There are many different hieroglyphics that could inspire this. In Semitic, ancient Greek and Latin, the letter was a d/; in the Etruscan alphabet the letter was superfluous, but still preserved (see letter B). The equivalent Greek letter Delta, the K. Minus (lower) form of 'd' consists of a loop and a high vertical stroke. It developed by gradual changes on the form of majuscule (capital). In handwriting, it was common to start the arc to the left of the vertical impact, resulting in serifs at the top of the arc. This serif was expanded while the rest of the letter was shortened, resulting in angular motion and loop. The corner kick slowly turned into a vertical kick.
