In the city of Rose Creek under the deadly control of industrialist Bartholomew Bogue, desperate citizens use protection from seven criminals, bounty hunters, players and hired guns. As they prepare the town for a violent showdown that they know are coming, these seven mercenaries are finding themselves fighting for more than money. Plot Summary of Slogans: Justice has a number. Action Adventures Western Certificate: 16 View all certificates Parents Guide: View Content Advisory Edit By Bartholomew Bogue is the first person to kill and the last person to be killed in the film. See more By 1879, war and disease had reduced the comanche of people to less than 3,000 in West Texas, with several hundred living with other tribes in Northern Mexico. They are also belligerent and xenophobic, making it difficult for them to work with other indigenous tribes. It is unlikely that the Red Harvest would have been so far from home or so welcome if it had been. The Red Harvest may have shed the xenophobia of his tribe to survive as an outcation.
