Senior CAP members who have completed Level I training can enroll in the aerospace training course. Cap Specialty Tracks are an integral part of the Air Patrol's professional development program. They provide a standardised knowledge base for all CAP members at all levels. This consistent basis ensures the quality of training available through all CAP units at national level. This, in turn, allows members to perform the CAP missions required by the US Air Force. Members are enrolled at no one's level and proceed through the knowledge and service requirements in the TECHNICAL, SENIOR and MASTER evaluations in their specialized pieces. The Aerospace Training (AE) specialty piece is designed to prepare CAP members for the responsibilities of becoming Aerospace Training Officers at all levels of the organization, to include squadrons, groups, wings, and regions. Brochures and procedures related to this Specialty Track provide training that will enhance the candidate's performance in fulfilling the CAP Aerospace Training Mission, both internally and externally. Members who faithfully work on the requirements of the Aerospace Training Specialty Track gain recognition for this service in the unit and community, as shown in the graphic below. For more information go to CAPP 50-2. There is currently no text on this page. You can search for this page title on other pages, search for related log files, or create this page. All elements (12) When you complete level-1 you will have the opportunity to select a specialty piece of the study. There are many different jobs at your disposal. In collaboration with your Professional Development Officer (PDO) or administrator, you can choose a specialty that aligns your interests and abilities with the needs of the unit. Each specialty has a brochure designed to familiarize the reader with what is expected at work, and has a checklist to record one's evolution. You can choose from the following: 200: Personnel officer; 201: Head of Public Affairs; 202: Financial management; 203: Inspector-General; 204: Head of Professional Development; 205: Administrative Officer; 206: Logistics officer; 211: Head of Operations; 212: Head of Standardisation/Evaluation; 213: Emergency Services Officer; 214: Communications Officer; 215: Head of Aerospace Education; 216: Cadet Program Officer; 217: Head of security; 219: Legal Officer; 220: Health services (without brochure) - 221: Vicar; 222: 223: Historian; 225: Character development instructor; 226: Recruitment and retention officer; 227: Information Technology Officer CAP Talk ► General Discussion ► Membership ► Cadets and Specialty Pieces CAP Talk ► General Discussion ► Membership ► Cadet Specialized Pieces From CAPR 50-17:4-2. Specialty piece In addition to law or medical professionals who are specifically involved in performing these functions, senior members select specialized pieces based on their personal interests and the needs of the unit, as determined by the unit commander.a. Three key factors that the unit commander should consider in the initial selection include:(1) The current position of duty of the member. (2) Unit manning requirements(3) Abilities, interests and achievements of the individual.b. The current specialty route codes are: 204 Professional Development205 Administrative Officer212 Standardization-Evaluation Officer213 Emergency Services Officer214 Communications Officer215 Aerospace Training Officer220 Health Services (no brochure - see your PD Officer) 225 Character Development Instructor226 Recruitment and Retention Officer227 Information Officer. After selecting a specialty, the member downloads the appropriate study guide from the CAP website. Typically, the study guide directs member self-study and vocational training (OJT) through the three skill assessments in the specialty (i.e., Technician-1, Senior-2, or Master-3). Each specialty piece identifies the appropriate schools, courses, and suggested readings. At the same time, the member should have a mentor assigned to help implement the information they have learned about the actual performance of the task. For the member to take credit for the specialty piece training, update the PDR using the Specialty Piece management module in eServices.Note: I found that Brochures had more up-to-date stuff than the Level II: Technical Training page; the links I have above are from the first source. d. Each special track has a assigned code number used to enter the data into the PDR. The code number is usually directly linked to the number assigned to the training material for that piece. Some specialties such as functions may require completion of training from a combination of many piece of specialty.e. The professional fields of law and medicine (219 and 220) do not have study guides. These locations have only a location code number. The promotion criteria for these members are described in CAPR 35-5, the appointments and promotions of CAP officers and non-commissioned officers. Members of these professions can enter any other piece of training you wish using the training guide for these specialties.f. When a member achieves proficiency in all requirements for the assessment of a technician, senior or master, the member and mentor shall coordinate with the PDO and the unit commander to enter appropriate score in the Specialty Track online section in online services. Once approved, the rating will be automatically reflected in the member's file. The specialty pieces I currently have pages for [here] are relevant to my personal duty assignments; more can be added later, but for now this is what I have.
