It is an expensive product that is dosed once a day and comes in gel capsules similar to fish oil capsules. Our cat refused to eat it as if it were there, so we had to keep the capsule open and feed him at McCarrel Loin in Applaw. Since the outer layer is very hard, it is very difficult to take the juice of the capsule out of the capsule. We tried to squeeze the juice open with scissors, but in the process it always seemed like a good bit had disappeared. Our cat wasn't too ad focused on taste, so we had to use it to treat it. We also did not notice nearly any improvement after using it from October to December. He had also never heard of Antinol. I showed him the box and he said he wouldn't recommend it because he didn't make it clear how much proportion Kitty was getting for each capsule. He recommends switching to wild-caught, GMO-free omega-3 cat fish oil, reduced shedding, skin, coat, joints, heart, brain, immune system, top EPA and DHA efficacy, and the only ingredient is fish, a 16-ounce pump bottle. What a difference! Our cat loved the taste and it was easy to give one or two pumps every day with wet food. We decided to turn his wet food into clear peaks, which is the best food recommended for arthritis cats because they already have green mussels such as the active ingredient in antinol. Our orthopedic surgeons have said that green mussels are much less stressful and easier on cats if they are in food sources in pill form. Ziwi Peak is more expensive than other cat food, but it has a high nutritional density and the same ingredients as Antinol, so don't waste your money on Antinol, buy high-quality cat food that already contains green mussel protein and add the much-loved EPA. My cat was much happier, less stressed, and his arthritis seemed to hardly bother him in a short period of time.
