Very insightful, so they observe and link facts that don't seem to have ties to each other. They have self-confidence that manifests itself in decision-making and perseverance in their behavior. Separating THE SELF-AWARENESS of Man from the target world, the awareness of his relationship with the world, his own being as a person, his behavior, his actions, thoughts and feelings, his desires and interests. The beast is identical to its activities; only because of its presence nature changes, that is, it applies to it immediately. Instead, man treats nature as intermediaries, through his social work and primarily through the use of working tools. Through the work it is separated from natural communication: in the process of work it connects its goals and tasks with the material of nature and takes into account its own possibilities. By changing nature, you change yourself. Man, creating products in the process of work, thus unfolds and in the object of his activity contemplates the work of his hands. He differentiates himself as an agent from the objects in its creation. But since work is always social in nature, a person begins to acquire psychological characteristics, they are a number of innate qualities that are found within people, these are those that can be highlighted in different everyday areas of people. In the next article you will know all about what are the psychological characteristics of people. We can say that psychological characteristics, it is a series of qualities that are in each of the people, these qualities allow you to stand out in different areas or even in a particular area. In this sense you can see different aspects in the psychology of leaders, or any other type of as in the case of athletes, youth or independent groups, it is thus known that everyone has a unique psychological training. Each of these characteristics serves to distinguish psychologically, to each age of the man, since they are considered to be mentally fit to perform any type of work. It is very clear that by the very nature of psychology, as well as of human nature, at all times there will be changes, mainly due to the influence of social psychology and even the kind of influence of political or social interests that can affect human thought. Children Can be noted that the psychological characteristics of children are given depending on age, they represent a certain naivety and ideas outside of reality, which will allow them to fantasize in an alternate reality. Adolescents perceive a much higher and different reality than children, so they tend to become more libertarian and even more depressed; At this stage some of the teens are the ones who can develop both fleeting fascination and different passions. This can be seen as one of the psychological characteristics of a teenager. Adult psychological characteristics of an adult or the psychological education of a person who is in their middle adult stage are usually synthesized in responsibility until they can even manage to move into specific roles, their mind predisposed to problem solving and one that partially debunks the dreams and huge stock of triviality that are very marked in adolescence. Older people In the case of psychological training of the elderly or better known as the elderly, are usually very diverse and in turn very stressed, this can be achieved to find close to the class accentuating knowledge or solvency due to age processes. This is considered a psychological feature of old age. Athletes athletes are the ones who have a great need for a car - overcoming that allows them to face themselves before it comes to face with all their opponents, allowing it a kind of car - overcoming is no longer so much at the sporting level but personally. Thus, athletes have a different kind of social and psychological activity if they tend to command athletes or even individual athletes because their mental development manages to be completely different. Professionals are those who have a much higher form-quality appearance that can have a full impact on each of their deprived of human life. The specific features of Admiration are often the basis of philosophy. However, this kind of admiration also tends to be the key to happiness. August 2010 As human beings we present different behaviors when dealing with an important situation or decision affecting different psychological conditions, both personality and personality, so that we know the psychological characteristics. Psychology is a science that is responsible for the various studies of human mental processes, the study at all times of sensations, perceptions and behaviors that as individuals can imagine. Psychological characteristics represent all the qualities that people possess and where they can distinguish themselves and succeed from another person. All people may have traits I have very similar physical characteristics, but one of the things that basically sets us apart are the psychological characteristics that each person possesses. There are psychological icons that divide us as individuals, giving us mental qualities that allow us to realize and relate to any activity. Everyone has nature, and all this gives rise to his way of thinking and how he acts in the face of all the circumstances that he possesses, influencing factors such as social or political interests. The psychological characteristics of a person vary depending on the stage of his life, let's observe some qualities according to their evolution as a person: the newborn represents a child that has unique physical characteristics that constantly and rapidly change over time, growing each of his limbs and presenting high brain development, allowing him to take certain relationships and actions. The main psychological characteristics of a newborn baby is to achieve perception of the world surrounds it, this quality is constantly growing along with the child's promotion. In the case of psychological characteristics of children, equal to the range of 6 to 7 years, children develop their psychology depending on age, where you can observe a certain naivety and this stage, where they constantly fantasize. As people develop, they reach a stage in their lives when they are believed to reach the adult stage, where a set of responsibilities and responsibilities begins to be reflected. When you reach this stage you begin to belittle fantasies and you begin to realize reality, they begin to take appropriate roles where their mind is invited to be able to search for problematic solutions. But at this stage there are many approaches and conditions adopted in adolescence and childhood. One of the factors influencing this type of psychological characteristic is the various professions that develop this formative quality, to the extent that it can affect the private aspects of life. In addition, another aspect that can be seen in the case of those who develop the sport develops the quality of self-improvement, due to the fact that they will have to face other opponents. At this stage of personal development deepens, influencing social and individualistic development, because it affects their personality and even their mentality as a person, personality and even as a person. It should be noted that the psychological characteristics of an adult in relation to his sex are different, men presented the condition, but the psychological characteristics of a woman are completely different from men, reaching the point to be deeper and more complex. This corresponds to the line of psychological formation in the elderly, in this range people enter into a state of paralysis and physical deterioration. Therefore, this condition will depend solely on the emphasis of knowledge and will begin to depend on the conditions of development at their age. Among all stages of human growth one of the most characteristic, as well as very important is the stage of adolescence, where there are the most significant psychological and physical changes in people. Among some of the highlights is the discovery of identity, where you can see the transition from childhood to maturity, starting to lose traits as a child and starting to assimilate adult traits. Despite this, the stage of great self-doubt begins to appear and in order to resist the fact that begins to apply behavioral masks, often this attitude is unconscious. Thanks to these masks and protection from their insecurities, attitudes of aggression and even other relationships that may arise are narcissism where you need to get attention observed. At this stage we begin to observe the formation of groups to have identification and personal refuge amidst the constant threat and stress of adults. At this stage it is about addressing the limits of adults in their lives, defending their independence at all times or challenging to commit stupidity or actions that go against adults. Puberty is the stage when more hormones and emotions begin to thrive in young people, leading them and pushing them to make approaches and decisions that can be so bad. Teenagers perceive reality very highly, it can be generated or a big shock, where it is reflected as freedom or a very depressive state, at this stage very fleeting hobbies begin to form.
