All events are free of charge and open to the public. Lisa See is a Chinese-American author who has written historical fiction, mysteries and nonfiction. We take a closer look at her books Sea Women's Island, Chinese Dolls and On Golden Mountain to explore and discuss topics including Asian culture, immigration and racism. Lisa See is #1 New York Times best-selling author of 10 books that have been translated into 39 languages! Find Lisa See's Books in our Catalogue Tuesday, October 20, 2020 at 7pm Live streamed on YouTube Watch the event live here This event will be a live-streamed video call. Lisa See will give a speech and then take live questions from the audience. Located largely on the remote Korean island of Jeju, Sea Women's Island follows Young-sook and Mi, girls from distinctly different backgrounds who bind to a shared love of the sea. Working in her village's diving collective, the two friends come of age in a community where gender roles are anything but typical. Here are the women primary breadwinners, the heads of the household in all but name, and yet, as we-I and Young-sook realize, there are limits to their control that can prove devastating. Over the years, Young-sook and Mi's have suffered together the loss of their parents, the dramas of marriage and childbirth, cruel family members, disruptive technological advances and the ever-present dangers that accompany their lives. They also face growing unrest over the political turmoil surrounding their homeland: the Japanese occupation leaves way for World War II, the Korean War and its aftermath, leaving Jeju residents caught between warring empires. While their husbands' political connections and tumultuous world events are uddjusting their friendship, Young-sook and Mi-ja see their remote island and everything they knew upgraded. Find a Copy in our Catalog China Dolls begins in 1938 in San Francisco: Grace, Helen and Ruby, three young women from very different backgrounds, happen to meet at the exclusive and glamorous Forbidden City nightclub. Grace Lee, an American-born Chinese woman, fled the Midwest with only heartache, talent and dancing shoes. Helen Fong lives with her extended family in Chinatown, where her traditional parents insist she preserves her reputation like a piece of jade. The ravishing Ruby Tom challenges the limits of convention at every turn with her defiant attitude and ambition without prohibition. Girls become fast friends, relying on each other through unexpected challenges and changing fortunes. When their dark secrets were revealed and the invisible thread fate binds them even more tightly, they find the strength and resilience to reach for their dreams. But after the Japanese attack Pearl Harbor, paranoia and suspicion threatening to ruin their lives, and the shocking act of treason changes everything. Find a copy in our catalogue When she was a little girl, Lisa See spent summers in the cold, dark recesses of the family's antiques store in Los Angeles' Chinatown. There, her grandmother and great-grandmother told her intriguing, colorful stories about their family's past - the stories of missionaries, concubines, wars, glamorous nightclubs and the determined struggle to triumph over racist laws and discrimination. They talked about how Lisa's great-great-grandfather immigrated from his Chinese village to the United States to work on building a transcontinental railway as a herbalist; As his son followed him, married a white woman, and despite great odds, became one of the most prominent Chinese in Gold Mountain (the Chinese name for the USA). On Gold Mountain, he is a vivid, sweeping family portrait, telling the story not only of one family, but of the Chinese people in America itself, a country that both welcomes and revives immigrants like no other culture in the world.
