Pokemon Calculators Insights Raid List PVP Guide Tier List Tier 4 Raid Boss Difficulty Guide: Doable at Trainer Level 30 with proper HP9,000 ATK210.14 DEF179.33 CP Range Lvl 20 2103 - 2191 Lvl 25 2629 - 2739 Move Difficulty Bite Easy Iron Tail Intermediate Moving Difficulty Crunch Easy Stone Edge Intermediate Blast Fire Believe or Not, Tyranitar is a relatively light duo if you have a proper line-up of combat types such as Lucario, Conkeldurr and Maham. Most fully evolved Fight-type Pokemon are actually capable of the Tyranitar duo, although they should be good at dodging tight kits like Iron Tail and Fire Blast. Approach Teams Composition Many combat types will do, but Lucario, Conkeldurr, and Machamp are the best. Blaziken is a good addition to the team against fire Blast Glassy selections such as Breloom can be useful to help beat the clock and round out the team, although the aforementioned fighters stand head and shoulders above everything else. Despite its overall power, no Shadow Pokemon can currently even touch the normal versions of Lucario, Conkeldurr and Machamp. Dodging Strategy Consider Dodging Fire Blast for Survivability, as this increases the win % of most counters if using counters at a minimum viable level, avoiding relobby near mandatory Note counters: Good movesets are not necessarily viable at the level specified. Counters are viable at 25 Lucario Fast MoveCharge MoveRating Pros: Top overall performance against Tyranitar and overall superb Excels counter in many matches. Resists the dark type of gums and the iron tail. Also, Double Resistance Stone Edge Cons: Weak Fire Blast Is Still Considered a Somewhat Rare Conkeldurr Fast MoveCharge MoveRating Dynamic Punch Top Pros: Extremely Powerful General Choice, Sports Superior General TDO in Lucario due to a bit of DPS Resists Stone Edge and Dark Type movesets usually available, before evolution is now a pretty general level 1 raid boss cons: : Many players have one, as it featured on Community Day Resists Dark Type movesets and Fire Cons Blast: He doesn't resist Rock, so he fights more against Stone Edge prone to fainting with remnants of energy for his charged move Toxicroak Fast MoveCharge MoveRating Dynamic Punch Top Pros: Resists Dark and Rock Type movesets Cons: Benefits from dodging multiple charged moves , ESP. Fire Blast General Under-Performer, requires help from top DPS and TDO teammates to carry the fight. Best as a backup. Heracross Fast MoveCharge MoveRating Counter Close Combat Best Pros: Resists Dark Movesets Cons: Must Dodge Fire Blast, since Heracross is almost one hit KO'd It's a regional kind that is unavailable to many players He doesn't resist Rock, so he fights more against Stone Edge Counters Counters at level 35 Gallade Fast MoveCharge MoveRating Low Kick Close Combat Best Pros: Recommended the previous day community, so many players have one Resists Stone Edge Cons: He doesn't resist Dark, so he has more problems against shadow Crunch Gallade momentum offered by being the Shadow place of Pokemon Gallade in about the same stadium as Toxicroak and Blaziken in terms of overall power. It's acceptable, but not a top striker in this raid. Emboar Fast MoveCharge MoveRating Low Kick Focus Blast Best Pros: Resists Dark Type Movesets and Fire Cons Blast: He Doesn't Resist Rock, so he fights more against. Stone Edge is now a fairly rare species with an almost inevitable Community Day, likely to come in the future - not the recommended investment of Alakazam Fast MoveCharge MoveRating Pros: Acceptable DPS, especially in the shadow of forme Cons: Very fragile in this fight, dodging almost necessarily the weak dark type of moves requires his Community Day move to be worth a poor overall performance relegates Alakazam into a reserve position at best Shadow It's very fragile, and risks outright not being able to throw away the Focus. Even so, even if he does manage to land his charged move, his average DPS is only on par with Breloom or Machamp on average. which makes it a bad general choice. Email update for Pokemon GO. The best counters of Tyranitar are a strong fighting type of Pokemon like Machamp, Hariyama, Breloom, Lucario and Blaziken. Tyranitar can be caught in the following ranges of the CP raid: 2103 - 2191 CP (level 20, no weather increase) 2629 - 2739 CP (level 25, weather increase) Tyranitar can be solo with changes to Super Effective damage with the PVP update, provided you are lucky, team Machamp, and cloudy weather, but we recommend you make attempts with 2 or more. List of the best Tyranitar counters Tyranitar Weakness Fighting x2 Mistake Fairy Grass Land Steel Steel Water increased partially cloud fog Supreme Tyranitar counters Machamp Breloom Hariyama Excellent counters Toxicroak Blaziken Lucario Gallade Poliwrath Heracross Infernape Good counters Metssagro Tyranitar takes double super effective damage from fighting, Which leads to a fairly simple choice we strongly recommend sticking to combat types as they simply surpass any other type against Tyranitar. The best Pokemon to fight Tyranitar is Machamp with Counter/Dynamic Kick or Karate Chop/Dynamic Kick. Any other double fight scored a move set performs fine, since the difference in exit damage is a maximum of about 15%. Machamp also takes reduced damage dark and rock moves, so even with it the lack of HP HP Will be able to land a few