Converted at the age of 15, Rinker sailed to China at the age of 20 to work for the Eastern Missionary Society (now OMS International). She served in China for 14 years as a secretary, teacher and evangelist. As the political climate in China became dangerous, Rinker returned to the United States and enrolled at Asbury College in Wilmore, Kentucky. After graduating in 1945, she began working as a full-time consultant for the InterVarsity Christian Brotherhood. She worked for three years in New York and eleven years in the Pacific Northwest. Rinker wrote extensively, which led to many speeches. Many of these commitments were workshops based on her famous book, Prayer: Conversations with God, which taught Christians about the art of conversational prayer. In October 2006, Christianity Today published a list of the 50 best books that have shaped evangelicals (over the past 50 years). Rinker's Prayer: Conversation with God was recognized as number one on this list by CT editors. In the magazine it was said: In the 1950s, evangelical prayer was characterized by Elizabethan bulls and dues. Prayer meetings were often nothing more than a series of official prayer speeches. Then Rosalind Rinker taught us something revolutionary: Prayer is a conversation with God. The idea to take over, sometimes too much (like, Lord, we just really want ...). But today, evangelicals assume that casual, conversational, intimate prayer is the most authentic way to pray. Title Of Prayer: Talking to God Rosalind Rinker Prayer Category as Pray Description Publisher: Sondervan This book is a classic prayer on conversational prayer. Review: Someone recommended this book to me many years ago and it revolutionized my personal prayer life. God became the Person I spoke to in prayer, not just the person I spoke to in prayer. The book is based mainly on the meaning and content of the poems in Matthew 18:19-20. The author knows firsthand that group prayer has lost meaning for many Christians. Rinker opened her foreword by saying, I have found that the real purpose of prayer is to put God at the center of our attention and to forget about ourselves and the impression we make on others. Prayer colloquially makes prayer such a natural means of spiritual unity that God's healing love touches us all as we are in His presence. Meeting the Lord in this way brings us to the expected realization of what it means to be conscious with Him and to belong to each other as brothers and sisters in Christ. Prayer: Being in the presence of God dialogue between two people who love each other start a new conversation relationship in the daily language of Prayer: Conversation with God is inspiring and quick to read. Since much of the content is autobiographical, it's also an engaging read. I believe that every Christian should read this gem of a book, especially those who are learning to pray. This book is also an excellent book for a prayer group to read and/or learn together. This is usually the first book I mention when someone asks me to recommend a book to deepen my Life.
