On March 25, 1881, The Sisters of Mercy of the Sacred Heart Convent announced the opening of Yankton's first parish school. Three days later, the first classes were held. It was known as St. Martin's and was located on the northwest corner of Cedar and Fifth. Relatively short-lived, it was succeeded by Sacred Heart School, founded just west of the current church Sacred Heart School located in Yankton, South Dakota. The first school was built in 1884 just west of the present Sacred Heart Church. In 1922, a new two-story brick school was completed at 5th and Capital. In 2002, the construction of the new PK through 4th classrooms was added to the St. Benedict's church building. In 2011, a new building from the 5th to 8th degree was built on the site of the Sacred Heart Parish. At that time, the gymnasium of the building of 1922 was thnated with the ground.
