Disney's new venture is Adventures from Disney®, a group tour program that guides guests through beautiful North American terrain and abroad. Their current terms are hosted by visitors to the American Southwest, Wyoming, Washington, Hawaii, Costa Rica, England, Ireland, France, Spain, Italy and Austria. Each tour is limited to approximately 30 guests and is guided by two guides. Guides are responsible for transporting their group from location to location, coordinating special food measures, confirming hotel provisions, handling emergencies that may occur, and so that guests have adventures for life. TAKE NOTE... if these jobs look great, then learn about Disney's internships in our interment section. Find out that would like to have a student internship in the Magic Kingdom. One adventure guide says: My favorite part of this job is meeting people. I never know who I'm going to get on my tours and I love talking to people from all over the world. It's great to watch their expressions the first time they see something really impressive like the Colosseum. It's like seeing it through your eyes for the first time. A degree in tourism is not a must to be a adventure guide, but one in communications, hospitality or international affairs is beneficial. It is also not necessary to be bilingual, but skill is definitely useful, especially on international ethics. Guides should be friendly, extroverted and comfortable in front of small groups. Also, there's a lot of walking involved, so candidates need to be comfortable with that... and the long hours that come with work as you are literally on duty 24-7. This is an amazing opportunity to see the world in a safe, attractive environment. All your expenses are paid as a guide to Adventures (travel, food, accommodation and related incidents). You make contacts in every country you visit that you will cooperate with over and over again. You will learn quick thinking when trying to get your group to dine through a rainstorm. And, you'll have some unforgettable photos and memories. When you travel with adventures from Disney, you get a return pass into the world. All of our vacation packages offer VIP access to extraordinary places and a special experience inaccessible to the general public that will provide lifelong memories to cherish with family. ■Show moreincluding on your adventure adventures Disney vacation is a lot going for them. From an incredible range of destinations to visit, each with genuine local experience, to a VIP experience that only a Disney trip can provide. And then there are the guides who take the experience to a very different level, far above any typical sightseeing trip. We asked Caroline, an adventure guide to holiday in England and France, to show us around and tell us more about what her (rather awesome) work is like: An England and France trip takes the adventures of Disney guests from London to Paris, Windsor, Stonehenge, and Versailles.
