Troubleshooting the Showbox installation on an Android Showbox device may be the best movie and TV show app around, but there can be times when an error message pops up on your device. Sometimes it can be up to something on your phone, perhaps a software update, or it could be up to where you're trying to use Showbox. The good news is that they are almost always ultra-easy to fix. Below are some of the most common mistakes you may come across. They work for all devices, whether it's a tablet or a mobile (like Samsung). Learn how to fix them and quickly get back to watching what you want. Error: 'Showbox can't play this link/server bug' Possible reason: This may be because what you want to watch is not available in your area, or it has been blocked. Correction: Go to the settings of the zgt: showbox apps and clear the cache as well as clear data. Then download the VPN (it's a proxy that allows you to go online and look like you're in another region, helping to hide your identity). Connect to a U.S. location and then re-open Showbox and try to watch. Keep in mind that some VPNs can slow down your connection, so choose one that is good for streaming and downloading. Error: 'Showbox server is unavailable' Possible reason: You can be running an old version of Showbox that needs an update. Correction: Visit the official Showbox homepage (we recommend bookmarking URLs so you can quickly check) to download the newest version. The app is regularly updated to keep things running smoothly for all users, so please pop here regularly and pay attention to notifications for showbox updates. Error: 'App stopped working' Possible reason: Your device works with low memory. Correction: Try it some space by removing old apps and files. If you have room for an SD card, use this and transfer some of your media. Other troubleshooting tips Reset: Sometimes when you update Android, the OS turns off to allow from unknown sources. Check Check Out enabled whenever you need to update Showbox. Reboot: If you've tried all of the above and you still can't watch Showbox, try unpacking the app and then reinstalling off the URL.
