The cay movie amazon

Christmas movies are great, but sometimes they just don't have enough explosions. Fortunately, Amazon Prime Video doesn't limit itself to seasonal fare. The streaming service is full of movies, and they add new offerings every month, including the kind of movies that offer less goodwill toward men and more automatic arms fire. Whether you're looking for aliens, monsters, superheroes, or super-spies, Amazon Prime Video has plenty of high-octane movies filled with suspending fights and hilarious one-liners. If you want to escape the humdrum for a bit in a world of non-stop excitement, keep reading for the best action movies you can find right now on Amazon Prime.

True Lies (1994) What do you do when you learn the seemingly light-mannered mangled man you thought was just your boring man is actually a secret agent who spends his working days battling international terrorists? That's the question Helen Tasker (Jamie Lee Curtis) has to answer in 1994's True Lies. Arnold Schwarzenegger plays the clandestine operative who has to figure out a way to stop terrorists smuggling nukes into the U.S. while simultaneously trying to save his marriage. True Lies is an exciting and original action comedy that gives Schwarzenegger a chance to bend his comic muscles while still kicking butt and taking names. Rotten Tomatoes: 71% Stars: Arnold Schwarzenegger, Jamie Lee Curtis, Tom Arnold Director: James Cameron Rating: R Runtime: 121 minutes Watch on Amazon Prime

Air Force One (1997) A famous plane meant to be a safe haven for the U.S. president turned into a death trap in 1997's Air Force One. As President James Marshall (Harrison Ford), his family, and political colleagues return from a diplomatic dinner in Moscow, the plane is hijacked by Egor Korshunov (Gary Oldman) demanding the release of a terrorist general in exchange for the president's life. It's Die a plane, and just in the best of ways. Directed by Oscar-nominated Wolfgang Petersen (Tie Boot, The Perfect Storm) and including a dynamite cast (how can you go wrong with Gary Oldman as a bad guy?), Air Force One is a fun, exciting few hours. Rotten Tomatoes: 78% Stars: Harrison Ford, Gary Oldman, Glenn Close Director: Wolfgang Petersen Rating: R Runtime: 124 minutes Watch on Amazon Prime

GoldenEye (1995) From the growing list of actors who played the iconic British secret agent James Bond, Pierce Brosnan was one of the best and the first of his Bond entries stream on Amazon. Alec Trevelyan (Sean Bean), Bond's friend and compatriot, is killed during a 1986 mission. Nearly a decade later, Bond's busy life of espionage and women find him against terrorists about to use a space-based weapon, and the hero is shocked to learn the death of his friend is connected. GoldenEye has a new, 007, and it has all the romance, excitement and signature gadgets that have always made Bond movies a great ride. Rotten Tomatoes: 79% Stars: Pierce Brosnan, Sean Bean, Izabella Scorupco Director: Martin Campbell Rating: PG-13 Runtime: 130 minutes Watch on Amazon Prime

Crouching Tiger, Hidden Dragon (2000) There were plenty of imitations, but Crouching Tiger, Hidden Dragon still stands alone in the action genre. Set in 17th-century China, Crouching Tiger, Hidden Dragon has the epic extent of a Lord of the Rings film, as many multi-tiered and tragic heroes as the best of Shakespeare's plays, and some of the most beautiful choreographed sword duels you'll ever see. Zhang Ziyi plays Jen Yu, a young woman who refuses to stop her family's expectations from being China's biggest warrior. Standing in Jen's path are Li Mu Bai (Chow Yun-vet) and Yu Shu Lien (Michelle Yeoh), who grind to their decades-old unanswered love of finally finding a voice. With a stunning cinema and a haunting score, Crouching Tiger, Hidden Dragon in turn feels as ruthless as a '70s kung-fu flick and as sweet and sad as a love poem. Rotten Tomatoes: 97% Stars: Chow Yun-Fat, Michelle Yeoh, Zhang Ziyi Director: Ang Lee Rating: PG-13 Runtime: 120 minutes Watch on Amazon Prime

