Children's and family development and early intervention. This 85-year-old master's credit program focuses exclusively on the special needs and vulnerabilities of children from birth to the age of 3 and their families. It prepares social workers for professional roles that combine both educational and clinical skills for effective work in the field of early intervention. The design of the programme includes theoretical and practical aspects of each degree in a cohesive programme. Applicants apply for each institution and are accepted separately in each institution. The degrees, both in MSED and MSED in child and parental development, are awarded simultaneously upon completion of the entire program. The requirements of the programme shall meet the accreditation standards for each grade. During the first two years of the program, students have intensive experience in each institution, starting with Bank Street. In year 3, students move between the two institutions to complete coursework. Both institutions require supervised accommodation. Students are responsible for training in both Sylberman and Bank Street.
