PvP rules by people who load their decks with the same cards to the point at higher levels each match feels the same and can be won in the first 3 turns. This game would have been much better if some of the cheesy cards that allow you to call 3 or 4 monsters for your turn were actually rare and didn't hand out to everyone. I want an actual duel not just to watch someone playing half their deck in one twist and win. Also, I don't understand the shuffled aspect. I've noticed some of my best spell cards rarely get put in my hand while the same 3 cards will be constantly put in my hand. I once got to turn 30 on strategy and using my spells and trap cards, hoping to be considered my favorite magic card only to never see it in 15 turns myself. There's no way these cards are being shuffled as they should be. I even rearranged my deck and don't see any improvement. Overall playing on the computer at higher levels is fun, but PvPs get monotonous when everyone is playing the same way to get quick and cheesy wins in 3 turns. I want to actually duel like in anime/game. Not only do cheese call cards to get all my best monsters to turn 2. It's not the way the game is played. No one calls their best monster in 2 twists in any episode ive ever seen. This game is great in many ways and dynamics. The number one thing to give credit for is not paying to win. They have a great alignment system with excellent rewards. Which makes it easy to catch up if you haven't played in a while. It's very easy for new people. I could never get my friend to play the actual card game, but I got him to play it, and now he's playing the actual game with me because this app has taught him how to play. I love animation for those monsters that Their. But now I have to say something that needs improvement. The dialogue is so crappy; I'm always his on silence! Also, I understand there are a lot of cards missing, and the reason will progress in the game over time and keep it relevant. However, the game is a game only before the era of synchronization, and the era of synchronization does not have as much progress as the merger and the original era. It's definitely time for an era of synchronization, and all its characters to get their support maxed out. There are so many stardust, red dragon, black wing and many other cards missing from the game today. Xyz can also be turned on at last. I mean yugioh vrains is already getting kinda close to finishing. This game is a lot of fun and I play it every day and I don't plan to stop as long as the progression system stays the same and they update the cards. There definitely should be more cards in general though; great game and I even recommend people who have never played yugioh. I really like this app. I played Hearthstone, but it felt like such a horrible grind just to get cards that were remotely useful. This app gives you so many options to get competitive pretty quickly. You can definitely pay for the packages, and I honestly considered it (because I legitimately want to support this app, not actually because I need cards) but the nice thing is I don't feel like I have to play competitively. I want to throw a special cry to one particular feature that really deserves recognition: a tramp. If you don't know his reputation just to do a quick Google search, he has problems that make it hard to win, but used super op decks that seemed to always get the best draws. With recent changes in the tramp I see it as a really valuable resource in the game. Its problems are a little better tuned, and the XP benefits are still admirable. The thing that really adds value, however, is that the tramp gives you a chance to look at his deck after a duel with him. Its decks are taken from high-ranking duelists, so it's a great way to see what the best players are using, what meta is, and what is currently tech'd in certain decks. Overall it's easy 5 stars. I personally recommended this app to friends by word of mouth and I will be happy to continue playing it! Developer of the website App Support privacy policy Yu-Gi-Oh!