The Most Expensive (2010) If you think it's not possible to fit every action hero ever into the same movie, The Durables are here to prove Sylvester Stallone is pulling dual duty directing and starring in the first installment in this franchise. As she follows up, the durables are pure, joyful action. With huge explosions, a body count that keeps ticking, and wicked one-liners, the film calls back to a time when Stallone and Arnold Schwarzenegger wrestled for action movie dominance, and Bruce Willis surprised them both — fittingly, as all three action divas showed up in The Expendables. Joining them are Jason Statham, Jet Li, Dolph Lundgren, Steve Austin, and more. Rotten Tomatoes: 42% Stars: Sylvester Stallone, Jason Statham, Jet Li Director: Sylvester Stallone Rating: R Runtime: 103 minutes Watch on Amazon Prime

Underworld (2003) Vampires and werewolves. They never look from each other. Why not? Fang envy? Innocent victim hogging? Arguments about who gets to squat on stone gargoyles? We don't know, but whatever the two set on each other's throats, their old conflict is part of what makes an action-horror like Underworld so fun. Kate Beckinsale stars as Selene, the vampire assassin who wants revenge for the death of her family. But in her search for revenge, she exposes a conspiracy, including members of both of the monstrous species, making things much more complicated. With a cool comic book/gothic look and feel, Underworld is an action-filled ride with Bela Lugosi's grudges and Tim Burton's fashion sense. Rotten 31% Stars: Kate Beckinsale, Scott Speedman Director: Len Wiseman Rating: R Runtime: 121 minutes Watch on Amazon Prime

Bumblebee (2018) Transformers' movies aren't exactly known for a lot of heart, or easy to follow on-screen action. But Bumblebee changed the game for the Robots in Disguise. After an exciting opening sequence on the Transformers' home world, Cybertron, Bumblebee literally comes to Earth in 1987. Hailee Steinfeld's Charlie Watson comes across a badly damaged Bumblebee in his Volkswagen Beetle form, and she makes it her passion project to put him back together before realizing who and what he really is. Charlie and Bumblebee's relationship is a lot of fun to watch, but the action picks up when the Decepticons track him down on Earth. John Cena also has a very entertaining turn as Jack Burns, a Sector 7 agent who is openly suspicious of both Bumblebee and the Decepticons. This movie really captures the charm of the Transformers, and it should be the template for any future sequels. Rotten Tomatoes: 90% Stars: Hailee Steinfeld, John Cena, Jorge Lendeborg Jr. Director: Travis Knight Rating: PG-13 Runtime: 114 minutes Watch on Amazon Prime

Marvel's The Avengers (2012) As the first Marvel film to earn $1 billion in ticket sales at the box office, this film kicked off a fantastic storytelling that went ahead by three sequels. Avengers: Age of Ultrons: Avengers: Age of Ultrons: Avengers: Age of Ultrons: Infinity War, and Avengers: Endgame. With a star-sown cast playing all your favorite superheroes, this is the sixth film overall of the Marvel Cinematic Universe (MCU). Relye the action-packed scenes as the Avengers join forces and set out on a mission to stop Loki wreaking havoc on Earth. The film was widely considered one of the best of all time, an impressive performance for a superhero flick. Rotten Tomatoes: 92% Stars: Robert Downey Jr., Chris Evans, Mark Ruffalo Director: Joss Whedon Rating: PG Runtime: 143 minutes Watch on Amazon Prime

Warrior (2011) Most of the action in this film takes place in the ring as Tom Hardy and Joel Edgerton star as estranged brother art that is both a mixed The adrenaline is fueled in their battles by memories of their troubled childhood that they just can't shake, including an abusive, alcoholic father, a terminally ill mother, and a grudge held between them. It's a story about love, forgiveness, and, well, throwing a lot of punches to get there. Nick Nolte, who plays the father, was nominated for an Oscar for his supporting role. Rotten Tomatoes: 83% Stars: Joel Edgerton, Tom Hardy, Frank Grillo, Nick Nolte Director: Gavin O'Connor Rating: PG-13 Runtime: 140 Minutes Watch on Amazon Prime

