Now you can find a great car for less than $5,000. The vehicle may be older than the higher mileage and it may not be all the bells and whistles of the day, but if the car is well preserved and you keep it well maintained, it can be a great option. However, it is always worth having a mechanic perform an inspection of the car before purchasing if possible. Don't just believe us. We've compiled lists of the most hexagonal cars below $5,000 from all the top websites for buying and selling cars: our list of the 10 hexagonal cars below $5,000 in 2020 includes: 10. 2007-2011 Nissan Versa is known for being a fantastic used car, because it is available as a hatchback, it is not only versatile, but can also be without excessive age or mileage. A compact engine boasting 30 mpg also means buyers will save at the gas pump. AutoTrader says, designed with a budget-conscious buyer in mind, the Nissan Versa is a great option for buyers looking for a used car for $5,000 or less. 9. 2001-2007 Ford Escape Escape Ford was the first Ford to cross an SUV and was very popular when new. Sporting a fairly large cargo area as well as the widespread availability of parts means it will be cost effective for maintenance. Mazda, a company acquired by Ford had its own version called Tribute that is a very similar vehicle. 8. 2005-2010 Scion TC Coupe Sport is available on budget! Scion was a brand owned by Toyota and sick of the famous reliability and quality of Toyota vehicles. There is also a panoramic sun ton and a fantastic Pioneer sound system. 7. 2008-2011 Ford Focus always leads in small cars, Ford Focus is known to be just as mechanical as widely available parts that are cheap to maintain. Very popular choice. CarFax lists the 2011 Ford Focus SE for $5,995. 6. 1999-2004 Nissan Xterra rough SUV like a truck that proved to be both practical and tough. The 4-wheel drive version sells at a slightly higher price but the 2-wheel version is still very popular and will suit the needs of most people. 5. 2005-2009 Subaru Outback large fuel consumption, a styling-like car with large gas mileage SUV tales are hallmarks of the Subaru Outback and of course, it has the famous all-wheel drive system of Subaru. It will probably come with slightly higher mileage than some others on the list, but is well suited to anyone with an active lifestyle. USNews says, the 2007 Subaru Outback provides good power from all its turbocharged four-cylinder and V6 engines, while its four-cylinder base is just enough. Its trolley configuration combines road manners like a car with design, space sophistication, and SUV cargo versatility. 4. 2006-2010 Honda Civic Honda is always a great choice in a value used car. Available in sedan car and coupe style with hybrid is also available. It is also a higher performance than Civic Si for those looking for a little more kick. AutoList says, benchmarking compact cars, the Honda Civic is one autotrader, a reliable choice and a selection of Kelly Blue Book for a large used car available under $5,000. The 2005 Honda Civic, in particular, is a fuel-efficient, eco-friendly choice, featuring four-cylinder engines at 1.7 liters at 115 horsepower on base models. The 2005 to 2010 Honda Civic appeared on 3 different lists of best used cars under $5,000 on KBB, AutoList, and Auto Dealer. 3. 2004-2010 Toyota Sienna is known as one of the safest vehicles in North America, it is perfect as a vehicle to carry the family around. Available with every wheel drive with space for up to eight people, many consider it to be the best pre-owned minivan available today. TrustedChoice says, not every vehicle under $5,000 is a sedan or compact car. You can buy a Toyota Sienna on this price. And while we don't want this whole list of vehicles to be Toyota, it's no surprise there's more than one: Toyota makes cars that last. 2. 2002-2006 Toyota Camry is popular for more than thirty years, the Toyota Camry has fantastic trunk space, four doors, and famous Toyota reliability. There is always plenty available for sale at good prices. KBB says, you have to go back to 2003 to find Camry under $5,000, but this strong resale value is a reflection of the car's reliability in the long run. The 2002 to 2006 Toyota Camry appeared on 3 different lists of best used cars under $5,000 on KBB, AutoList, and Auto Dealer. 1. The 1996-2002 Mazda MX-5 Miata MX-5 Miata is one of the few sports cars under $5,000. It's a lightweight roadster that handles better than many vehicles that cost a lot more. According to Autobytel, a 130-140 horsepower produced by its 1.8-liter engine, four cylinders are more than enough to keep a smile on your face as you run through its manual five-speed gearbox.
