Mykonos City - Head Guide 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 Roads in Greece's major cities are average. At the same time, the quality of the road surface is constantly improving. Many routes marked on the map as unpaved, have long been covered with a solid layer of asphalt. However, the statistics of traffic accidents are very poor. The most common cause of disasters is overtaking, although in cities and high-speed mode 50 kilometers per hour is taken. Motorcycles and mopeds are used too. At the same time, the behaviour of two-wheeled drivers is still less aggressive than in Asia. On some islands, such as Kos or Fesalia, there are many cyclists. It is worth noting that the drivers of cars respect them. A bike is not the best way to travel on mainland Greece as the terrain is very hilly. There are almost no dedicated bike lanes in the country. ...