Mission: Impossible - Fallout (2018) The Latest release in the franchise, Fallout to the increased standards of the more recent Mission: Impossible releases. When Ethan Hunt (Tom Cruise) Cruise) to save his team rather than complete a mission, stolen plutonium finds its way into the hands of brutal, extremely dangerous terrorists. Now his IMF team is being forced to join a CIA assassin (Henry Cavill) to stop an imminent nuclear disaster. Cruise and Cavill, two of today's best actors doing their own stunts, put on an absolute display of death-destructive stunts and fighting choreography. Rotten Tomatoes: 97% Stars: Tom Cruise, Henry Cavill, Rebecca Ferguson Director: Christopher McQuarrie Rating: PG Runtime: 147 Minutes Watch on Amazon Prime

Overlord (2018) How Does Nazi Super-Soldier Zombies Mark Your Fancy? If you think it sounds like a weird, B-movie awe, you wouldn't be wrong, but don't let that stop you from watching Overlord. This one has a lot more to give than just guts, gore, and survival of the fittest tropics. During D-Day, a troop of soldiers was covered dropped behind enemy lines in a French village, where their mission is to knock out a tower that interferes with the invasion. No one realizes, however, that they are due to a much nastier treat than some raging stormtroopers. Stumbling across the work of a mad scientist while desperately working not to reveal their presence in town, the American soldiers must work efficiently to protect their position while also moving on the tower and its cavalcade of horrors. Rotten Tomatoes: 82% Stars: Jovan Adepo, Wyatt Russell, Mathilde Ollivier Director: Julius Avery Rating: R Runtime: 110 minutes Watch on Amazon Prime

Captain America: The First Avenger (2011) One of the few Marvel movies available for free on Amazon Prime is also a great primer for anyone new to the Marvel Cinema Captain America: The First Avenger is the, a scrappy Brooklyn kid eager to contribute to America's war effort, which keeps being denied by the military for being too, well, scrappy. His heart, however, catches the eye of a defiant German scientist who is working on a top-secret supersoldier project with the U.S. government. After undergoing the transformation, Rogers as a spokesman for the war still deemed unfit for battle. But he'll take matters into his own hands to get on the front lines. Rotten Tomatoes: 80% Stars: Chris Evans, Hugo Weaving, Hayley Atwell Director: Joe Johnston Rating: PG Runtime: 124 Minutes Watch on Amazon Prime

Highlander (1986) There Can Only Be One Highlander! That slogan is particularly appropriate for this movie, a wild mix of high fantasy, time-travelling, the late Sean Connery in all his Scottish (even if he's Spanish?) glory, and loads and plenty of '80s action movie camp. Russell Mulcahy, director of the first music video ever broadcast on MTV, brings an astonishing degree of lunacy and distortion to this film that is the of the Scottish Highlands and quick cut, neon, catch, Catch, rows practically on top of each other. It works oddly. Queen provides the soundtrack to this wild movie about an immoral Scottish swordsman who must travel to kill his one final remaining immoral enemy to become The One Highlander. Rotten Tomatoes: 69% Stars: Christopher Lambert, Roxanne Hart, Clancy Brown, Sean Connery Director: Russell Mulcahy Rating: R Runtime: 111 minutes Watch on Amazon Prime

Inception (2010) Combining elements of science fiction with action, this mind-bending film will intrigue you as you watch the story of a professional thief who taps into the unconscious of his targets in order to steal the information Once he's caught, however, he gets the opportunity to go free on one condition: He must implant someone else's ideas in a target's subconscious mind. Is it really possible to manipulate people in such a way? Filmed in six countries, it's a marvel to watch and one of those films that will spark a conversation once it's over. Rotten Tomatoes: 87% Stars: Leonardo DiCaprio, Ken Watanabe, Joseph Gordon-Levitt Director: Christopher Nolan Rating: PG-13 Runtime: 148 minutes Watch on Amazon Prime

