Carpentry merit badge boy scouts

The BSA had a special program in honor of the 100th anniversary of the BSA founder, which included the reintroduction, only for 2010, of four historical merit badges - joinery, pathfinding, signalling and tracking. The basics of the Historical Merit Badges 2010 program included: The overall goal of the program was that most registered BSA Scouts earn one or more merit badges in the 100-year year, 2010. The badges offered had a history that could be traced to the BSA's origin. The original requirements were applied, as well as supported by the pages of the early merit badge pamphlets, so that the Scout could see what the Scout used 100 years ago. Support for the scanned pages of the original pamphlets were information guides for each merit badge, which explained what the Scout of The Scout of 1910 might have experienced, along with background information to help the Scout understand what might be unknown expressions. The badges for modern merit closely resemble the original designs of their counterparts, with the exception of the boundary, which is gold. The unique boundary will immediately define them as historical merit badges from 2010. The date of entry into force of these new merit badges was 1 April 2010 and the requirements had to be met no later than 31. BSA did not print leaflets for these merit badges. Reprints of the original merit badge pamphlets were posted to Download a pdf of the Original Merit Badge Book Download a pdf with the New Information for This Merit Badge These are the original requirements recorded in 1911. Requirements: To obtain a badge of merit for joinery must scout: Prove the use of rule, square, level, plumbing-line, miter, chalk-line and bevel. Prove the correct path to run, adjust and clinch the nail, draw the tip with a claw-hammer and combine two pieces of wood with screws. Show correct use of cross saw and torn saw. Show how to flats the edge, end, and wide surface of the plank. Prove how shingles. Make a simple furniture product for practical use in the home or on a home basis, finished in a working manner, all work to be done without assistance. BSA Advancement ID#: 139 Requests were last updated at: 2010 Publication number: 00000 Pamlet Stock (SKU) Number: NONE Pamphlet Revision Date: 1928 Page updated on: November 28, 2017 Comments: Feb 16, 2014 - Olinn BrownMed of Summer of 2010, I counseled 12 skauts and our troop on Carpentry. It was a collection of young and older Scouts. Their project was to build a birdhouse out of parts I'd already cut out. However, scouts had to hand the hands at length, plane Edge the grain and edge of the front, mail and screw parts together and curl the roof with small cedar shakes. We've covered the other requirements of the badge. I grew up in a building and was dinghy when I found out that some of our scouts had never driven nails or installed a wood bolt. No one's ever handled a plane before, some of them have never had a board. And apparently no one's ever seen a monster, chalk line or a plumbing bob. The bird house was pretty good with the help of the older scouts and they thought the chalk line was extra cool! Since even in our technologically advanced society, people may have to drive a nail or set a screw or even see something, I am extremely disappointed that the joinery has been cancelled. Olin Brown Troop 1222, College Stn., TXFeb 23, 2014 - Mark SmilorKo I grew up, I built many small projects in my grandfather's garage. It gave me an appreciating how to properly do wooden projects, and safely! I am disappointed that the table badge is no longer available, as the Scouts should be unjustified and creative. I would like to think that there are builders and remodelers who would be happy to do a demonstration of today's construction techniques with modern equipment! Please think about it! Mar 09, 2014 - Anthony LiguoriThen it's a shame and a tragedy that it's not part of the current badge menu. Although the above requirements are quite weak on this topic, there seems little reason not to strengthen and update the requirements for re-inauling this useful and matching option. It is easy to argue that the development of skills and experience in this area has at least as much, if not more relevance and use than many of the other badges currently offered. April 22, 2014 -- Rick Rosel agrees-- This badge should come to life. I can't imagine why it was abolished, except perhaps because of the old-fashioned nature of the demands. Even as an antique hobbyist tool, I had to examine the importance of clinching the nail. But I wouldn't give up introducing old tools and techniques. Put them on the side with electrical tools and take the opportunity to discuss the benefits and disadvantages of each. But bring it back by all means! Apr 30, 2015 - ShellyLet makes me understand this and three more historical badges have been revoked, but is the Collections badge an option? The Boy Scouts have changed. Sep 03, 2015 - Debbie MorrisMy son, Zachary, receives