It's Habib Faisal for you. His latest departed promised to be a fairy tale driven by the creative cuisines of our fine nation. But what begins as a promising film about love, life and food soon turns into two hours of too long tedious journey that you can't wait to finish. Inexplicably obsessed with Gulrez Qadir aka Gullu (Parineeti Chopra) believes that the so-called land of her dreams is what she needs to become a successful shoe designer. But her father (Anupam Kher) just dreamed he was finding a beautiful boy for his daughter so he could lead her in and eventually get rid of his father's duties. So he lines up the boy after the boy meets his Mba graduate daughter, whom she of course effortlessly drives away.
