Frank, President and CEO I cannot begin to share my sadness and anger for the senseless and unnecessary murder of George Floyd and many others who have suffered injustices like this, many whose names and stories we will never know. Such tragedies continue to make it clear that systemic discrimination and racial inequality continue to plague our country. The death of George Floyd is only part of a history of racist harassment, assault and murder that has dragged on for too long in the life of our country. His name - Ahmaud Arbury, Breonna Taylor and the list goes on - should not be forgotten. Rather, they must move on and lead us to actions that, frankly, should have been taken long ago. OhioGuidestone, as an organization dedicated to providing ways to grow, achieve and succeed throughout life, cannot remain silent. We understand that with our mission also comes the duty to fight ignorance and intolerance, the model of inclusivity and accept the power that diversity represents. We hear the voices of those who demand change, and we support you. I'm standing with you. For our black colleagues, clients, community members, donors and friends, while my heart aches as a result of these events, I can only imagine the trauma, pain and frustration you should feel at this time. I will never be able to walk in your place or fully understand, but I can be here for you - listen and answer your concerns, use my voice to speak for you and for a world free of discrimination that embraces differences and respects all people. Please know that you are not alone in this. Throughout our more than 155-year history, OhioGuidestone has often been the first step forward to work toward a solution when there is an unmet need for the communities we serve. It's no different. We will work together to be the change that we want to see in our communities and in the world, because, according to the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., injustice anywhere poses a threat to justice around the world. Be safe and well, rich counties served and growing counties served and growing recovery is possible. The journey starts here. OhioGuidestone, one of the largest behavioral health agencies in the states, helps individuals reset their ways, reclaim their autonomy and restore their goal for more than 155 years through community counseling, substance use disorder treatment, early childhood services, mental health care, workforce development training and more.