this badge of merit on August 13, 2010. Unfortunately, he's had his sash. I have all his signed blue cards, so he was able to replace all his merit badges, except this one. Is it possible to order one when I provide proof that he deserved it? He's about to have his own Eagle Court and would be happy to have this on his sash for his Eagle Court of Honor.Thank you, Debbie Morris California Sep 04, 2015 - Bjorn WangThen is for sale on Ebay for $3.50 right now. These are sold out. Apr 02, 2016 - Joseph BrincatYes, by all means brings back the MBA mizerstvo. With all the emphasis these days on STEM and the urgent need for our youth to be exposed to tactile skills, we need more, not fewer MB, in this arena. Boy Scouts who can't nail a nail, crazy! Outdated skill! ... No necessity, go hire a carpenter for a $100 job. Joe Brincat , Farmington Hills, MI Jun 10, 2017 - Wade Harmani agrees with other posts, this badge of merit should be reinstalled with updated requirements. There are plumbing, welding and woodworking (small objects) badges for merit, but not joinery (larger items). Nov 21, 2019 - DanDoing away with this badge of merit is like doing away with shop classes in high school and has led to young adults who don't know how to use tools or work with their hands. It's all in full circle now and we have a huge labour shortage and when young adults show up at a commercial school, they have to start at an even more basic level because things don't learn in high school or scouts. Everything comes back to haunt us. Please reinstateDec 08, 2019 - We have learned in this badge of merit that are vital and should be necessary for anyone (not just scouts) who has a home. Too many people these days have no idea how to use the tools or what's needed for the project. With so many Eagle Scouts projects, I see that the construction is connected so that i wouldn't have this badge as an eagle's request, it doesn't make sense to me. Please bring back that badge now! Jan 07, 2020 - RuthMy son is only 11 years old, but he knows she wants to be a carpenter. Please bring that badge back. He made loggers. Woodworks are next. It just makes sense to offer the next level up. The whole point in the BSA is not necessarily to earn badges (promotion is happening naturally in a well-run company), but to diversify from the mundane and find your interests while learning to act as a contributing member of society. It's a badge that boys can be proud of, and one that could lead not only to a hobby, but also to a career. Contest - Ask a Question - Add ContentThird is not officially affiliated with The Scouts of America Revised January 2019 Do the following: Explain to the adviser the most likely dangers you can encounter while participating in the activities of a woodworker, and what you need to do to anticipate, help prevent, mitigate and respond to these threats. Please explain what precautions to take for the safe use of the tool. Show that you know first aid with damage that can occur during woodworking, including particles, scratches, cuts, severe bleeding and shock. Tell me what precautions should be taken to prevent loss of vision or hearing, and explain why and when a dust mask should be used. Earn credit for Totin' Chip. Do this: Describe how wood is grown, harvested and minced. Tell me how the wood is cured, spicy, and size. Collect and mark blocks of six types of wood useful in wood working. Describe the main characteristics of each. Give the best use of each. Do the following: Show appropriate care, use and storage of all work tools and equipment you own or use at home or at school. Sharpen the cutting edges of two different tools correctly. Use a saw, plane, hammer, splint and bite to make something useful out of wood. Cut out parts of wood that have been squared and measured from working drawings. Create your own woodworking project. Start by making a working drawing, specify the materials you will need to complete the project, and then build the project. Keep track of the time you spend and the cost of materials. Do any of the following: Make work drawings of a project that needs bleached or rounded margins and build it. Create project work drawings that require curved or sliced incisions and build them. Make working drawings of a project that needs miter, dowel, or mortise and tenon joints and build it. Make a cupboard, box or something else with a door or lid attached to inset hinges. Help make and repair wooden children or help implement a woodworking service project approved by your charity consultant. Talk to a carpenter or a carpenter. Find out more about the training, apprenticeships, career opportunities, working conditions, working hours, pay rates and union organisation that woodworkers have in your field. Woodwork Worksheet Comments: Apr 18, 2018 - SarahI stumbled on this page googling something for my son. I like all the information and links on this page. Now my son has a website to get all the information and worksheets etc. he needs for what he works on.
