It was previously available at the Trim Level Sport, with a 1.5-liter or 2.0-liter engine of choice. The 2021 agreement will receive a facelift, which will be revealed later this year. How few people bought a Honda Accords manual transmission? The company stopped building them in December 2019, but we are only now finding out, and only because the company told us in the release about the updates of the 2021 model year. The six-speed manual transmission was previously a free option for Sport models with a 192-liter engine with 192 hp or 252 hp 252-liter engine, but Honda says the manual accounted for only about 1 to 2 percent of Accord's sales, explaining why the company had given up trying to #SaveTheManuals in the mid-size sedan segment. Extrapolation of the 267,567 Accord units sold in 2019, only about 2,500-5000 of them were sold with a change stick apparently not enough for Honda to justify the business case. Not recently, in May, Honda's head of product planning, Gary Robinson, told C/D that the company has no plans to kill any models of the manual transmission, and even suggested that it may number of manual offers. Offers. PajoCar and Driver Updated Agreement goes on for the 2021 model year, presumably with a new style and features. Honda will be sharing more information for a few months, although we recognize that we are a little less excited about it now that it won't offer a three-pedal option. A cursory search for new Accord inventories revealed fewer than 20 mechanical transmission agreements that are still being sold nationwide to date (out of more than 15,000 in total).
