Recently I ordered a custom Euro Forge Mini for me D&D Character. I wanted to play a Doctor Witch woman and I couldn't find a mini that reflected the character I had in mind. This article covers what the Forge Hero experience was like from delivery design so you can make up yourself on whether a mini forge hero is worth it for you! hello! This post can be connected to online stores. If you click on a link and buy something, I can get a commission. learn more. I have also ordered a mini print color from Forge Heroes and added that experience to this article too! Hero Forge custom mini delivery box design Which design options are on Forge hero in? Oh, a lot! And they were added to all the time! The Hero Library For Library just keeps on growing! They add new options every week on 'Treasure Tuesday!' Since I ordered my mini me a couple of months ago, they've added an entirely new race called Giggle-the Dog, a human with a hyen head and legs. When you start designing your mini, it's probably easier to start with your character's race because you'll be able to see what Gear looks better with their proportions. Custom Forge Hero tool miniature creator You get total control over the thing you would expect such as race, height, armor and gear. But you also get to choose the facial features, hair, position, proportion of body parts right down to the angle of the hands, feet etc! You can even customize your character base and add objects to make it fit perfectly with your character. It's really amazing. You really can create what all you can imagine. As you dive into the customization options you'll find that you can create a mini for what all your RPG world is putting in. Everything comes from medieval, to sci-fi, to west. Prepare you to spend a good hour or more on your design. Not because the tool is hard to use, but because you're enjoying things trying out and want to make it perfect! What is the design process like? The designer is really easy to use and you can save your design whenever you want so you can go back to it later. I love that you can come back and tweak your character later on in your campaign to reflect your character's development. There are many options to choose from that as I was designing my mini, I kept discovering new options that I want to try out. When I tried a new option, it undid some of my earlier decisions. I recommend having a browse to all the different menus and options and having a play before you dive straight into the design. Then you know what kind of thing matters can choose! Tip. Choose your character's proportions and pose before deciding on the Gear. It can change which team look good on them! One of the options I discovered late in my design was tweaking the angles and heights of different aspects of different parts of my character. It was a good job too because some of it looked weird based on my selection. Witchdoctor custom Hero Forge design with shoulder cutting and cassette tapes See how the tapes will be in the shoulder pad? At first, I thought I might have changed my selection. But then I found the advanced table in the Pose section which let me adjust the displayed shoulder and row height to it. During the design process, you can turn your mini around 360 degrees to see what it looks like from all angles and even under. It's so useful to check that everything is absolutely perfect! Colors in October 2020, Forge Hero launched their new print options – Plastic Colors, along with an update to the design interface, including seasonal background for when designing your mini! Full disclosures, Hero Forge offers a $50 gift card to create my own color mini colors using the new color tools but with no obligation to create a review. At that time, I didn't play any RPG campaign that I needed a mini so I decided to create a miniature me! Because Forge heroes have so many clothing options, I was able to create a mini-swearing what I usually do on a typical day home! A custom mini color I'm using Hero Forge Color tool Ok, so I don't usually have a penguin hanging out with me at home! But I could. I totally would! I was really impressed with all the different color options in the color tool. Across the top, you can see different materials such as fabric, metal and hair. I thought these options meant that the mini would have different types of plastic for the different textures. However, that's not the case at this time. You are not just limited to the colors of the color tool, you can mix your own paint colors by using the Mix tool. This was really helpful for me to find the perfect shade for my hair and my favorite mug! What scale is eroj minister? Hero forge ministers to scale 30mm using the eyes of a man as the guide. But often the scale provided by a mini manufacturer is just a guide. So what does the size actually look like? Freebooter Time Wizard, My Hero Forge custom mini, WizKids Druid Here you can see I Hero for mini in the middle, a Time Freebooter Wizard on the left, and a WizKids Druid (Amazon link) on the right. You can see that the bases make a bit of a difference in the overall height of the mini but that the herolium at Forge One is comparable, maybe just slightly smaller than the druid. On the Forge Hero site, the default size for my human mini looked a little smaller than I wanted it to be so I'm naked he set up their little ones above it. So the fact that it's still a little shorter than the WizKids druid is interesting. Costs how much does a Mini Forge hero cost? How much costs is your hero Forge Mini depending on the material you choose to get it printed on. At this time of writing, there are five different options. Plastic – $19.99 – Printed with 100 micron layer resolution. Main with gray and have some layer lines and rough spots where they have removed their support. Premium plastic – $29.99 – Printed with 50% micron resolution layer (double the resolution of plastic). Some exhaust layer lines and low assignments where they have withdrawn their support. Steel – $34.99 – Rough texture like cast iron, less detailed than plastic but more durable. Bronze – $99.99 – Rich gold color and finished list. Highly detailed and made using a 3D printed mold which is the bronze poured in. Nylon Plastics – $59.99 – Download – $7.99 – Download the 3D print file and print yourself. I have opted for the Premium Plastics. It felt like a happy medium at quality prices. Two new print options were added in October 2020. Plastic color – $44.99 – Print using a 3D printer that mixes colors as it goes. Faint layer lines can be visible in strong light. Plastic paints – $149.99 – Printed in high-quality plastics similar to Premium Plastic and then professionally hand-painted. There can be exhaust layer lines and low spots. You can find information on all the Forge Hero material options on their website. Shipping and Wrapping How long has delivery taken? I passed mini forge on 15th March and arrived on Friday 27th March in the UK. It was shipped using UPS Standard tracking