charge moves before he faints. Here are some tips for the TTar duo Raiders: Use an army of pretty solid Machamps Don't worry about time, you have plenty of time to make sure you have double combat moves on all your Machamps Be on the lookout for weather-boosted raids - Pokemon Fast Move Move Time to win Deaths 1. It's hit hard by the host top-level attackers and the laundry list of greats/must have Pokemon that might run it down. However, it is also a very polarizing raid due to the fact that virtually everything that is viable for this raid falls into one of two categories: the weak is basically everything that Kyurem has, or are resistant to basically everything that Kyurem has. For this reason, blue is usually your best friend when creating a team. The approach of the Metagross line-up and the shadow of the Mets is ridiculously good in this raid. While they may not have an absolute top DPS, they still have DPS far beyond duo levels and TDO that puts everything else in disgrace. Priorities Metagross and its shadow forme! Lucario, Dialga, and Shadow Gardevoir tend to be the best secondary picks, although they tend to have lower TDO than Metagross without a huge increase in DPS. Named dragons can be used as they have top DPS, but keep in mind that they will be torn apart the vast majority of Kourem's moves. It is best to front-load them, and use them only as a filler. Fighting strategies Given the right counters, the watch is not a problem. The real enemy here is swooning, so reasonable evasion is certainly encouraged. Re-entry will almost certainly be necessary. Note: Good movements are not necessarily viable at this level. Metagross Fast MoveCharge MoveRating Bullet Punch Meteor Mash Best Pros: Absolutely Outstanding Combination of DPS and TDO! Kyurem resists the entire moveset Good overall availability, has been shown in its own community day Cons: Only a viable moveset uses Meteor Mash, an elite move. Shadow Metagross Is the top counter for this raid. Keeps its base forme massive TDO and adds to it a huge leap in DPS. Rampardos Fast MoveCharge MoveRating Smack Down Rock Slide Best Pros: Best Non-Shadow, The non-dragon DPS Worthy overall availability, has been featured in several events Cons: Weak for steel wing Frail, appreciates the dodging of the Gardevoir Fast MoveCharge MoveCharge MoveRating Charm Dazzling Gleam Best Pros: Double-resists Dragon Type movesets Excels in general cloudy weather, normal Gardevoir is viable for a duo level at DPS.37 hitting for solid DPS with a great TDO. Performance suffers Vs. Other movesets Machamp Fast MoveCharge MoveRating Counter Dynamic Punch Best Pros: Old Classics: Machamp was available from day one, was featured in events, and has been the general boss of the raid since the creation of the Shadow Machamp System One of the best counters to date, sporting the highest DPS of any Pokemon in general cloudy weather in particular. Palkia Fast MoveCharge MoveRating Dragon Breath Draco Meteor Best Pros: Resistance Steel Wing Takes Neutral Damage From Ice Type Movesets Thanks to Secondary Water Typing Cons: Weak Dragon Type Movesets Legendary Species, It Can Be Hard to Get Candy for Conkeldurr FastCharge MoveRating Counter Dynamic Punch Best Pros: Good General Availability, Pre-Evolution The views have been shown since day one and has its own day of community Cons: Best Performance Comes From Its Elite Move, Rock Wrecker Weak for Ice Type Movesets and Steel Wing Reshiram Fast MoveCharge MoveRating Dragon Breathing Draco Meteor Best Pros: Takes Neutral Ice Damage Type Movesets thanks to Secondary Fire Resists Steel Wing: Less Than Stellar Total Performance Candy can be hard to get Tyranitar Fast MoveCharge MoveRating Smack Down Stone Edge Best Pros: shared availability. It was featured in several events, was a common common Boss from day one, and had his own day of community cons: Only the shadow of Tyranitar is really viable for this raid. Normal Tyranitar does not reach the required DPS even on the Lv.40 Weak Steel Wing requires Smack Down, an elite step to be a viable Shadow Tyranitar Acceptable overall performance, but not exceptional. Don't raise for this raid, but not a terrible choice if you already have one raised/s Smack Down. Salamence Fast MoveCharge MoveRating Pros: Very high DPS, especially in Shadow Forme Cons: Weak for all to keep the steel wing, double weak for Blizzard Extremely fragile as a result, basically requires dodging mostly requires its elite move. Outrage as it is unlikely to get out of the Draco Meteor, and is almost guaranteed not to use the second shadow of The Salamen Top DPS, but will go down very quickly. Rayquaza Fast MoveCharge MoveRating Pros: Cons: Weak for everything to keep the steel wing, double weak to Make Blizzard Extremely fragile as a result, basically requires dodging the legendary look, it can be hard to get candy for Dragonite Fast MoveCharge MoveRating Pros: Great DPS, especially in Shadow Forme Cons: Weak, To keep the steel wing, double weak to Blizzard Extremely fragile as a result, basically requires Garchomp Fast MoveCharge MoveCharge MoveRating Pros: Cons: Weak for all to save steel wing, double weak Blizzard Extremely fragile as a result, basically requires dodging from the Zebra Fast MoveCharge MoveRating Dragon Breath Draco Top pluses: Weak for everything else Sign up for other newsletters here.
