(examples: two/too/to, them/there/they) Students write the correct homograph in an empty form to complete the homographs sentence of words that are written the same but differ in meaning and origin. Considered a favorite language by amateurs, homographers can be quite hilarious exercises for kindergarten students through class 5 in all curricula. The key, however, is to first reasonably address the definition that separates the homograph from all its siblings, like homophones, homonyms, etc., which is exactly what our homographic sheets seek to do. This set of printed homograph sheets stands out for its plodding details, abundant analysis and ingenious demonstration. Try some of these handouts for free! Homograph Chart Let Your Kindergarten and 1st Grade Students start with our homograph chart, which lays out a clear definition for homographers, so there's a little confusion about identifying or producing homographs for their pleasure. Homograph Word Search Word search sheets have been highly effective in fueling interest among students. There are eight descriptive parts here, and the kids find the right homographers for them from the puzzle. Snip and Paste Activity - Images Of multiple values makes homographs worthy of spending time with. This homophone snip-and-glue activity, replete with images, has a cool vibe to it, so kids have fun doing it. Snip and paste up - This homographer's snip-and-glue PDF goes further up the learning ladder, getting a grade 1 and a class of 2 children cut off the two values and glue them to the correct homography. It takes a lot of time with a variety of homographers. Match Homographs with their Definitions This sheet helps class 3 kids practice and perfect their homographs, by matching eight homographs to their correct definitions. There's a huge room to apply your homographer training! Match Images with Homographs This printed homograph sheet is a holiday photo that your 2nd grade and 3rd grade youth will instantly relate to.
