Check your contacts' WhatsApp level and the hours they spend chatting with the WhatsApp app for Android smartphones. Currently, our level of privacy has been reduced to a minimum due to our bad habit of posting every detail of our lives on social media, the likes of Facebook or Instagram, to the offensive conditions that we agree on regarding the treatment of our personal data on the Internet or certain messaging apps that can be used by anyone to have us under the radar 24/7. And if this was not enough, there are also surveillance apps like WhatsAppDog for Android (App Store does not allow this kind of application) responsible for monitoring the status of the connection of any WhatsApp user. And regardless of whether that person blocked us or turned on an option that hides that information. So it's a pretty shabby method of espionage that everyone can use. How does it work? Well, it's pretty simple. You only have to enter the number of the person you want to spy on one in order to create a report on his WhatsApp connection time. The latter will be recorded by dates and hours using the calendar, and will include statistics on the time tinged by the contact online each day. Is there an alternative to this app? Well, Google Play and WhatsApp are very careful. This type of app, which violates the user's privacy as well as the terms of use of WhatsApp, will have no chance in the official Android market at present. These apps are tracked in order to remove all WhatsApp spies or any other service of this nature, and this instant messaging platform makes an effort to increase the security and privacy of conversations conducted on its app to cover possible cracks used by this kind of spyware.
