some of the Missing have created mock societies. There have even been rumours of children born in shadowlands, many of whom have the advantages of dark gifts, but with slight curses due to their reliable devotion to Fu Leng. Naked Naked is an ancient breed of creatures that seem like a semi-human, half-snake. Long before the rise of Rokugan, Naga had a huge and living civilization. However, at some point before the race, Naga entered a deep sleep, where he remained for nearly 100,000 years. They woke up briefly on the Second Day of thunder, but after several years of involvement in Rokugani's affairs, they once again returned to sleep. Nezumi rattling is a breed of large, intelligent rats. Today they live in poverty, barely better than animals, although they once had a vast, advanced society. Unfortunately, this civilization was completely in what became shadowlands, and was destroyed when the dark Kami Fu Leng fell to the ground. Nothing the explorers found until recently verified the claim of the previous Nezumi society. Apparently, many of Naga's stories allegedly provided evidence that society never existed, but Ikoma Otemi found, on an island that is now under the protectorate of the Lviv Clan, the ancient scrolls proving these rumors are indeed true. Nezumi controls the Name Magic, an ancient and very powerful form of magic. Unlike other well-known races, nezumi are completely resistant to Taint, and as such the Crabs have formed alliances with many Nezumi families and tribes living near the wall. Zokujin copper goblins are small creatures with whirlwind hair and heads vaguely reminiscent of these frogs. They have an unusual natural tunneling ability- it's that they eat rocks for food, it's no wonder. For this reason, they are often used – involuntarily more often than not – by Rokugan clans in various mines. Zokujin live to be ages, and an experienced zokujin shaman will have stronger abilities in the field of Earth magic than is possible for human shugenja. Ogre Though now little more than low-witted brute, the ogres used to be a thriving Empire, and rumors of great progress even the people present. However, with the fall of Fu Leng of heaven, the ogres were subordinated to his will, suffering extensive physical corruption and decentralization, and have since become the monsters they are now. Kitsune Kitsune are mainly benevolent spirits of nature, which often take the form of an animal, but can sometimes take on a human form and sometimes fall in love with humans. The Kitsune family, formerly the Fox clan, has an affinity with Kitsune and calls them as allies and protects them from harm. Ashlan Immortal breed of mischievous sorcerers, ashlan breed very rarely, only 3 Ashlan was born in the last 1000 years. They are sworn enemies of the Naked and cannot enter Rokugan directly, but are instead influenced by smaller minions. Oracle Powerful beings that represent both the good and the evil sides of elemental forces. The Oracle cannot attack a creature unless they are attacked first and can be killed, but they are extremely powerful. Oracles were mortals who gained the role of Oracles by choosing them by the Heavenly Dragons or by Jigoku. See also Kara-Tur References ^ a b Shannon Appelcline (2011). Designers & Dragons.
