

☐

I'm not robot

reCAPTCHA

Continue

Cold weather motorcycle gloves

There are two areas you want your winter bike gloves to stand out: they have to be warm and have to be waterproof. If they let you down in one of these departments, they're as good as they are useless. If your gloves are also comfortable, flexible and offer decent accident protection, then you hit the jackpot. With this review of the best waterproof winter gloves, you don't need to take a lucky dip in your next set of gloves – the jackpot is within reach. CE ApprovalThere is an EC standard for motorcycle gloves, EN 13594:2015. It is divided into two categories, Level 1 and Level 2. Motorcycle gloves with level 1 performance provide a lower level of protection, but offer greater flexibility than Level 2, while level 2 gloves provide greater protection, but due to their greater amount of protective armor, they may not be as flexible as a level 1 glove. The Best Hot Motorcycle GlovesWhen it comes to buying, the usual mantra of buying the best you can apply to gloves as does any product. Always look for certification guides (even if, annoyingly, some still don't exactly claim to which they ad...). Some people also like the reviews of RiDE magazine. You can find some gloves with a Recommended RiDE rating or a RiDE Best Buy that can be all the validation you need. The heated option If you want a little boost, check out our guide to the best heated motorcycle gloves. If you are riding long distances (50 miles+) even the best winter gloves will fight on a seriously cold day. You can also reinforce your glove skills with handlebar mufflers (not cool, we know, but they work) or heated grips. Or both! Do your homework before you buy and try as many pairs as you can to understand what works for you. Our review criteria We have established strict criteria for this winter glove buying guide because – with 100 pairs of motorcycle gloves on the market – we can afford to be demanding. They have to be waterproof not only water resistant. Each set of gloves has to have at least one area of hard armor – preferably on the fingers. They have to be complete. The winter gloves of some manufacturers are only 3/4 long or little, which will not be very useful when it starts to rain. Minimum level 1 bonus points if they wear Gore-TexHás there are a lot of winter gloves on our long list, but we sum that up for 5 great gloves for our list. The best gloves for you It is impossible to say this is the best winter motorcycle glove as different gloves fit different riders in different ways and we all prioritize different features, brands and budgets of Different. However, all the best gloves have quality of construction, protection and comfort in common. Your gloves need to be comfortable, you will wear them for a long time. They need to be warm and waterproof, but not so bulky that you feel like you are boxing gloves. As you have seen from our strict criteria above, all the gloves in this review have met a very high bar. Budget: from less than £30 to more than £250 What should you pay for a quality set of winter bike gloves? There are many great options under £100, so why pay more? As you'll see in our review below, the more expensive gloves aren't just down to brand snobs – they often pack into more features and use more expensive materials like Gore-Tex and goat leather instead of cow leather. It is up to you to decide what you should have and what is good to have and from there you will be able to make the easiest decision, which is: what can I afford? While price has been a factor in our considerations, we recommend the gloves that we think are the best available at the moment – we weren't just for the more expensive ones. If our top picks don't work for you in terms of budgets, brands or features, then check out our list of lists where you'll certainly find a great option. Fly Racing Racing Fly Racing's Fly Racing Street street gloves take a step into the realms of road and street use, with a fully insulated silhouette, a waterproof, windproof and breathable hypora membrane, and genuine high-grade leather adorning your palms and fingertips. An additional leather strap between thumb and index finger provides extra reinforcement, while Aurora's extended neoprene cuff, wire handle and wrist strap provide a worry-free fit that remains safe, no matter the circumstance. Purchase: $66 Fox Racing Forge CW The iconic Forge CW glove is a favorite of the heat-imbuend community that features a 10K/10K waterproof inner membrane that makes the ultra breathable handwear. They utilize a brushed knit ted coating, 100 GMS paddings on the back of the hand, and a water-resistant palm fabric that can withstand moisture on long trips. A pull-on loop helps with on-and-off functions and helps provide a secure fit, while the silicone grips on the glove fingers give you a reliable throttle response when things get a little slippery. Purchase: Joe Rocket Windchill's $80 Joe Rocket Joe Rocket is a well-known and respected name when it comes to a wide variety of motorcycle equipment, and his winter-oriented Windchill glove remains true to the brand's vision of simple, affordable and durable equipment. A flexible drum dyed cow leather external pairs with the glove fully bonded dry tech mid-liner and lightweight 100G thinsulate insulation for maximum in cold heat. Alongside windchill's insulating features, an integrated high-density armor, leather reinforcement in key areas, a vibration dissipating the gel palm and fully flex expansion panels on the fingers