Have you ever been stuck at home with the flu and without food? Or caught without a gift before the birthday? If you answered yes, you'll love Amazon Prime Now! The app is not without flaws, but it guarantees delivery of food, Amazon products, and more to your doorstep - in less than 2 hours. Even in the days of UberEats, Deliveroo and superfast DHL, these promised delivery slots are excellent. Amazon Prime Now also lets you track your packages. Watch as he leaves the warehouse and watch the driver's progress towards you. This prevents you from being home bound as you wait for your items. Amazon Prime Now offers free shipping, but tips are included that may surprise you when you check-in. Keep in mind that the app is still biased against urban areas. If you live in boonies, then your choice may be limited and shipping in less than an hour is unlikely. Track your packages in real time. If you're already a member of Amazon Prime, you should check out the Prime Now app. Amazon Prime is a virtual hub with free deliveries, music, movies, e-books and more. In 2014, the delivery giants launched Amazon Prime Now, an exclusive courier service for its Prime members. Order more than a certain amount of food and supplies, and your goods will be on your doorstep for free for 2 hours or for a small fee - for an hour! Although there is no shipping costs, there is a mandatory minimum advice that is made at checkout or driver in cash. You have the opportunity to ask for a retrospective refund for poor service. While it's doubtful many people will envy the recall of a hardworking driver delivering Amazon go-kart bags of groceries to their doorstep, the secret framing charge, however, can be a negative feature of the app. The choice will depend on your location. Some highlights of amazon Prime Now services are limited to major cities like New York, Chicago, and the San Francisco Bay Area. Most major U.S. cities are serviced by the app and allow you to stay at home and get fresh produce, wine and spirits, or any essentials and luxuries in just a few clicks. Neither the price nor the choice is worth writing home about, and you will definitely save money by heading to the grocery store in person. For last-minute purchases, busy households, or sheer convenience, the app is priceless. Choose from three delivery options, ranging from a 2-hour window to just one hour. This latter option may not be available to all Prime customers, depending on where you live. It's not limited to shopping either, but if you need fast food, there are plenty of restaurants and cafes powered by Amazon Prime Now. The app needs work, however. For those who have invested across the board in Amazon, you may find it annoying to have separate apps for your Kindle, Amazon, Amazon, Prime and Amazon Prime now. There is also a lack of synchronicity among apps, so you may have to jump around to check out items in address books in one place and Wishlists in another. If you're considering Amazon Prime Now for amazing money-saving deals - then stop reading now. While there are certainly great discounts offered through stores available through the app, there are more mark-ups than lower prices. If you account for the annual Prime membership fee plus tips included in every Amazon Prime Now delivery, then it may not be a financially sensible choice for your regular stocking shop. The app can also be confusing and lead you to order from individual stores where you could make more simple (and green) purchases from just one. Where can you run this program? Amazon Prime Now, as the name suggests, is associated with Amazon Prime. In fact, it is a superfast courier service available for your online purchases. So first you need to subscribe to Amazon Prime (which offers a huge variety of multimedia packages and money-saving add-ons). The app can then be downloaded on Android or iOS smartphones, iPads, iPod Touch or there is a desktop version. Latest version: Amazon Prime Now 4.20.2 requires Android 5.0 and up, or iOS 10.0 and beyond. If you have an Android device, the app will take 93.79MB of space or 83.5MB on iPhone. Is there a better alternative? For supplies alone, you can simply order from the store you need supplies from. You can get the best range of products to choose from and more competitive prices. The booming e-commerce trade means that more companies are offering same-day delivery and even same-day delivery services. Courier giants UPS, FedEx and DHL provide very safe deliveries of time-sensitive or valuable items. Your goods are protected and superfast delivery is guaranteed - but at a price. If it's just hot food delivered to your table, then there are plenty of effective and reliable apps: FoodPanda, GrubHub, and Deliveroo to name a few. As for another global market to compete with Amazon, the only major wholesaler offering same-day deliveries at the moment is target. Like Amazon Prime Now, you can order clothes, shoes, or even large pieces of furniture seven days a week. There is nothing like Amazon Prime. As individual apps go you may be better off choosing Spotify for your music or Netflix for your movies. Once you factor in the basic savings of free shipping on any Amazon order, online deals and extras like the monthly Kindle books then Amazon Prime membership is not the head of the head information. Once you benefit from everything Then Amazon Prime Now will give you access to thousands of products from groceries to restaurants or furniture. The app is a great resource to buy last minute items or enjoy home delivery on lazy lazy day, but keep in mind the potential mark-ups and limited choices. Should you download it? If you're already a member of Amazon Prime, the app is completely free and you can enjoy home deliveries at the speed of a comet. After too many months of waiting, Amazon is finally allowing Android users to enjoy its Prime Instant Video service through a special app. The app is now available from Amazon Appstore, but it is limited to users in the US. The installation appears to allow Instant Video streaming inside Amazon's main Android app, which you can get from the Play Store. The Amazon app itself has received an update to version 5, including a name change, and now allows you to view amazon's entire catalog of digital and physical products and services, including apps from Amazon Appstore. According to Amazon's list of apps listed from September 9 release date The update also brings US customers a 5GB free backup photo from Amazon Cloud Drive. If you've signed up for the Amazon Prime Suite for $99 a year (you get a free year when you buy an Amazon Fire phone, by the way), you can now watch thousands of movies and TV series, including HBO hits The Sopranos, The Wire, Deadwood, True Blood and Boardwalk Empire, at no extra cost. It's been a long time in the making, but it's good that Amazon is finally starting to serve the billion-plus people who use Android, even if it's limited in the US at the moment. Now all he needs is support for Chromecast. What do you say, Jeff? To get started, you need to do two things - upgrade the Amazon app from the Play Store and install the Prime Instant Video app from Amazon Appstore. Thanks for advice, Tony!
