A Scoutmaster has an important job in guiding scouts to advance, and scoutmaster conferences are a big step forward in the process. Actual progress is not the thing - it helps the scouts develop in character that is important. Many scouts can easily learn and demonstrate skills for signing up for promotion, but picking up above all the other benefits of scouting sometimes doesn't happen. If the scouts take some time to think about the scouting adventures that have taken them to their scoutmaster conference, they are more apt to feel a sense of fulfillment and set goals for further progress. Giving scouts an outline of topics to ponder is a great help for them to focus on their path through the program. This page can be completed by a scout and taken to a scoutmaster conference for ranking promotion. It should not be required, but should be available for the scouts to use as they wish. It should be given to scouts at least a week before the conference. A scoutmaster that saves sheets will have a valuable record of that scouting view over the years - and can present the plates back scout in eagle court honors or at least mention them for inspiration.
