But while we think the stone is hard, it is actually porous and can easily absorb spills or stains. This is why using natural stone in areas like your kitchen can damage your stone investment. Source: laticrete.com Dupont Premium Stone Sealer is a water-based sealer designed specifically for natural stone. Best for home use on surfaces such as countertops, backsplashes, floors and anywhere else you have stone-like surfaces including granite, marble, sandstone, flagpole, and even limestone. Etch marks are perhaps one of the most common damages that occur on a natural stone. They tend to occur most on limestone, travertine, and marble, which has not been properly sealed. If this is your first time working with a stone in your home, don't think you can easily remove etch marks through stain cleaning. They are extremely difficult to remove, so sealing is important. Sealing a stone is the only effective way to buy time in order to destroy spills. It also gives the added benefit of slowing the reaction time between alkaline or acidic substances and calcium carbonate content in stone. Fortunately, there is Laticrete StoneTech Professional Heavy Duty Sealer. This sealer was made especially for stone; Its advanced penetrating microbund protection formula leaves you with heavy protection against most types of spills and stains. While this sealant sure makes cleaning a lot easier, what it really does, it saves you money by making sure that your natural stone investments are always protected. Dupont Stonetech name in stone hermyl. This water-based formula offers professional protection of natural stone, so you don't have to fork out hundreds of dollars just to get your stone investment professionally sealed. If you are worried that this product will change the look of your stone, it is not. In fact, the natural beauty of your stone will be further enhanced after the seal, because it protects so well, especially from ethnicity, spills and stains. Anyone who has ever used natural stone on countertops, backsplashes, walls and floors can tell you that it is a headache to clean and maintain without proper sealing. And that's exactly what Laticrete StoneTech Professional Heavy Duty Sealer does - aside from certainly making your life much easier. Use this seal on different surfaces. It works well on granite, slate, travertine, marble, sandstone, flagpole, Saltillo tile, limestone and even mortar. This sealant can also be used on stones both inside and outside your home. How to use Dupont's Premium Stone Sealer as a professional is almost too easy! Keep in mind that it is important to follow the guidelines on the label for best results. Before you start, test on a small area, then let it heal within 24 hours. If you are working on a newly installed solution, let it be cured for at least 72 hours before application. The surface should always be free of coatings, waxes and dirt. It works best when the surface temperature is between 50F and 80F. Make sure the bottle cover is closed and give it a thorough shake. Mask from any areas nearby that will not be seen. Apply a uniform coat liberally using a brush, roller, paint pad, or low pressure sprayer. Let the seal penetrate the surface for 15 minutes, during which the surface should be wet with the sealer. If it dries, just add more as needed. Never let the seal dry on the surface. Using clean towels, wipe the surface dry. If you work with extremely porous surfaces, apply a second layer if necessary. This should be done within 40 minutes of the first application. If you find any seal residue, wet the area again with sealed then agitate it with a white nylon cleaning pad and wipe dry with a clean towel. Full treatment should be completed within 24 to 72 hours. The surface can be used in 8 hours. What people say is that Dupont's StoneTech Premium Stone Sealer is the homeowner's best friend if you have a stone. But how good is that?
