In this technological age, everything is digital, including the method used to send resume files. If you have a personal website, place a link on your site that allows potential customers and employers to download your resume. If you don't have a personal website, customers and employers can still download your resume online via email. Website Download Email Files Download File About author Faizah Imani, a published educator, minister and author, has worked with clients such as Harrison House Author, Thomas Weeks III, Candle Of Prayer Company and Truth & Church Magazine. His dossier includes Ja-AMM WebDesigns, assistant director of the high school gang, district director for the Clarion Ledger, and event coordinator for the Vicksburg Convention Center. Does your resume still show your last job as what you had in 2001 – even though you've been going on ever since? Have you moved but neglected to update your address and phone number? When was the last time you updated your online resume? If you haven't done this in a while, you're doing it now, Monster.com advises. A recent Monster Meter survey shows that 47% of job seekers update their resumes once or twice a year, while more than 70% of employers on Monster only resume research in the last three months. Not so long ago, I offered some job search tips for MBA graduates. Here are Monster's tips on keeping your resume up to date: have no mercy for mistakes. Be clear and concise in your writing. Find out what skills your employer is looking for and be sure to show them. Use numbers to your advantage. Focus on keywords. When was the last time you updated your resume? So you started hunting? It doesn't matter which career you choose; you'll need a great resume. You might think you've figured out how to create the perfect resume for your dream job. But is that really true? Maybe it's time to brush up on your resume-building skills? How many do you do and not write the resume you really know? Test yourself with the quiz below! You might be surprised by the results. No matter what industry you may be able to apply for, resumes still matter. And even if you got an interview due to connections (some statistics mention that over 70% of the jobs landed due to networking), you still have to produce a piece of paper that formally lists your credentials. Here, how to shake your resume - so you can focus on nailing the interview. TechRadar is supported by its audience.