Guns Akimbo (2019) Guns Akimbo is more than just the movie that launched 1,000 Daniel Radcliffe memes. It's also one of the wildest action comedies to come together in years. Radcliffe stars as Miles Lee Harris, a keyboard warrior who is angry with the big players behind Skizm, a literal online death sentence. To return against Miles, Skizm's mastermind bolt guns to his hands and force him to take on the game's deadliest player, Nix (Samara Weaving). And to force his cooperation, the bad guys also kidnap Miles' ex-girlfriend, Nova (Natasha Liu Bordizzo). Miles is far from a conventional action hero, but through an odd mix of luck and casual skill, he creates his own legend in the game. He's Guns Akimbo. Rotten Tomatoes: 53% Stars: Daniel Radcliffe, Samara Weaving, Natasha Liu Bordizzo Director: Jason Lei Howden Rating: R Runtime: 95 minutes Watch on Amazon Prime

Casino Royale (2006) Few could have predicted that Daniel Craig would still be James Bond 14 years after his first 007 movie. Certainly not Craig himself, who briefly swore of the role before agreeing to return one last time in No Time to Die. But Casino Royale is the first film with Craig's Bond, and it's by far one of the best installments of the franchise. Casino Royale almost entirely exacerbates the camper elements of Bond's repertoire and plays more grounded and plausible action. The opening parkour chase is a great example of that. But the highlight of this film is the way it gives Bond a heart through his relationship with Vesper Lynd (Eva Green). She may be his partner and his lover, but Vesper has secrets all her own. Rotten Tomatoes: 95% Stars: Daniel Craig, Eva Green, Mads Director: Martin Martin Rating: PG-13 Runtime: 144 minutes Watch on Amazon Prime

The Boondock Saints (1999) On its limited release just over two decades ago, The Boondock Saints were powed by critics and largely ignored by audiences. However, the film has since gained a cult following for its story and its two leading men: former Young Indiana Jones star Sean Patrick Flanery and The Walking Dead's Norman Reedus. Flanery and Reedus portray twin brothers Connor and Murphy MacManus, who run afoul of the Russian gang. The MacManus brothers soon have a shared religious experience convincing them to eliminate the bad men of Boston in the name of God. Willem Dafoe also co-stars as Paul Smecker, an FBI Special Agent who is sympathetic to the brothers even as he faces his own inner demons. Ignoring the critics on this one, The Boondock Saints are an easy action flick to enjoy. Rotten Tomatoes: 26% Stars: Willem Dafoe, Sean Patrick Flanery, Norman Reedus Director: Troy Duffy Rating: R Runtime: 108 minutes Watch on Amazon Prime

Ronin (1998) The biggest issue with working with a bunch of mercenaries is that you can't trust a bunch of mercenaries. That's the problem Sam (Robert De Niro) faces when he joins a crew in the suspension action thriller Ronin. Along with a team of other ex-spies and at least one wants to be, Sam is hired by the tight-lipped Deirdre (Natascha McElhone) to steal a briefcase of unknown content. Sam — clearly the most experienced and skilled of the bunch — confronts betrayal, ineptitude and temptation to reach his mission. Particularly impressive in Ronin is a series of incendiary car chases. Set in relatively narrow European roads with relatively modest cars, the chasers have a more claustrophobic and desperate feel than the explosion-filled, flip-happy car pursuits in action films in America. Rotten Tomatoes: 68% Stars: Robert De Niro, Jean Reno, Sean Bean, Natascha McElhone Director: John Frankenheimer Rating: R Runtime: 122 Minutes Watch on Amazon Prime