provide a tactile response that is unmatched by other comfort-oriented gloves. Buy: $80 Cortech Scarab 2.0 Winter Cortech has some of the best best lineups of any apparel manufacturer, and their street winter riding glove doesn't fall short of the brand's pedigree. Constructed using a goatskin leather dyed from abrasion resistant drums, waterproof and breathable three-layer line, and a thinsulate insulation of 100g 3M, the Scaramis is a force to be counted when it comes to winter-adaptable wear. A abrasion-resistant molded hitena finger and external wrist protector provide protection where you need it most, while a PU foam protector wrapped hitena on the fingers and glove heel absorbs the impact in case you take a nasty spill. In addition, the gloves are compatible with touch screen and feature a conductive thumb and index finger that make the Scarab more recognizable for modern smart devices. Purchase: $95 Dainese Tempest D-Dry Short Dainese is a leader in motorcycle safety wear, launching a complete line of equipment that is suitable for each season under the sun. Its Tempest D-Dry Short glove is a simple offering that focuses on performance over complexity, with a breathable waterproof D-Dry membrane, intricate thermal filler, elastic naives for additional protection and pre-curved fingers for a silhouette that appears to have been adapted to your hand. Purchase: $100 Spidi Classic Leather Hi-Fit sheepskin construction adorns your classic leather gloves, making them more than suitable for urban/touring use, while offering an H2Out waterproof membrane that keeps gloves breathable and warm when hit with cold wind. A 100g primaloft wadding, Keprotec Schoeller booster, and polar microfleece has put durability at the forefront, providing high abrasion resistance and a lasting construction that will surely endure years of abuse on the open road. Purchase: $130 Alpinestars Polar GORE-TEX Gore-Tex Polar Gore-Tex gloves stay in line with Alpinestars' relentless search for functional street and road equipment, giving riders a superior elastic polyamide construction complete with a goatskin palm, a Gore-Tex waterproof membrane, and a 100G thinsulate thermal insulation on the back of the hand for windchill resistance. In addition to the winter qualities worn in the glove, the additional reinforcement in the thumb and palm of the hand provides users with comfort and better tactile feel by pushing these gloves into the spotlight for casual and veteran riders. Purchase: $130 Lee Parks Design DeerTours PCI Lee Parks Design prides itself on creating tasteful equipment that serves a purpose beyond just looking great, and your PCI DeerTours glove is one of those offerings. With an outlast Phase liner, heated grips and internal seams passed, the insulated 2.75oz gloves of deerskin and Thinsulate differ from the crowd a unique look and style alongside a palm and an Ergo-Tech patch for durability. Buy: $150 Rev'it! Stratos Stratos Rev'it! is one of the largest suppliers of experienced and true motorcycle equipment on the planet, and its Stratos GTX winter glove only reinforces its stacked field line. Made with goatskin barrel dyed fabric and water-repellent finish, The Stratos utilizes a 330D PWR shell construction, thinsulated G liner and a three-wool liner for manual heating perfection. A Gore-Tex membrane provides the definitive waterproofing qualities you expect from a winter glove, while a Seesoft 3D joint, EVA foam found on the finger and thumb, and a PWR shield knitting in the palm provide additional reinforcement where it counts. Purchase: $160 ICON Raiden Alcan ICON legacy in street and road apps is second to none, and with some of the most innovative offerings on the market, they have once again brought a utilitarian and all-purpose glove to the masses. The Raiden Alcan features a TPR joint with D3O impact protector for peace of mind in any riding condition, while a hypora waterproof liner, Battlehide goatskin palm tree and AX suede overlays protect your hands from the influence of any external elements. Purchase: $160 Held Twin GORE-TEX 2-In-1 Held is a brand that relies on its innovative approach to design and construction, and the Twin Gore-Tex 2-In-1 glove doesn't fall far from that tree. With a goatskin palm tree that is fitted with convenient stretch fabric, detailed leather back, and pike push-pull lining alongside a robust thinsulate insulation, the Twin provides all the positives of a winter glove with an elegant silhouette, to boot. A well-designed grip compartment features Outlast lining, a waterproof Gore-Tex membrane that complements 100% glove polyester (and 100% polyurethane coating), and a windproof backhand that features Velcro locks to seal in heat. Purchase: $270 Rukka R Star Rukka has definitely impressed more than a few riders with their trademark gear, and the R Star winter glove is an offer that most bikers would be smart to try at least once. The garment utilizes breathable Gore-Tex construction and full water, a complete leather silhouette and two-in-one wool coating technology. Lightweight insulation throughout the R Star provides the rider with exceptional protection during the winter months, while joint and scapfold protection ensures extra reinforcement if you find yourself in a sticky situation on the road. Buy: $315 Now that you're ready to tackle the elements when it comes to winter handclothes, head to our guide on the best winter jackets and coats for men to keep their upper body protected and warm during these cold morning commutes. Switches.