Mexico age of consent 14

Dave Gibson, May 31, 2019 Recently, Fox News reported that an illegal alien, Valentin Ariosto Alfonso-Arguello, 38, was sentenced to 20 years behind bars for raping a Mississippi girl. A 12-year-old victim was raped inside a Mexican state pickup truck, just feet from her home. While the reason behind the massive number of child sexual assaults committed by illegal aliens is being ignored by the public press, there is a fairly simple (and sickening) explanation for the epidemic. Fifteen-year-old girls have a ceremony called Quinceañera, which announces their availability to become wives, mothers and girlfriends. In America, children of this age are expected to finish another three years in high school, which followed, hopefully, a college education. But in Mexico, young girls are considered available, according to law and the public, immigration expert Brenda Walker wrote in 2007. While most Americans would be shocked by the cultural norms that make this kind of a resentful throughout our neighbor to the South. Put very bluntly, paedophilia is actually protected by many Mexican laws. You see, the age of sexual consent throughout much of Mexico, including its capital, is only 12 years old. Unfortunately, the culture of sex with young girls is brought to this country by many Mexican men, along with their inexpensive, albeit illegal labor, and both real and potential voices. An example of this attitude can be found in the Mexican state of Diego Lopez-Mendez, who pleaded guilty in 2006 to sexually assaulting a 10-year-old West Virginia girl. Through an interpreter he told the court: In pueblo, where I grew up, girls are usually married to a 13-year-old. I didn't know about the offense character or that it was a bad crime. And given his background, he probably didn't know that sexually assaulting a child was a bad crime. Article 261 of the Mexican Federal Criminal Code states: Who, without sharing, performs sexual activity with a person under the age of 12 years, or a person who does not have the ability to understand the meaning of the act, or that for any reason cannot resist, or demands that the act be carried out, will be punishable by a term of between 2 and 5 years in prison. In addition to Mexico City, the age of consent is 12 in the following Mexican countries (as of December 2018): Aguascalientes Baja California Sur Guanajuato Guerrero Jalisco Michoacan Morelos Oax Puebla Sinaloa Sonora Tamaulipas Zacatecas In addition, the age of consent nayarit is actually referred to as puberty; fail to understand Tabasco; and a teenager in Veracruz. Mexican state of Baja California (where the age of consent is 14) to prosecute what is known as a crime of estupro, or sexual misconduct with a child, claims another century (e.g. seventh, perhaps). Estrupo translates as follows: If the child's consent is obtained with temptation and/or deceit. However, the law also states that a female victim must be pure and honest. Imagine the terror experienced by a 14-year-old rape victim who, already emotionally crushed, must go before a civil servant and prove that she is honest! It is indeed very simple: if you allow migration for a large number of people from one particular region of the world, you are also calling for the culture of that region to be detained in your country. In this case, our children are irreparably damaged by this transplanted culture. The acceptance by our politicians that the theft of a child's innocence is simply an additional harm justified by their corrupt objectives of an open border is simply unacceptable. And the lack of coverage given to this issue by the national press loses the right of each nation's mainstream media to call his or her self journalist. * Facebook censors and their fact checkers from SNOPEs are more than welcome to research this for yourself, please follow the intended link to Article 261, and here's one that will make it easier for you as well. The age of consent in Mexico is 17 years old. The age of consent is the minimum age at which an individual is considered lawful enough to consent to participation in sexual activities. Persons 16 years of age or younger in Mexico are legally unable to consent to sexual activity and may result in prosecution of statutory rape or equivalent to local law. Mexico's law of rape law has violated Mexico's consent age varies from state to state, from the low of 16 to the high of 18. There are different consent laws that vary from country to country. There are 20 territories in Mexico that have their own local consent rules. These territories are listed in the following table: Mexico does not have an almost age-free exemption. Near-age exceptions, known as Romeo and Juliet laws in the United States, are introduced to prevent prosecution of individuals engaging in consensual sexual activity if both participants are significantly close to the age of each other, and one or both partners are younger than the age of consent. Since there is no close exemption from old age in Mexico, it is possible that two persons under the age of 17 who are willing to engage in sexual intercourse, although it is being prosecuted for statutory rape, although this is rare. Likewise, for sexual relations in which one participant is 16 years old and the second is 17 or 18 years old, protection is not provided for. The age of consent ranges from as low as 11 to 20 years of age worldwide. In some countries there is no legal age of consent, but all sexual relations are prohibited outside of marriage. Choose any country for more information on local laws. Find age of consent laws in the United States Each country has laws that dictate the age at which a person can legally consent to sex, called consent age laws. If a person has sex with someone under the age of consent, they are guilty of statutory rape. Basically, they have had sex with someone who, by law, could not possibly agree to the act. Because rape is sex without consent, they are guilty of rape. Age of consent differences between men and women In many countries, the age of consent for men and women varies. In some countries there is an exception to the age consent legislation if both partners are close to the same age (usually the difference from 2 or 3 years), and in most of these countries penalties are more severe if one of the partners is significantly older than the other. However, note that if both partners are older than the age of consent, the age difference between them is not significant. Also, some states distinguish between sex between man and woman, and sex between 2 men or 2 women. In many countries, until very recently, any form of homosexual sex was illegal, regardless of age. In other countries, the age of consent for such activities is higher, but it is not illegal at all. The age of consent to homosexual conduct recently, the U.S. Supreme Court found that laws that prohibit consensual, private sexual conduct (including homosexual conduct) among adults are unconstitutional and cannot be enforced by any country. However, in some countries there are still these laws on books. It is therefore unclear what the age of consent of homosexual acts is in these countries. It is probable that a national court, assuming that it does not attempt to enforce an unconstitutional law, will simply not heterosexual intercourse, but it is not safe. Acceptable differences Ages Seeking Legal Help If you are accused of statutory rape, you should consult a criminal defense attorney immediately. You should also seek legal advice if you are involved in a relationship that you believe may violate your country's age consent laws. 100Join Yahoo Answers and get 100 points today.
