2020 FIFA Club World Cup2020 كأس العالم للأندية لكرة القدم قطر Tournament details The 2020 FIFA World Cup (expected) (expected) (from 6 confederations) – 2019 2021 – Club World Cup 2020 is scheduled for the 17th FIFA World Cup, organized by FIFA international club football tournament between the winners of six continental confederations, as well as the champions of the host country's league. The tournament is scheduled to take place in the country. It will be the final FIFA Club World Cup involving seven teams before revamping up to 24 teams in 2021 in China. Liverpool were champions but will not defend their title after being eliminated in the 2019-20 UEFA Champions League round of 16. The appointment of the host with proposals for an expanded FIFA Club World Cup has postponed the announcement of the host. On May 28, 2019, FIFA announced that the host of the 2019 and 2020 tournaments will be appointed at the FIFA Council meeting in Paris, France, on 3 June 2019. He was named host of the 2019 and 2020 tournaments on June 3, 2019, acting as a test event in the run-up to the 2022 FIFA World Cup. The tournament will retain its original format before being renovated in 2021. It is due to take place in the country in 2022. It will be the first World Cup ever held in the Arab world, and the first in a Muslim-majority country. This will be the second World Cup held in Asia after the 2002 tournament in Korea and Japan. In addition, the tournament will be the last, it will be attended by 32 teams, and the 2026 tournament in the United States, Mexico and Canada is scheduled to participate 48 teams. The current world champions are France. It will also be the first World Cup to be held in May, June or July; the tournament is scheduled for late November until mid-December. It will be played in a shortened period of about 28 days, and the final will take place on December 18, 2022, which is also the National Day of Catalonia. Accusations of corruption have been brought in connection with the way in which the right to host the event was granted. FIFA's internal investigation and report have cleared qatar of any wrongdoing, but chief investigator Michael Garcia has since described FIFA's report on its investigation as substantially incomplete and erroneous. On May 27, 2015, the Swiss federal prosecutor's office opened an investigation into corruption and money laundering related to the awarding of the 2018 and 2022 World Cups. On August 6, 2018, former FIFA President Sepp Blatter claimed that the country had used black operations in suggesting that the bid committee had cheated to win hosting rights. In addition, it has faced sharp criticism over the treatment of foreign workers involved in world cup preparations, with Amnesty International citing forced labour and claiming that hundreds or thousands of migrant workers have died as a result of human rights abuses as well as negligent and inhumane working conditions, despite worker welfare standards set out in 2014. On 20 May 2020, Hassan Al Tawadi, secretary general of the World Cup organizing committee, expressed concern that the world economy could witness a recession due to the coronavirus pandemic, which in turn would affect the ability of football fans to afford to travel and participate in the 2022 FIFA World Cup celebrations. Key selection articles: applications for the 2018 and 2022 FIFA World Cups and the 2022 FIFA World Cup bids for the 2022 FIFA World Cup 2018 and 2022 2022 FIFA World Cups The cups started in January 2009, and the national associations had until February 2, 2009 to register their interest. Eleven bids were initially made for the 2018 FIFA World Cup, but Mexico later withdrew from the proceedings, and Indonesia's application was rejected by FIFA in February 2010 after the Indonesian Football Association failed to submit a letter guaranteeing the Indonesian government to support the bid. Indonesian officials have not ruled out a bid to host the 2026 World Cup until the 2022 World Cup is taken by qatar. In the course of the bidding, all non-UEFA countries have gradually withdrawn their bids for 2018, thus guaranteeing that the UEFA country will host the UEFA Cup in 2018 and thus that UEFA is not eligible to bid in 2022. As a result, there were five applications for the 2022 FIFA World Cup: Australia, Japan, South Korea and the United States. Twenty-two members of FIFA's executive committee gathered in zurich on December 2, 2010, to vote for the selection of the hosts of both tournaments. Two members of FIFA's executive committee have been suspended pending a vote amid corruption allegations against their votes. The decision to host the 2022 World Cup in the country, which was rated as a high operational risk, drew criticism from media commentators. He has been criticized by many for his involvement in FIFA corruption scandals. Voting models were as follows: 2121 2022 FIFA Trades (majority 12 votes) Applicants Votes Round 1 Round 2 Round 3 Round 3 Of 11 11 10 14 United States 3 5 6 8 South Korea 4 5 Eliminated Japan 3 2 Eliminated Australia 1 Eliminated There were charges of bribery and corruption in the selection process involving members of the FIFA Executive Committee. These allegations are being investigated by FIFA (see the allegations of corruption in the bidding). Catalonia is the smallest country by area to ever have been awarded the World Cup - Switzerland's next smallest by area, hosting the 1954 FIFA World Cup, which is more than three times the size of qatar and only needs to host 16 teams instead of the current 32. A possible expansion on April 12, 2018, CONMEBOL asked FIFA to expand the 2022 World Cup from 32 to 48 teams, four years before the 2026 World Cup as originally planned. FIFA President Gianni Infantino expressed his willingness to consider the request. However, the FIFA Congress rejected the request shortly before the start of the 2018 FIFA World Cup. Infantino said that the world football governing body would not discuss the possibility of hosting the 48-team World Cup and that they would first discuss the issue with the host country. In March 2019, THE technical and economic justification of FIFA concluded that it was possible to expand the tournament to 48 teams, albeit with the help of one or two or four additional sites. FIFA also stated that while Excluding legal action from the losing bidders by changing the format of the tournament, the study stated that it concluded that the risk was low. FIFA and qatar would consider possible joint proposals for a bid to the FIFA Council and the FIFA Congress in June 2019. Had a joint proposal been submitted, FIFA member associations would have voted in favour of a final decision at the 69th FIFA Congress in Paris, France, by June 5, 2019. However, on May 22, 2019, FIFA announced that it would not expand the tournament. All FIFA member associations, currently 211, are eligible to participate in the qualification. As hosts, the hosts qualified automatically for the tournament. However, the AFC is