delivery. I thought the time from order to delivery was really quick from the USA! But then I noticed that the sender's address was in the Netherlands. Under the box it says, 'Manufacturers don'tShapeWays.com'. That's when I did a little research into ShapeWays and Forge Heroes. Forge hero is the design and safety application are the printers. They have printed in Long Island City and the Netherlands so there will likely ship from one closer. If you want to learn more about how Forge Heroes and Safeways work together, see this blog post by Joshua Bennet, a co-founder of Forge Heroes. How safe is the wrapping? I was really impressed with the wrapping for my mini! The katboard box it reached into was made of four really thick and stopped touching hard. The inside was a layer of layers of thick round the box line and manufactured my mini skirt. My mini was then inside her bubble wrap bag! Hero Forge Mini of Wrapping If there are any issues with your mini on arrival, you can contact Forge Heroes within 10 days to get it sorted. Paint Hero Forge Paint Minister? Forge heroes have a hand-painted hand-painted service for $149.99 including your custom mini. They work with tabletop estudio paintings like the Den of Imagination and Mixing Dimensions for the paint. You can of course, opt for the 3D printing color option instead of $44.99. They have also launched these services through the 2.0 Kickstarter Hero campaign. Does herod minister need primary needs? The Premium Plastic, Bronze and Steel option needs to be main before paint. The Plastic option reaches main in primary grid. I've yet to see what it's like to paint the Premium Plastic. Feel like I need to brush up on my paint skills before I try it! After investing in a custom mini, I want to do a great job with the paint! Type and durability How close is the design of the print mini? It's place on. You can see in front and back design and print mini comparisons that what you design, that's what you get! Hero Forge Witchdoctor front design and print comparison Mini Hero Forge Witchdoctor back design and print mini comparison What is the Print Color Minister like? Here you can see how my mini print color looks when compared to the designer. There are two key differences. The level of detail and saturation of the colors. The main area of detail missing from my mini print is of the face. In the designer, you can see students, white ones in their eyes and teeth. In the printed mini, the figure is too small to show all these details. The colors themselves are slightly different in on the designer preview too. So when you're designing a mini print color for yourself, I suggest making the colors more saturated than you actually want them to be so they look really cool when printed. My Mini Hero Forge Colour Print Front Mini My Heroid Forge Colour Print back I was also lucky enough to be sent a mini printed color sample from hero in – a celestial paleidin. This mini sample really shows off what's possible with printing the colors for a more conventional RPG character. First of all, the wings look amazing! The mixture of the blue and green and yellow is way better than anything I could achieve with a paintbelly! Details of the face of the mini are much better than on my mini too. I think he's there because he has shadow on the face. The only thing I'd really like to see about the color printer, is a metallic plastic. The only thing that I feel seems better hand-painted. I think this will come in the future as 3D printed printing technology advances. Hero Forge Color Printed Mini with wings which is the quality of a custom miniature forge hero? My Premium Mini Plastics is quality good and has a really good amount of detail. I'm very impressed. I can see the wrap on his staff, fold them in his jackets and tapes with his necklaces. You can see the nubs and low patches where support has been removed. There are a few just of these, mostly on its clock. But I don't think they will when I was painted it. In terms of layer lines, I can only see layer lines if it's locked up, it's really bright lights. They don't notice in the tabletop that's in for sure. To minister the color. I can't see a single thrill nub! They are the same as the Plastics Premium Minister with the layer lines. You can only see them when in bright lights and looking to lock up. On the tabletop you can't see these lines at all. My brother and a friend also received Custom Minister Forge Heroes so I included pictures of the ministers as more examples. Custom Hero My Brother, Forge Mini Front and Back My Friend's Hero in Custom Forge Front and back How durable are hero ministers? Mini Premium Plastic I feel robust enough to stay up several years of tabletop games, by which point it will likely be to retire from a shelf anyway! The only thing I need to be careful with is his bending staff if I apply a little pressure. But at least it's curved, rather than being rigid and more thinner in the handwriting. Of course, only time will tell how durable my mini is! From my research before buying my mini, it seems as if plastics used in the past have been less durable but have improved in recent years as 3D printing technology and materials have gotten better. Both ministers of color feel very solid. They have a little more flexible than the Premium Plastic, but not so much that I worry they will break if I release them. Hero For Alternatives One option is to buy the downloadable design version of your mini and use a different printing service to print it for you. Etsy has a fairly beloved seller who will print your hero's mini for you. Some will print with your mini paintings, such as Sydtopolis on Etsy. You could also try a custom 3D mini design alternative with printing services like Eldritch Fondry. The miniatures are printed at Queen Premium. They have fewer options than Forge Heroes at the moment, but make races that you'll recognize like orc, elf, humans, goblin etc. They are given different names like death (elf) and samons (men). Conclusion - Is a Mini Forge Hero Worth It? Yes! I love my Hero Minister Forge. The quality is great, they feel durable and I got exactly what I wanted thanks to the huge amount of options! The only criticism I have of Forge Heroes is that on the creation tool when you choose the Premium Plastics option, it doesn't mention anywhere that your mini might have nubs or rough plates where the thrill supported it. You can only find this information on the materials page on their website. The creation tool only mentions the potential for lost layer lines. That meant I was a little disappointed to see these nubs and marks on my mini-them. I still love to have custom ministers that I'm born, though! My overall review of Forge Heroes is that it's an abusive company that always carries out new designs and improves their materials. say only get one if your characters will be sticking around for a long time. It's pretty a lot of money to spend on a mini that you'll only use in a short campaign!
