Just because you've defeated the final boss doesn't make you a keyblade master! Have you used Megafire? No? Wind? No? Okay, you probably got Kuraga, but what about Triple Firaga? No, you're not the master of anything yet. So, I want the foreword of this Kingdom of The Heart Birth of Sleep Melding Guide with a few important moments. First, explain what a team fusion function is in Kingdom Hearts: Birth by Sleep, and how it differs from the traditional synthesis system of objects. Through: Youtube/TheGamersJoint Using the Meld Command menu, you can use aligned commands to create a much larger number of new commands. Secondly, team fusion is one of the game's most useful and important mechanics, so understanding what it is and how it works will make your game through the Kingdom of the Heart of Sleep Birth much more fun and easier for you player. Through: Youtube/TheGamersJoint Really know what's going on in this guide, let's take some definitions that will be important to understand. Team Melding - This is a unique mechanic in the birth of sleep. With the merger, you can take two different deck commands and combine them to create a new team. The deck command is a system of organizing and executing attacks, magic, objects and abilities in KH: The Birth of Sleep. Recipes - The essential value in using a merge command, a guide that shows you which teams are needed to create a new team. Crystals are the material consumed to merge commands. How do you command Meld? To merge with deck commands, you must first go to the Command Decks menu. Through: Youtube/SlyKai Next, you have to select the first dedicated team and then add the second team to the second slot. Through: Youtube / SlyKai Via: Youtube / SlyKai Third, you will need to choose one of different types of crystals to add a unique ability. Through: Youtube/SlyKai And once you press the button to merge the commands, you will have a new team deck with one of several unique abilities. Via: Youtube/SlyKai Via: Youtube/SlyKai One of the main challenges with team mergers is understanding which of the unique merger teams you get. An integral part of creating troubled teams is to find recipes that are arranged throughout the game. When you get a new recipe from a defeated enemy (among other ways to get them), you'll get a chance to see which team you'll be producing. Example of the Meld team By merging teams together, you can create more powerful attacks and spells that can give you an edge over your opponent, which can mean all the differences in the heat of the battle. In Kingdom Hearts: Birth by Sleep, there are three key masters (main protagonists) who have their strengths and weaknesses in using deck commands. The first of heroes you'll use is Terra, a fighter who is physically gifted, not not Below are the three best fusion teams and their recipes, as a gift from yourself to you. TERRA: Guide - The best Meteor Crash Team through the Glycat Meteor Crash is a devastating attack that uses Terra's ability to physically attack. This is an attack in which a character jumps into the air and brings her key-blade down with a bunch of fiery meteor (ites?) right on top of your opponent. Devastating, isn't it? Best recipe: Fire Strike and Brutal Blast Ars Solum via GIPHY via GIPHY This attack uses several hit combos that can be activated by synchronizing the click of the triangle button with on-screen hints. Snag is one in the chest skull located in Neverlands. But be tired: it can be a challenge to get to! Most Successful Recipe: Sonic Blade and Dark Haze Windcutter Create a flurry of wind that can send your opponents flying to another dimension! It is a difficult task to bring this with a merger, but it is very worth the time. The most successful recipe: Aeroga and Confusion Strike As I said earlier, Terra's fighting style is very heavy on physical attacks and your team will merge will focus mainly on the damage case. Turning to one of the other heroes, one that is a little more magically oriented! Ventus is a character who is a little more comprehensive in terms of how his attacks are used to navigate the battlefield. VENTUS: The leadership and best Team Ventus, as I said earlier, is more comprehensive, but has strengths in both agility and speed. And playing like Ventus feels pretty familiar to those of us who have played other records in the series, as Ventus very much feels like Sora, a very balanced character who uses both physical and magical based attacks. Sonic Blade A prop in the Kingdom Hearts series, Sonic Blade is one of the easiest to get and one of the easiest commands to use in the game. This attack command will send you and your key directly to the enemy. The most successful recipe: Air Slide and Blitz Curaga Instead of consuming HP potions over and over and draining your precious medical supplies, I suggest you learn this magic command. In fact, getting this team is not just an offer - it's pretty much important to travel throughout the game! The most successful recipe: Cura and Cure Magnega conjure up a magnetic vortex that will drag your enemies, making attacking all of them much easier and causing some damage to them as well. Most successful recipe: Magners and Magnet AZOA: Guide - The best teams When you progress past the chapters of Terra and Wentus in history, you play as Aqua, someone who is considered the older sister type and tasked with taking care of both of your friends. Aqua finds itself at the opposite end of the spectrum when it comes to physical/magic by Terra. Of the player's three characters, Aqua is very experienced with magical commands, so she is arguably the strongest of the Three. This makes it, in my opinion, the most interesting to play with; because who doesn't like beating villains with excessive character power? Barrier Surge Aqua is unique when it comes to defensive magic because it uses the Barrier instead of the unit, allowing Aqua to be fully encapsulated in magical protection. But within this defensive magic there is a lot of offense. You can use the Barrier to crash into enemies at full speed, causing them damage and potentially knocking them off balance. The most successful recipe: Fire Dash and Triple Firag Barrier through GIPHY The only thing better than a fireball thrown in the face of the enemy ... three fireballs! Triple Firaga uses three fireballs to set fire to his opponents. How much more firepower do you need than that? The most successful recipe: Fira and Firaga Mega Flash is similar to Triple Firaga, but perhaps more destructive is Mega Flare. Instead of cutting fireballs into faces, Aqua blinds enemies with a burning white blast and damages each enemy in battle. The most successful recipe: Splitting Firaga and Crawling Fire To finish the best team section of this guide, I want to tell you two things. First, I know that while I believe they are the best teams in the game, you may find that other teams fit your style of play. And while I'd like you to take my advice, what I really want is for you to enjoy the game and better understand how to use this incredibly important mechanics of the game. Secondly, while there are other ways to get commands, I believe that merging is much more worth your time. This is because one of my favorite aspects of the game is how Kingdom Hearts: The Birth of Sleep explores the world and discovering new ways of playing. And merging is just one of many ways to enjoy this game! Crystals and recipe tips through: IGN.com Although I won't make a list of all the recipes and commands in this guide, I'll help you a little more for a player who wants to play the game without doing so much exploring. Below is a list of places for crystals needed to merge commands. I made three columns on the left showing the type of crystal, the middle showing the world in which it is located, and the right, showing the creature that falls crystal.
